*T*HE following Collection of Plays needs no other Recommendation, than that they were writ by the incomparable Mrs. A. Behn; a Person whose Character is so universally known, and whose Performances have met with such a general Applause, that 'tis needless to bespeak the Reader's Favour on her behalf. Her Poems, Novels, Translations, and several other Composures, both in Prose and Verse, have gain'd her a lasting Esteem among the Masters of Wit and Sense. But above all, her Theatrical Performances have entitl'd her to such a distinguishing Character in that way, as exceeds That of any of the Poets of this Age, Sir William Davenant and Mr. Dryden excepted. Most of 'em had the good Fortune to please upon the Stage, and all of 'em loudly proclaim the Fancy and excellent Abilities of our Authoress. Those who had the Happiness to be personally acquainted with her, were so charm'd with her Wit, Freedom of Temper, and agreeable Conversation, that they in a manner ador'd her. And indeed we need no greater Proof of her Excellency in all the Endowments both of Body and Mind, than her Acquaintance and Intimacy with the more sensible part of Mankind, and the Love she drew from Men of all Ranks.

In fine, her Character among the Wits of the Age, is fully and happily express'd by Sir Charles Cotton in the following Lines.

Some Hands write some things well, and elsewhere lame,
But on all Themes your Power is the same;
Of Buskin and of Sock you know the Pace,
And tread in both with equal Skill and Grace:
But when you write of Love, Astrea, then
Love dips his Arrows, where you wet your Pen:
Such charming Lines did never Paper grace,
Soft as your Sex, as smooth as Beauty's Face.

PART I.

PROLOGUE,

Written by a Person of Quality.

*ITS, like Physicians, never can agree;
 When of a different Society;
 And Rabel's Drops were never more cry'd down*

*By all the Learned Doctors of the Town,
 Than a new Play, whose Author is unknown:*

*Nor can those Doctors with more Malice sue (And powerful Purses) the dissenting Few,
Than those with an insulting Pride, do rail
At all who are not of their own Cabal.*

*If a Young Poet hit your Humour right,
You judge him then out of Revenge and Spite ;
So amongst Men there are ridiculous Elves,
Who Monkeys hate for being too like themselves :
So that the Reason of the Grand Debate,
Why Wit so oft is damn'd, when good Plays take,
Is, that you censure as you love or hate.
Thus, like a learned Conclave, Poets sit,
Catholick Judges both of Sense and Wit,
And damn or save, as they themselves think fit.
Yet those who to others Faults are so severe,
Are not so perfect, but themselves may err.
Some write correct indeed, but then the whole
(Bating their own dull Stuff i'th' Play) is stole :
As Bees do suck from Flowers their Honey-dew,
So they rob others, striving to please you.*

*Some write their Characters genteel and fine,
But then they do so toil for every Line,
That what to you does easy seem, and plain,
Is the hard Issue of their labouring Brain.
And some th' Effects of all their Pains we see,
Is but to mimick good Extempore.*

*Others by long Converse about the Town,
Have Wit enough to write a leud Lampoon,
But their chief Skill lies in a Baudy Song.
In short, the only Wit that's now in Fashion
Is but the Gleanings of good Conversation.*

*As for the Author of this coming Play,
I ask'd him what he thought fit I should say,
In thanks for your good Company to day :
He call'd me Fool, and said it was well known,
You came not here for our sakes, but your own.
New Plays are stuff'd with Wits, and with Debauches,
That croud and sweat like Cits in May-day Coaches.*

SCENE Naples, in Carnival-time.

ACT I. SCENE I. A Chamber.

Enter Florinda and Hellena.

Flor.

H A T an impertinent thing is a young Girl bred in a Nunnery ! How full of Questions ! Prithce no more Hellena ; I have told thee more than thou understand'st already.

Hell. The more's my Grief ; I wou'd fain know as much as you, which makes me so inquisitive ; nor is't enough to know you're a Lover, unless you tell me too, who 'tis you sigh for.

Flor. When you are a Lover, I'll think you fit for a Secret of that nature.

Hell. 'Tis true, I was never a Lover yet — but I begin to have a shreud Guess, what 'tis to be so, and fancy it very pretty to sigh, and sing, and blush and wish, and dream and wish, and long and wish to see the Man ; and when I do, look pale and tremble ; just as you did when my Brother brought home the fine English Colonel to see you — what do you call him ? Don Belvile.

Flor. Fie Hellena.

Hell. That Blush betrays you — I am sure 'tis so — or is it Don Antonio the Vice-Roy's Son ? — or perhaps the rich old Don Vincentio, whom my Father designs for your Husband ? — Why do you blush again ?

Flor. With Indignation ; and how near soever my Father thinks I am to marrying that hated Object, I shall let him see I understand better what's due to my Beauty, Birth and Fortune, and more to my Soul, than to obey those unjust Commands.

Hell. Now hang me, if I don't love thee for that dear Disobedience. I love Mischief strangely, as most of our Sex do, who are come to love nothing else. — But tell tell me, dear Florinda, don't you love that fine Anglese? — for I vow next to loving him my self, 'twill please me most that you do so, for he is so gay and so handsom.

Flor. Hellena, a Maid design'd for a Nun ought not to be so curious in a Discourse of Love.

Hell. And dost thou think that ever I'll be a Nun? Or at least till I'm so old, I'm fit for nothing else. Faith no, Sister; and that which makes me long to know whether you love Belvile, is because I hope he has some mad Companion or other, that will spoil my Devotion; nay I'm resolv'd to provide my self this Carnival, if there be e'er a handsom Fellow of my Humour above Ground, tho I ask first.

Flor. Prithee be not so wild.

Hell. Now you have provided your self with a Man, you take no Care for poor me — Prithee tell me, what dost thou see about me that is unfit for Love — have not I a world of Youth? a Humour gay? a Beauty passable? a Vigour desirable? well shap'd? clean limb'd? sweet breath'd? and Sense enough to know how all these ought to be employ'd to the best Advantage: yes, I do and will. Therefore lay aside your Hopes of my Fortune, by my being a Devotee, and tell me how you came acquainted with this Belvile; for I perceive you knew him before he came to Naples.

Flor. Yes, I knew him at the Siege of Pampelona, he was then a Colonel of French Horse, who when the Town was ransack'd, nobly treated my Brother and my self, preserving us from all Insolencies; and I must own, (besides great Obligations) I have I know not what, that pleads kindly for him about my Heart, and will suffer no other to enter — But see my Brother.

Enter Don Pedro, Stephano, with a Masquing Habit, and Callis.

Pedro. Good morrow Sister. Pray when saw you your Lover Don Vincentio?

Flor. I know not, Sir — Callis, when was he here? for I consider it so little, I know not when it was.

Pedro. I have a Command from my Father here to tell you, you ought not to despise him, a Man of so vast a Fortune, and such a Passion for you——Stephano methinks——
[Puts on his Masquing Habit.]

Flor. A Passion for me! 'tis more than e'er I saw, or had a desire should be known——I hate Vincentio, and I would not have a Man so dear to me as my Brother follow the ill Customs of our Country, and make a Slave of his Sister——And Sir, my Father's Will, I'm sure, you may divert.

Pedro. I know not how dear I am to you, but I wish only to be rank'd in your Esteem, equal with the English Colonel Belvile——Why do you frown and blush? Is there any Guilt belongs to the Name of that Cavalier?

Flor. I'll not deny I value Belvile, when I was expos'd to such Dangers as the licens'd Lust of common Soldiers threaten'd, when Rage and Conquest flew thro the City——then Belvile, this Criminal for my sake, threw himself into all Dangers to save my Honour, and will you not allow him my Esteem?

Pedro. Yes, pay him what you will in Honour——but you must consider Don Vincentio's Fortune, and the Jointure he'll make you.

Flor. Let him consider my Youth, Beauty and Fortune; which ought not to be thrown away on his Age and Jointure.

Pedro. 'Tis true, he's not so young and fine a Gentleman as that Belvile——but what Jewels will that Cavalier present you with? those of his Eyes and Heart?

Hell. And are not those better than any Don Vincentio has brought from the Indies?

Pedro. Why how now! Has your Nunnery-breeding taught you to understand the Value of Hearts and Eyes?

Hell. Better than to believe Vincentio deserves Value from any Woman——He may perhaps encrease her Bags, but not her Family.

Pedro. This is fine——Go up to your Devotion, you are not design'd for the Conversation of Lovers.

Hell. Nor Saints yet a while I hope. [Aside.]
Is't not enough you make a Nun of me, but you must cast cast my Sister away too, exposing her to a worse confinement than a religious Life?

Pedro. The Girl's mad — Is it a Confinement to be carry'd into the Country, to an antient Villa belonging to the Family of the Vincentio's these five hundred Years, and have no other Prospect than that pleasing one of seeing all her own that meets her Eyes — a fine Air, large Fields and Gardens, where she may walk and gather Flowers?

Hell. When? By Moon-Light? For I'm sure she dares not encounter with the heat of the Sun; that were a Task only for Don Vincentio and his Indian Breeding, who loves it in the Dog-days — And if these be her daily Divertisements, what are those of the Night, to lie in a wide-Moth eaten Bed-Chamber with Furniture in Fashion in the Reign of King Sancho the First; the Bed that which his Forefathers liv'd and dy'd in.

Pedro. Very well.

Hell. This Apartment (new furbisht and fitted out for the young Wife) he (out of Freedom) makes his Dressing-room; and being a frugal and a jealous Coxcomb, instead of a Valet to uncase his feeble Carcase, he desires you to do that Office — Signs of Favour, I'll assure you, and such as you must not hope for, unless your Woman be out of the way.

Pedro. Have you done yet?

Hell. That Honour being past, the Giant stretches it self, yawns and sighs a Belch or two as loud as a Musket, throws himself into Bed, and expects you in his foul Sheets, and e'er you can get your self undrest, calls you with a Snore or two — And are not these fine Blessings to a young Lady?

Pedro. Have you done yet?

Hell. And this Man you must kiss, nay, you must kiss none but him too — and nuzle thro his Beard to find his Lips — and this you must submit to for threescore Years, and all for a Jointure.

Pedro. For all your Character of Don Vincentio, she is as like to marry him as she was before.

Hell. Marry Don Vincentio! hang me, such a Wedlock would be worse than Adultery with another Man: I had rather see her in the Hostel de Dieu, to waste her Youth there in Vows, and be a Handmaid to Lazars and Criples, than to lose it in such a Marriage.

Pedro. You have consider'd, Sister, that Belville has no Fortune to bring you to, is banisht his Country, despis'd at home, and pity'd abroad.

Hell. What then? the Vice-Roy's Son is better than that Old Sir Fifty. Don Vincentio! Don Indian! he thinks he's trading to Gambo still, and wou'd barter himself (that Bell and Bawble) for your Youth and Fortune.

Pedro. Callis, take her hence, and lock her up all this Carnival, and at Lent she shall begin her everlasting Penance in a Monastery.

Hell. I care not, I had rather be a Nun, than be oblig'd to marry as you wou'd have me, if I were design'd for't.

Pedro. Do not fear the Blessing of that Choice—— you shall be a Nun.

Hell. Shall I so? you may chance to be mistaken in my way of Devotion—— A Nun! yes I am like to make a fine Nun! I have an excellent Humour for a Grate: No, I'll have a Saint of my own to pray to shortly, if I like any that dares venture on me. [Aside.]

Pedro. Callis, make it your Business to watch this wild Car. As for you Florinda, I've only try'd you all this while, and urg'd my Father's Will; but mine is, that you would love Antonio, he is brave and young, and all that can compleat the Happiness of a gallant Maid—— This Absence of my Father will give us opportunity to free you from Vincentio, by marrying here, which you must do to morrow.

Flor. To morrow!

Pedro. To morrow, or 'twill be too late—— 'tis not my Friendship to Antonio, which makes me urge this, but Love to thee, and Hatred to Vincentio—— therefore resolve upon't to morrow.

Flor. Sir, I shall strive to do, as shall become your Sister.

Pedro.

Pedro. I'll both believe and trust you ——— Adieu.

[Ex. Ped. and Steph.

Hell. As become his Sister! ——— That is, to be as resolv'd your way, as he is his ——— [Hell. goes to Callis.

Flor. I ne'er till now perceiv'd my Ruin near,
I've no Defence against Antonio's Love,
For he has all the Advantages of Nature,
The moving Arguments of Youth and Fortune.

Hell. But hark you, Callis, you will not be so cruel to lock me up indeed: will you?

Call. I must obey the Commands I hate ——— besides, do you consider what a Life you are going to lead?

Hell. Yes, Callis, that of a Nun: and till then I'll be indebted a World of Prayers to you, if you let me now see, what I never did, the Divertisements of a Carnival.

Call. What, go in Masquerade? 'twill be a fine farewell to the World I take it ——— pray what wou'd you do there?

Hell. That which all the World does, as I am told, be as mad as the rest, and take all innocent Freedom ——— Sister, you'll go too, will you not? come prithee be not sad ——— We'll out-wit twenty Brothers, if you'll be ruled by me ——— Come put off this dull Humour with your Clothes, and assume one as gay, and as fantastick as the Dress my Cousin Valeria and I have provided, and let's ramble.

Flor. Callis, will you give us leave to go?

Call. I have a youthful Itch of going my self. [Aside. ——— Madam, if I thought your Brother might not know it, and I might wait on you, for by my troth I'll not trust young Girls alone.

Flor. Thou see'st my Brother's gone already, and thou shalt attend and watch us.

Enter Stephano.

Steph. Madam, the Habits are come, and your Cousin Valeria is dress'd, and stays for you.

Flor. 'Tis well ——— I'll write a Note, and if I chance to see Belvile, and want an opportunity to speak to him, that shall let him know what I've resolv'd in favour of him.

Hell. Come, let's in and dress us.

[Exeunt.

Enter Belvile melancholy, Blunt and Frederick.

Fred. Why, what the Devil ails the Colonel, in a time when all the World is gay, to look like mere Lent thus? Hadst thou been long enough in Naples to have been in love, I should have sworn some such Judgment had befall'n thee.

Belv. No, I have made no new Amours since I came to Naples.

Fred. You have left none behind you in Paris.

Belv. Neither.

Fred. I can't divine the Cause then; unless the old Cause, the want of Money.

Blunt. And another old Cause, the want of a Wench—Wou'd not that revive you?

Belv. You're mistaken, Ned.

Blunt. Nay, 'Sheartlikins, then thou art past Cure.

Fred. I have found it out; thou hast renew'd thy Acquaintance with the Lady that cost thee so many Sighs at the Siege of Pampelona——pox on't, what d'ye call her——her Brother's a noble Spaniard——Nephew to the dead General——Florinda——ay, Florinda——And will nothing serve thy turn but that damn'd virtuous Woman, whom on my Conscience thou lov'st in spite too, because thou see'st little or no possibility of gaining her?

Belv. Thou art mistaken, I have Interest enough in that lovely Virgin's Heart, to make me proud and vain, were it not abated by the Severity of a Brother, who perceiving my Happiness——

Fred. Has civilly forbid thee the House?

Belv. 'Tis so, to make way for a powerful Rival, the Vice-Roy's Son, who has the advantage of me, in being a Man of Fortune, a Spaniard, and her Brother's Friend; which gives him liberty to make his Court, whilst

I have recourse only to Letters, and distant Looks from her Window, which are as soft and kind as those which Heav'n sends down on Penitents.

Blunt. Hey day! 'Sheartlikins, Simile! by this Light the Man is quite spoil'd—Frederick, what the Devil are we made of, that we cannot be thus concern'd for a Wench? —'Sheartlikins, our Cupids are like the Cooks of the Camp, they can roast or boil a Woman, but they have none of the fine Tricks to set 'em off, no Hogoes to make the Sauce pleasant, and the Stomach sharp.

Fred. I dare swear I have had a hundred as young, kind and handsom as this Florinda; and Dogs eat me, if they were not as troublesom to me i'th' Morning as they were welcome o'er night.

Blunt. And yet, I warrant, he would not touch another Woman, if he might have her for nothing.

Belv. That's thy Joy, a cheap Whore.

Blunt. Why, 'dsheartlikins, I love a frank Soul—When did you ever hear of an honest Woman that took a Man's Mony? I warrant 'em good ones——But, Gentlemen, you may be free, you have been kept so poor with Parliaments and Protectors, that the little Stock you have is not worth preserving——but I thank my Stars, I had more Grace than to forfeit my Estate by Cavaliering.

Belv. Methinks only following the Court should be sufficient to entitle 'em to that.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, they know I follow it to do it no good, unless they pick a hole in my Coat for lending you Mony now and then; which is a greater Crime to my Conscience, Géntlemen, than to the Common-wealth.

Enter Willmore.

Will. Ha! dear Belvile! noble Colonel!

Belv. Willmore! welcome ashore, my dear Rover!—what happy Wind blew us this good Fortune?

Will. Let me salute you my dear Fred. and then command me——How is't honest Lad?

Fred. Faith, Sir, the old Complement, infinitely the better to see my dear mad Willmore again——Prithee why camest thou ashore? and where's the Prince?

Will. He's well, and reigns still Lord of the watery Element

Element——I must aboard again within a Day or two, and my Business ashore was only to enjoy my self a little this Carnival.

Belv. Pray know our new Friend, Sir, he's but bashful, a raw Traveller, but honest, stout, and one of us.

[Embraces Blunt.]

Will. That you esteem him, gives him an Interest here.

Blunt. Your Servant, Sir.

Will. But well——Faith I'm glad to meet you again in a warm Climate, where the kind Sun has its god-like Power still over the Wine and Women.—Love and Mirth are my Business in Naples; and if I mistake not the Place, here's an excellent Market for Chapmen of my Humour.

Belv. See here be those kind Merchants of Love you look for.

Enter several Men in masquing Habits, some playing on Musick, others dancing after; Women dress'd like Curtezans, with Papers pinn'd to their Breasts, and Baskets of Flowers in their Hands.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, what have we here?

Fred. Now the Game begins.

Will. Fine pretty Creatures! may a Stranger have leave to look and love?——What's here——Roses for every Month! [Reads the Paper.]

Blunt. Roses for every Month! what means that?

Belv. They are, or wou'd have you think they're Curtezans, who here in Naples are to be hir'd by the Month.

Will. Kind and obliging to inform us——Pray where do these Roses grow? I would fain plant some of 'em in a Bed of mine.

Wom. Beware such Roses, Sir.

Will. A Pox of Fear: I'll be bak'd with thee between a pair of Sheets, and that's thy proper Still, so I might but strow such Roses over me and under me——Fair one, wou'd you wou'd give me leave to gather at your Bush this idle Month, I wou'd go near to make some Body smell of it all the Year after.

Belv. And thou hast need of such a Remedy, for thou stinkest of Tar and Rope-ends, like a Dock or Pesthouse.

[The Woman puts her self into the Hands of a Man, and Exit.]

Will.

Will. Nay, nay, you shall not leave me so.

Belv. By all Means use no Violence here.

Will. Death! just as I was going to be damnably in love, to have her led off! I could pluck that Rose out of his Hand, and even kiss the Bed, the Bush it grew in.

Fred. No Friend to Love like a long Voyage at Sea.

Blunt. Except a Nunnery, Fred.

Will. Death! but will they not be kind, quickly be kind? Thou know'st I'm no tame Sigher, but a rampant Lion of the Forest.

Two Men dress'd all over with Horns of several sorts, making Grimaces at one another, with Papers pinn'd on their Backs, advance from the farther end of the Scene.

Belv. Oh the fantastical Rogues, how they are dress'd! 'tis a Satir against the whole Sex.

Will. Is this a Fruit that grows in this warm Country?

Belv. Yes: 'Tis pretty to see these Italians start, swell, and stab at the Word Cuckold, and yet stumble at Horns on every Threshold.

Will. See what's on their Back——Flowers for every Night. [Reads.

—— Ah Rogue! And more sweet than Roses of ev'ry Month! This is a Gardiner of Adam's own breeding. [They dance.

Belv. What think you of those grave People?——is a Wake in Essex half so mad or extravagant?

Will. I like their sober grave way, 'tis a kind of legal authoriz'd Fornication, where the Men are not chid for't, nor the Women despis'd, as amongst our dull English; even the Monseurs want that part of good Manners.

Belv. But here in Italy a Monseur is the humblest best-bred Gentleman——Duels are so baffled by Bravo's, that an Age shews not one, but between a Frenchman and a Hang-man, who is as much too hard for him on the Piazza, as they are for a Dutchman on the new Bridge——But see another Crew.

Enter Florinda, Hellena, and Valeria, dress'd like Gipsies; Callis and Stephano, Lucetta, Philipppo and Sancho in Masquerade.

Hell. Sister, there's your Englishman, and with him a handsome handsom proper Fellow——I'll to him, and instead of telling him his Fortune, try my own.

Will. Gipsies, on my Life——Sure these will prattle if a Man cross their Hands. [Goes to Hellena] ——

Dear pretty (and I hope) young Devil, will you tell an amorous Stranger what Luck he's like to have?

Hell. Have a care how you venture with me, Sir, lest I pick your Pocket, which will more vex your English Humour, than an Italian Fortune will please you.

Will. How the Devil cam'st thou to know my Country and Humour?

Hell. The first I guess by a certain forward Impudence, which does not displease me at this time; and the Loss of your Mony will vex you, because I hope you have but very little to lose.

Will. Egad Child, thou'rt i'th' right; it is so little, I dare not offer it thee for a Kindness——But cannot you divine what other things of more value I have about me, that I would more willingly part with?

Hell. Indeed no, that's the Business of a Witch, and I am but a Gipsy yet——Yet, without looking in your Hand, I have a parlous Guess, 'tis some foolish Heart you mean, an inconstant English Heart, as little worth stealing as your Purse.

Will. Nay, then thou dost deal with the Devil, that's certain——Thou hast guess'd as right as if thou hadst been one of that Number it has languish'd for——I find you'll be better acquainted with it; nor can you take it in a better time, for I am come from Sea, Child; and Venus not being propitious to me in her own Element, I have a world of Love in store——Wou'd you would be good-natur'd, and take some on't off my Hands.

Hell. Why——I could be inclin'd that way——but for a foolish Vow I am going to make——to die a Maid.

Will. Then thou art damn'd without Redemption; and as I am a good Christian, I ought in charity to divert so wicked a Design——therefore prithee dear Creature, let me know quickly when and where I shall begin to set a helping hand to so good a Work.

Hell.

Hell. If you should prevail with my tender Heart (as I begin to fear you will, for you have horrible loving Eyes) there will be difficulty in't that you'll hardly undergo for my sake.

Will. Faith Child, I have been bred in Dangers; and wear a Sword that has been employ'd in a worse Cause, than for a handfom kind Woman _____ Name the Danger _____ let it be any thing but a long Siege, and I'll undertake it.

Hell. Can you storm?

Will. Oh, most furiously.

Hell. What think you of a Nunnery-wall? for he that wins me, must gain that first.

Will. A Nun! Oh how I love thee for't! there's no Sinner like a young Saint _____ Nay, now there's no denying me: the old Law had no Curse (to a Woman) like dying a Maid; witness Jephtha's Daughter.

Hell. A very good Text this, if well handled; and I perceive, Father Captain, you would impose no severe Penance on her who was inclin'd to console her self before she took Orders.

Will. If she be young and handfom.

Hell. Ay, there's it _____ but if she be not _____

Will. By this Hand, Child, I have an implicit Faith, and dare venture on thee with all Faults _____ besides, 'tis more meritorious to leave the World when thou hast last-ed and prov'd the Pleasure on't, than 'twill be a Virtue in thee, which now will be pure Ignorance.

Hell. I perceive, good Father Captain, you design only to make me fit for Heaven _____ but if on the contrary you should quite divert me from it, and bring me back to the World again, I should have a new Man to seek I find; and what a Grief that will be _____ for when I begin, I fancy I shall love like any thing: I never try'd yet.

Will. Egad, and that's kind _____ Prithee, dear Creature, give me Credit for a Heart, for faith I'm a very honest Fellow _____ Oh, I long to come first to the Banquet of Love; and such a swinging Appetite I bring _____ Oh, I'm impatient. Thy Lodging, Sweet-heart, thy Lodging, or I'm a dead Man!

Hell.

Hell. Why must we be either guilty of Fornication or Murder, if we converse with you Men? — And is there no difference between leave to love me, and leave to lie with me?

Will. Faith, Child, they were made to go together.

Lucet. Are you sure this is the Man? [Pointing to Blunt.

Sancho. When did I mistake your Game?

Lucet. This is a stranger, I know by his gazing; if he be brisk he'll venture to follow me; and then, if I understand my Trade, he's mine; he's English too, and they say that's a sort of good-natur'd loving People, and have generally so kind an Opinion of themselves, that a Woman with any Wit may flatter 'em into any sort of Fool she pleases.

Blunt. 'Tis so — she is taken — I have Beauties which my false Glass at home did not discover.

[She often passes by Blunt, and gazes on him; he struts, and cocks, and walks, and gazes on her.

Flor. This Woman watches me so, I shall get no Opportunity to discover my self to him, and so miss the intent of my coming — But as I was saying, Sir — by this Line you should be a Lover. [Looking in his Hand.

Belv. I thought how right you guess'd, all Men are in love, or pretend to be so — Come, let me go, I'm weary of this fooling. [Walks away.

Flor. I will not, till you have confess'd whether the Passion that you have vow'd Florinda be true or false.

Belv. Florinda! [Turns quick towards her.

Flor. Softly.

Belv. Thou hast nam'd one will fix me here for ever.

Flor. She'll be disappointed then, who expects you this Night at the Garden-gate, and if you'll fail not — as let me see the other Hand — you will go near to do — she vows to die or make you happy. [Looks on Callis, Belv. What canst thou mean? [who observes 'em.

Flor. That which I say — Farewel. [Offers to go.

Belv. Oh charming Sybil stay, complete that Joy, which, as it is, will turn into Distraction! — Where must I be? at the Garden-gate? I know it — at night, you you say ——— Ill sooner forfeit Heaven than disobey.

Enter Don Pedro and other Masquers, and pass over the Stage.

Call. Madam, your Brother's here.

Flor. Take this to instruct you farther.

[Gives him a Letter, and goes off.]

Fred. Have a care, Sir, what you promise; this may be a Trap laid by her Brother to ruin you.

Belv. Do not disturb my Happiness with Doubts.

[Opens the Letter.]

Will. My dear pretty Creature, a Thousand Blessings on thee; still in this Habit, you say, and after Dinner at this Place.

Hel. Yes, if you will swear to keep your Heart, and not bestow it between this time and that.

Will. By all the little Gods of Love I swear, I'll leave it with you; and if you run away with it, those Deities of Justice will revenge me.

[Ex. all the Women.]

Fred. Do you know the Hand?

Belv. 'Tis Florinda's.

All Blessings fall upon the virtuous Maid.

Fred. Nay, no Idolatry, a sober Sacrifice I'll allow you.

Belv. Oh Friends! the welcom'st News, the softest Letter!—nay, you shall see it; and could you now be serious, I might be made the happiest Man the Sun shines on.

Will. The Reason of this mighty Joy?

Belv. See how kindly she invites me to deliver her from the threatned Violence of her Brother——will you not assist me?

Will. I know not what thou mean'st, but I'll make one at any Mischief where a Woman's concern'd——but she'll be grateful to us for the Favour, will she not?

Belv. How mean you?

Will. How should I mean? Thou know'st there's but one way for a Woman to oblige me.

Belv. Don't prophane——the Maid is nicely virtuous.

Will. Who pox, then she's fit for nothing but a Husband; let her e'en go, Colonel.

Fred.

Fred. Peace, she's the Colonel's Mistress, Sir.

Will. Let her be the Devil; if she be thy Mistress, I'll serve her — name the way.

Belv. Read here this Postscript. [Gives him a Letter.

Will. [Reads.] At Ten at night — at the Garden-Gate — of which, if I cannot get the Key, I will contrive a way over the Wall — come attended with a Friend or two. — Kind heart, if we three cannot weave a String to let her down a Garden-Wall, 'twere pity but the Hangman wove one for us all.

Fred. Let her alone for that: your Woman's Wit, your fair kind Woman, will out-trick a Brother or a Jew, and contrive like a Jesuit in Chains — but see, Ned Blunt is stoln out after the Lure of a Damsel. [Ex. Blunt and Lucet.

Belv. So he'll scarce find his way home again, unless we get him cry'd by the Bell-man in the Market-place, and 'twou'd sound prettily — a lost English Boy of Thirty.

Fred. I hope 'tis some common crafty Sinner, one that will fit him; it may be she'll sell him for Peru, the Rogue's sturdy and would work well in a Mine; at least I hope she'll dress him for our Mirth; cheat him of all, then have him well-favour'dly bang'd, and turn'd out naked at Midnight.

Will. Prithce what Humour is he of, that you wish him so well?

Belv. Why, of an English Elder Brother's Humour, educated in a Nursery, with a Maid to tend him till Fifteen, and lies with his Grand-mother till he's of Age; one that knows no Pleasure beyond riding to the next Fair, or going up to London with his right Worshipful Father in Parliament-time; wearing gay Clothes, or making honourable Love to his Lady Mother's Landry-Maid; gets drunk at a Hunting-Match, and ten to one then gives some Proofs of his Prowess — A pox upon him, he's our Banker, and has all our Cash about him, and if he fail we are all broke.

Fred. Oh let him alone for that matter, he's of a damn'd stingy Quality, that will secure our Stock; I know not in what Danger it were indeed, if the Jilt should pretend tend she's in love with him, for 'tis a kind believing Coxcomb; otherwise if he part with more than a Piece of Eight — geld him: for which offer he may chance to be beaten, if she be a Whore of the first Rank.

Belv. Nay the Rogue will not be easily beaten, he's stout enough; perhaps if they talk beyond his Capacity, he may chance to exercise his Courage upon some of them; else I'm sure they'll find it as difficult to beat as to please him.

Will. 'Tis a lucky Devil to light upon so kind a Wench!

Fred. Thou hadst a great deal of talk with thy little Gipsy, couldst thou do no good upon her? for mine was hard-hearted.

Will. Hang her, she was some damn'd honest Person of Quality, I'm sure, she was so very free and witty. If her Face be but answerable to her Wit and Humour, I wou'd be bound to Constancy this Month to gain her. In the mean time, have you made no kind Acquaintance since you came to Town?—you do not use to be honest so long, Gentlemen.

Fred. Faith Love has kept us honest, we have been all fir'd with a Beauty newly come to Town, the famous Paduana Angelica Bianca.

Will. What, the Mistress of the dead Spanish General?

Belv. Yes, she's now the only ador'd Beauty of all the Youth in Naples, who put on all their Charms to appear lovely in her sight, their Coaches, Liveries, and themselves, all gay, as on a Monarch's Birth-Day, to attract the Eyes of this fair Charmer, while she has the Pleasure to behold all languish for her that see her.

Fred. 'Tis pretty to see with how much Love the Men regard her, and how much Envy the Women.

Will. What Gallant has she?

Belv. None, she's expos'd to Sale, and four Days in the Week she's yours——for so much a Month.

Will. The very Thought of it quenches all manner of Fire in me——yet prithee let's see her.

Belv. Let's first to Dinner, and after that we'll pass the Day as you please——but at Night ye must all be at my Devotion.

Will. I will not fail you.

[Exeunt.
ACT

ACT II. Scene I. The Long Street.

Enter Belvile and Frederick in Masquing-Habits, and Willmore in his own Clothes, with a Vizard in his Hand.

Will. BUT why thus disguis'd and muzzl'd?

Belv. Because whatever Extravagances we commit in these Faces, our own may not be oblig'd to answer 'em.

Will. I shou'd have chang'd my Eternal Buff too; but no matter, my little Gipsy wou'd not have found me out then: for if she shou'd change hers, it is impossible I should know her, unless I should hear her prattle.— A Pox on't, I cannot get her out of my Head: Pray Heaven, if ever I do see her again, she prove damnable ugly, that I may fortify my self against her Tongue.

Belv. Have a care of Love, for o' my conscience she was not of a Quality to give thee any hopes.

Will. Pox on 'em, why do they draw a Man in then? She has play'd with my Heart so, that 'twill never lie still, till I have met with some kind Wench, that will play the Game out with me — Oh for my Arms full of soft, white, kind — Woman! such as I fancy Angelica.

Belv. This is her House, if you were but in stock to get admittance; they have not din'd yet; I perceive the Picture is not out.

Enter Blunt.

Will. I long to see the Shadow of the fair Substance, a Man may gaze on that for nothing.

Blunt. Colonel, thy Hand—and thine Fred. I have been an Ass, a deluded Fool, a very Coxcomb from my Birth till this Hour, and heartily repent my little Faith.

Belv. What the Devil's the matter with thee Ned?

Blunt. Oh such a Mistress, Fred. such a Girl!

Will. Ha! where? Fred. Ay where!

Blunt. So fond, so amorous, so toying and fine! and all for sheer Love, ye Rogue! Oh how she lookt and kils'd!

kiss'd ! and sooth'd my Heart from my-Bosom. I cannot think I was awake, and yet methinks I see and feel her Charms still——Fred.——Try if she have not left the Taste of her balmy Kisses upon my Lips——

[Kisses him.]

Belv. Ha, ha, ha ! Will. Death Man, where is she ?

Blunt. What a Dog was I to stay in dull England so long—— How have I laugh'd at the Colonel when he sigh'd for Love ! but now the little Archer has reveng'd him, and by his own Dart, I can guess at all his Joys, which then I took for Fancies, mere Dreams and Fables—— Well, I'm resolv'd to sell all in Essex, and plant here for ever.

Belv. What a Blessing 'tis, thou hast a Mistress thou dar'st boast of ; for I know thy Humour is rather to have a proclaim'd Clap, than a secret Amour.

Will. Dost know her Name ?

Blunt. Her Name ? No, 'sheartlikins : what care I for Names ?——

She's fair, young, brisk and kind, even to ravishment : and what a Pox care I for knowing her by another Title.

Will. Didst give her any thing ?

Blunt. Give her !—— Ha, ha, ha ! why, she's a Person of Quality—— That's a good one, give her ! 'sheartlikins dost think such Creatures are to be bought ? Or are we provided for such a Purchase ? Give her quoth ye ? Why she presented me with this Bracelet, for the Toy of a Diamond I us'd to wear : No, Gentlemen, Ned Blunt is not every Body—— She expects me again to night.

Will. Egad that's well ; we'll all go.

Blunt. Not a Soul : No, Gentlemen, you are Wits ; I am a dull Country Rogue, I.

Fred. Well, Sir, for all your Person of Quality, I shall be very glad to understand your Purse be secure ; 'tis our whole Estate at present, which we are loth to hazard in one Bottom : come, Sir, unload.

Blunt. Take the necessary Trifle, useles now to me, that am belov'd by such a Gentlewoman—— 'sheartlikins Money ! Here take mine too.

Fred.

Fred. No, keep that to be cozen'd, that we may laugh.

Will. Cozen'd! ——— Death! wou'd I cou'd meet with one, that wou'd cozen me of all the Love I cou'd spare to night.

Fred. Pox 'tis some common Whore upon my Life.

Blunt. A Whore! yes with such Clothes! such Jewels! such a House! such Furniture, and so attended! a Whore!

Belv. Why yes, Sir, they are Whores, tho they'll neither entertain you with Drinking, Swearing, or Baudy; are Whores in all those gay Clothes, and right Jewels; are Whores with great Houses richly furnisht with Velvet Beds, Store of Plate, handsome Attendance, and fine Coaches, are Whores and errant ones.

Will. Pox on't, where do these fine Whores live?

Belv. Where no Rogue in Office yclep'd Constables dare give 'em Laws, nor the Wine-inspir'd Bullies of the Town break their Windows; yet they are Whores, tho this Essex Calf believe them Persons of Quality.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, y'are all Fools, there are things about this Essex Calf, that shall take with the Ladies, beyond all your Wit and Parts——This Shape and Size, Gentlemen, are not to be despis'd; my Waste tolerably long, with other inviting Signs, that shall be nameless.

Will. Egad I believe he may have met with some Person of Quality that may be kind to him.

Belv. Dost thou perceive any such tempting things about him, shou'd make a fine Woman, and of Quality, pick him out from all Mankind, to throw away her Youth and Beauty upon, nay, and her dear Heart too?——no, no, Angelica has rais'd the Price too high.

Will. May she languish for Mankind till she die, and be damn'd for that one Sin alone.

Enter two Bravoes, and hang up a great Picture of Angelica's, against the Balcony, and two little ones at each side of the Door.

Belv. See there the fair Sign to the Inn, where a Man may lodge that's Fool enough to give her Price.

[Will. gazes on the Picture.

Blunt.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, Gentlemen, what's this?

Belv. A famous Curtezan that's to be sold.

Blunt. How! to be sold! nay then I have nothing to say to her — sold! what Impudence is practis'd in this Country? — with Order and Decency Whoring's establish'd here by virtue of the Inquisition — Come let's be gone, I'm sure we're no Chapmen for this Commodity.

Fred. Thou art none, I'm sure; unless thou could'st have her in thy Bed at the Price of a Coach in the Street.

Will. How wondrous fair she is — a Thousand Crowns a Month — by Heaven as many Kingdoms were too little. A plague of this Poverty — of which I ne'er complain, but when it hinders my Approach to Beauty, which Virtue ne'er cou'd purchase.

Blunt. What's this? — [Reads] A Thousand Crowns a Month!

—— 'Sheartlikins, here's a Sum! sure 'tis a mistake.

—— Hark you Friend, does she take or give so much by the Month!

Fred. A Thousand Crowns! Why, 'tis a Portion for the Infanta.

Blunt. Hark ye Friends, won't she trust?

Brav. This is a Trade, Sir, that cannot live by Credit.

Enter Don Pedro in Masquerade, follow'd by Stephano.

Belv. See, here's more Company, let's walk off a while.

[Pedro Reads.

[Exeunt English.

Enter Angelica and Moretta in the Balcony, and draw a Silk Curtain.

Ped. Fetch me a Thousand Crowns, I never wisht to buy this Beauty at an easier Rate. [Passes off.

Ang. Prithee what said those Fellows to thee?

Brav. Madam, the first were Admirers of Beauty only, but no purchasers; they were merry with your Price and Picture, laught at the Sum, and so past off.

Ang. No matter, I'm not displeas'd with their rallying; their Wonder feeds my Vanity, and he that wishes to buy, gives me more Pride, than he that gives my Price can make me Pleasure.

Brav. Madam, the last I knew thro' all his Disguises to be Don Pedro, Nephew to the General, and who was with him in Pampelona.

Ang. Don Pedro! my old Gallant's Nephew! When his Uncle dy'd, he left him a vast Sum of Money; it is he who was so in love with me at Padua, and who us'd to make the General so jealous.

Moret. Is this he that us'd to prance before our Window, and take such care to shew himself an amorous Ass? if I am not mistaken, he is the likeliest Man to give your Price.

Ang. The Man is brave and generous, but of an Humour so uneasy and inconstant, that the Victory over his Heart is as soon lost as won; a Slave that can add little to the Triumph of the Conquerour: but Inconstancy's the Sin of all Mankind, therefore I'm resolv'd that nothing but Gold shall charm my Heart.

Moret. I'm glad on't; 'tis only Interest that Women of our Profession ought to consider: tho' I wonder what has kept you from that general Disease of our Sex so long, I mean that of being in love.

Ang. A kind, but sullen Star, under which I had the Happiness to be born; yet I have had no time for Love; the bravest and noblest of Mankind have purchas'd my Favours at so dear a Rate, as if no Coin but Gold were current with our Trade — But here's Don Pedro again; fetch me my Lute — for 'tis for him or Don Antonio the Vice-Roy's Son, that I have spread my Nets.

Enter at one Door Don Pedro, and Stephano; Don Antonio and Diego at the other Door, with People following him in Masquerade, antickly attir'd, some with Musick: they both go up to the Picture.

Ant. A thousand Crowns! had not the Painter flatter'd her, I shou'd not think it dear.

Pedro. Flatter'd her! by Heaven he cannot. I have seen the Original, nor is there one Charm here more than adorns her Face and Eyes; all this soft and sweet, with a certain languishing Air, that no Artist can represent.

Ant. What I heard of her Beauty before had fir'd my Soul, but this confirmation of it has blown it into a flame.

Pedro.

Pag. Sir, I have known you throw away a Thousand Crowns on a worse Face, and tho' y' are near your Marriage, you may venture a little Love here; Florinda— will not miss it.

Pedro. Ha! Florinda! Sure 'tis Antonio.

Ant. Florinda! name not those distant Joys, there's not one thought of her will check my Passion here.

Pedro. Florinda scorn'd! and all my Hopes defeated of the Possession of Angelica! [A Noise of a Lute above.

Ant. gazes up.] Her Injuries by Heaven he shall not boast of.

[Song to a Lute above.

S O N G.

W HEN Damon first began to love,
He languisht in a soft Desire,
And knew not how the Gods to move,
To lessen or increase his Fire.
For Cælia in her charming Eyes
Wore all Love's Sweet, and all his Cruelties.

II.

But as beneath a Shade he lay,
Weaving of Flow'rs for Cælia's Hair,
She chanc'd to lead her Flock that way,
And saw the am'rous Shepherd there.
She gaz'd around upon the Place,
And saw the Grave (resembling Night)
To all the Joys of-Love invite,
Whilst guilty Smiles and Blushes dress'd her Face.
At this the bashful Youth all Transports grew,
And with kind Force he taught the Virgin how
To yield what all his Sighs cou'd never do.

Ant. By Heav'n she's charming fair!

[Angelica throws open the Curtains, and bows to Antonio, who pulls off his Vizard, and bows and blows up Kisses. Pedro unseen looks in his Face.

Pedro. 'Tis he, the false Antonio!

Ant. Friend, where must I pay my offering of Love?

[To the Bravo.

My Thousand Crowns I mean.

Pedro. That Offering I have design'd to make,
And yours will come too late.

Ant. Prithee be gone, I shall grow angry else,
And then thou art not safe.

Pedro. My Anger may be fatal, Sir, as yours;
And he that enters here may prove this Truth.

Ant. I know not who thou art, but I am sure thou'rt worth my killing, and aiming at Angelica.

[They draw and fight.

Enter Willmore and Blunt, who draw and part 'em.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, here's fine doings.

Will. Tilting for the Wench I'm sure—— nay gad, if that wou'd win her, I have as good a Sword as the best of ye—— Put up—— put up, and take another time and place, for this is design'd for Lovers only.

[They all put up.

Pedro. We are prevented; dare you meet me to morrow on the Molo?

For I've a Title to a better quarrel,
That of Florinda, in whose credulous Heart
Thou'st made an Int'rest, and destroy'd my Hopes.

Ant. Dare?

I'll meet thee there as early as the Day.

Pedro. We will come thus disguis'd, that whosoever chance to get the better, he may escape unknown.

Ant. It shall be so. [Ex. Pedro and Stephano.

Who shou'd this Rival be? unless the English Colonel, of whom I've often heard Don Pedro speak; it must be he, and time he were removed, who lays a Claim to all my Happiness.

[Willmore having gaz'd all this while on the Picture, pulls down a little one.

Will. This Posture's loose and negligent,
The Sight on't wou'd beget a warm desire
In Souls, whom Impotence and Age had chill'd.
—— This must along with me.

Brav. What means this rudeness, Sir? —— restore the Picture.

Ant. Ha! Rudeness committed to the fair Angelica! — Restore the Picture, Sir.

Will.

Will. Indeed I will not, Sir.

Ant. By Heav'n but you shall.

Will. Nay, do not shew your Sword; if you do, by this dear Beauty — I will shew mine too.

Ant. What right can you pretend to't?

Will. That of Possession which I will maintain — you perhaps have 1000 Crowns to give for the Original.

Ant. No matter, Sir, you shall restore the Picture.

Ang. Oh Moretta! what's the matter?

[Ang. and Moret. above.]

Ant. Or leave your Life behind.

Will. Death! you lye — I will do neither.

Ang. Hold I command you, if for me you fight.

[They fight, the Spaniards join with Antonio, Blunt laying on like mad. They leave off and bow.]

Will. How heavenly fair she is! — ah Plague of her Price.

Ang. You Sir in Buff, you that appear a Soldier, that first began this Insolence.

Will. 'Tis true, I did so, if you call it Insolence for a Man to preserve himself; I saw your charming Picture, and was wounded: quite thro' my Soul each pointed Beauty ran; and wanting a Thousand Crowns to procure my Remedy, I laid this little Picture to my Bosom — which if you cannot allow me, I'll resign.

Ang. No, you may keep the Trifle.

Ant. You shall first ask me leave, and this.

[Fight again as before.]

Enter Belv. and Fred. who join with the English.

Ang. Hold; will you ruin me? — Biskey, Sebastian, part them. [The Spaniards are beaten off.]

Moret. Oh Madam, we're undone, a pox upon that rude Fellow, he's set on to ruin us: we shall never see good days, till all these fighting poor Rogues are sent to the Gallies.

Enter Belvile, Blunt and Willmore, with their Shirts bloody.

Blunt. 'Sheartkins, beat me at this Sport, and I'll ne'er were Sword more.

Belv. The Devil's in thee for a mad Fellow, thou art always always one at an unlucky Adventure.—Come let's be gone whilst we're safe, and remember these are Spaniards, a sort of People that know how to revenge an Affont.

[To Will.

Fred. You bleed; I hope you are not wounded.

Will. Not much:— a plague upon your Dons, if they fight no better they'll ne'er recover Flanders.— What the Devil was't to them that I took down the Picture?

Blunt. Took it! 'Sheartlikins, we'll have the great one too; 'tis ours by Conquest.— Prithee help me up, and I'll pull it down. —————

Ang. Stay Sir, and e'er you affront me further, let me know how you durst commit this Outrage—To you I speak Sir, for you appear like a Gentleman.

Will. To me, Madam?—Gentlemen, your Servant.

[Belv. stays him.

Belv. Is the Devil in thee? Do'st know the danger of entering the House of an incens'd Curtezan?

Will. I thank you for your care—but there are other matters in hand, there are, tho we have no great Temptation.— Death! let me go.

Fred. Yes, to your Lodging, if you will, but not in here.—Damn these gay Harlots— by this Hand I'll have as sound and handsome a Whore for a Patacoone.—Death Man, she'll murder thee.

Will. Oh! fear me not, shall I not venture where a Beauty calls? a lovely charming Beauty? for fear of danger! when by Heaven there's none so great as to long for her, whilst I want Money to purchase her.

Fred. Therefore 'tis loss of time, unless you had the thousand Crowns to pay.

Will. It may be she may give a Favour, at least I shall have the pleasure of saluting her when I enter, and when I depart.

Belv. Pox, she'll as soon lie with thee, as kiss thee, and sooner stab than do either — you shall not go.

Ang. Fear not, Sir, all I have to wound with, is my Eyes.

Blunt. Let him go, 'Sheartlikins, I believe the Gentle-rie-

tlewoman means well.

Belv. Well, take thy Fortune, we'll expect you in the next Street.—Farewell Fool,——farewell!——

Will. B'ye Colonel——

[Goes in.

Fred. The Rogue's stark mad for a Wench. [Exeunt.

Enter Willmore, Angelica, and Moretta.

Ang. Insolent Sir, how durst you pull down my Picture ?

Will. Rather, how durst you set it up, to tempt poor amorous Mortals with so much Excellence ? which I find you have but too well consulted by the unmerciful price you set upon't.——Is all this Heaven of Beauty shewn to move Despair in those that cannot buy ? and can you think the effects of that Despair shou'd be less extravagant than I have shewn ?

Ang. I sent for you to ask my Pardon, Sir, not to aggravate your Crime.—— I thought I shou'd have seen you at my Feet imploring it.

Will. You are deceived, I came to rail at you, and talk such Truths too, as shall let you see the Vanity of that Pride, which taught you how to set such a Price on Sin. For such it is, whilst that which is Love's due is meanly barter'd for.

Ang. Ha, ha, ha, alas good Captain, what pity 'tis your edifying Doctrine will do no good upon me——
Moretta, fetch the Gentleman a Glass, and let him survey himself, to see what Charms he has,——and guess my Business. [Aside in a soft Tone.

Moret. He knows himself of old, I believe those Breeches and he have been acquainted ever since he was beaten at Worcester.

Ang. Nay, do not abuse the poor Creature.——

Moret. Good Weather-beaten Corporal, will you march off ? we have no need of your Doctrine, tho you have of our Charity ; but at present we have no Scraps, we can afford no kindness for God's sake ; in fine, Sirrah, the Price is too high i'th' Month for you, therefore troop, I say.

Will. Here, good Fore-Woman of the Shop, serve me, and I'll be gone.

Moret. Keep it to pay your Landress, your Linen stinks of the Gun-Room; for here's no selling by Retail.

Will. Thou hast sold plenty of thy stale Ware at a cheap Rate.

Moret. Ay, the more silly kind Heart I, but this is an Age wherein Beauty is at higher Rates. — In fine, you know the price of this.

Will. I grant you 'tis here set down a thousand Crowns a Month ——— Baud, take your black Lead and sum it up, that I may have a Pistole-worth of these vain gay things, and I'll trouble you no more.

Moret. Pox on him, he'll fret me to Death: — abominable Fellow, I tell thee, we only sell by the whole Piece.

Will. 'Tis very hard, the whole Cargo or nothing — Faith, Madam, my Stock will not reach it, I cannot be your Chapman. ——— Yet I have Countrymen in Town, Merchants of Love, like me; I'll see if they'll put for a share, we cannot lose much by it, and what we have no use for, we'll sell upon the Friday's Mart, at ——— Who gives more? I am studying, Madam, how to purchase you, tho at present I am unprovided of Money.

Ang. Sure this from any other Man would anger me — nor shall he know the Conquest he has made ——— Poor angry Man, how I despise this railing.

Will. Yes, I am poor — but I'm a Gentleman, And one that scorns this Baseness which you practise. Poor as I am, I would not sell my self, No, not to gain your charming high-priz'd Person. Tho I admire you strangely for your Beauty, Yet I condemn your Mind.

——— And yet I wou'd at any rate enjoy you;
At your own rate ——— but cannot ——— See here
The only Sum I can command on Earth;
I know not where to eat when this is gone:
Yet such a Slave I am to Love and Beauty,
This last I'll sacrifice to enjoy you.

——— Nay, do not frown, I know you are to be bought,
And

And wou'd be bought by me
 For a mean trifling Sum, if I could pay it down.
 Which happy knowledge I will still repeat,
 And lay it to my Heart, it has a Virtue in't,
 And soon will curse those Wounds your Eyes have made.
 —And yet—there's something so divinely powerful there—
 Nay, I will gaze——to let you see my Strength.

[Holds her, looks on her, and pauses and sighs.

By Heaven, bright Creature——I would not for the World thy Fame were half so fair as is thy Face.

[Turns her away from him.

Ang. His words go thro' me to the very Soul. [Aside.
 — If you have nothing else to say to me.

Will. Yes, you shall hear how infamous you are——
 For which I do not hate thee:

But that secures my Heart, and all the Flames it feels
 Are but so many Lusts,

I know it by their sudden bold intrusion.

The Fire's impatient and betrays, 'tis false——

For had it been the purer Flame of Love,

I should have pin'd and languish'd at your Feet,

E'er found the Impudence to have discover'd it.

I now dare stand your Scorn, and your Denial.

Moret. Sure she's bewitcht, that she can stand thus tamely, and hear his saucy railing.——Sirrah, will you be gone?

Ang. How dare you take this liberty? —Withdraw.

[To Moret.

——Pray tell me, Sir, are not you guilty of the same mercenary Crime? When a Lady is propos'd to you for a Wife, you never ask, how fair, discreet, or virtuous she is; but what's her Fortune——which if but small, you cry——She will not do my business——and basely leave her, tho' she languish for you.——Say, is not this as poor?

Will. It is a barbarous Custom, which I will scorn to defend in our Sex, and do despise in yours.

Ang. Thou art a brave Fellow! put up thy Gold, and know, that were thy Fortune large, as is thy Soul, thou shouldst not buy my Love, couldst thou forget those mean Effects of Vanity, which set me out to sale; and as a Lover, prize my yielding Joys. Canst thou believe they'l be entirely thine, Without considering they were mercenary?

Will. I cannot tell, I must bethink me first——ha, Death, I'm going to believe her. [Aside.]

Ang. Pristhee confirm that Faith——or if thou canst not——flatter me a little, 'twill please me from thy Mouth.

Will. Curse on thy charming Tongue! dost thou return My feign'd Contempt with so much subtilty? [Aside.]
Thou'st found the easiest way into my Heart,
Tho I yet know that all thou say'st is false.

[Turning from her in a Rage]

Ang. By all that's good 'tis real,
I never lov'd before, tho oft a Mistress.
——Shall my first Vows be slighted?

Will. What can she mean? [Aside.]

Ang. I find you cannot credit me. [In an angry tone.]

Will. I know you take me for an errant Ass,
An Ass that may be sooth'd into Belief,
And then be us'd at pleasure.

——But, Madam, I have been so often cheated
By perjur'd, soft, deluding Hypocrites,
That I've no Faith left for the cozening Sex,
Especially for Women of your Trade.

Ang. The low esteem you have of me, perhaps
May bring my Heart again:
For I have Pride that yet surmounts my Love.

[She turns with Pride, he holds her.]

Will. Throw off this Pride, this Enemy to Bliss,
And shew the Power of Love: 'tis with those Arms
I can be only vanquish'd, made a Slave.

Ang. Is all my mighty Expectation vanish'd?
——No, I will not hear thee talk,——thou hast a Charm
In every word, that draws my Heart away.
And all the thousand Trophies I design'd,
Thou hast undone——Why art thou soft?
Thy Looks are bravely rough, and meant for War.
Could thou not storm on still?
I then perhaps had been as free as thou.

Will.

Will. Death! how she throws her Fire about my Soul!

[Aside.

—Take heed, fair Creature, how you raise my Hopes,
Which once assum'd pretend to all Dominion.

There's not a Joy thou hast in store

I shall not then command:

For which I'll pay thee back my Soul, my Life.

Come, let's begin th' account this happy minute.

Ang. And will you pay me then the Price I ask?

Will. Oh, why dost thou draw me from an awful Worship,

By shewing thou art no Divinity?

Conceal the Fiend, and shew me all the Angel;

Keep me but ignorant, and I'll be devour,

And pay my Vows for ever at this Shrine.

[Kneels, and kisses her Hand.

Ang. The Pay I mean is but thy Love for mine.

—Can you give that?

Will. Intirely—come, let's withdraw: where I'll renew my Vows,—and breathe 'em with such Ardour, thou shalt not doubt my Zeal.

Ang. Thou hast a Power too strong to be resisted.

[Ex. Will. and Angelica.

Moret. Now my Curse go with you—Is all our Project fallen to this? to love the only Enemy to our Trade?
Nay, to love such a Shameroon, a very Beggar; nay, a Pirate-Beggar, whose Business is to rifle and be gone, a
No-Purchase, No-Pay Tatterdemalion, an English Picca-roon; a Rogue that fights for daily Drink, and takes a Pride in being loyally lousy—Oh, I could curse now, if I durst—This is the Fate of most Whores.

Trophies, which from believing Fops we win,

Are Spoils to those who cozen us again.

ACT III. SCENE I. A Street.

Enter Florinda, Valeria, Hellena, in Antick different Dresses from what they were in before, Callis attending.

Flor. I Wonder what should make my Brother in so ill a Humour: I hope he has not found out our Ramble this Morning.

Hell. No, if he had, we should have heard on't at both Ears, and have been mew'd up this Afternoon; which I would not for the World should have happen'd—Hey ho! I'm sad as a Lover's Lute.

Val. Well, methinks we have learnt this Trade of Gipsies as readily as if we had been bred upon the Road to Loretto; and yet I did so fumble, when I told the Stranger his Fortune, that I was afraid I should have told my own and yours by mistake—But methinks Hellena has been very serious ever since.

Flor. I would give my Garters she were in love, to be reveng'd upon her, for abusing me—How is't Hellena?

Hell. Ah! ——— would I had never seen my mad Monsieur——and yet for all your laughing I am not in love——and yet this small Acquaintance, o' my Conscience, will never out of my Head.

Val. Ha, ha, ha. ——— I laugh to think how thou art fitted with a Lover, a Fellow that, I warrant, loves every new Face he sees.

Hell. Hum——he has not kept his Word with me here——and may be taken up————that Thought is not very pleasant to me————what the Duce should this be now that I feel?

Val. What is't like?

Hell. Nay, the Lord knows————but if I should be hanged, I cannot chuse but be angry and afraid, when I think that mad Fellow should be in love with any Body but me————What to think of my self I know not——Would I could meet with some true damn'd Gipsy, that I might know my Fortune.

Val. Know it! why there's nothing so easy: thou wilt love love this wandering Inconstant till thou find'st thy self hang'd about his Neck, and then be as mad to get free again.

Flor. Yes, Valeria ; we shall see her bestride his Baggage-horse, and follow him to the Campaign.

Hell. So, so ; now you are provided for, there's no care taken of poor me —— But since you have set my Heart a wishing, I am resolv'd to know for what. I will not die of the Pip, so I will not.

Flor. Art thou mad to talk so ? Who will like thee well enough to have thee, that hears what a mad Wench thou art ?

Hell. Like me ! I don't intend every he that likes me shall have me, but he that I like : I shou'd have fraid in the Nunnery still, if I had lik'd my Lady Abbess as well as she lik'd me. No, I came thence, not (as my wife Brother imagines) to take an eternal Farewel of the World, but to love and to be belov'd ; and I will be belov'd, or I'll get one of your Men, so I will.

Val. Am I put into the Number of Lovers ?

Hell. You ! my Couz, I know thou art too good-natur'd to leave us in any Design : Thou won't venture a Cast, tho thou comest off a Loser, especially with such a Gamester —— I observ'd your Man, and your willing Ears incline that way ; and if you are not a Lover, 'tis an Art soon learnt —— that I find. [Sighs.

Flor. I wonder how you learnt to love so easily, I had a thousand Charms to meet my Eyes and Ears, e'er I cou'd yield ; and 'twas the knowledge of Belville's Merit, not the surprizing Person, took my Soul —— Thou art too rash to give a Heart at first sight.

Hell. Hang your considering Lover ; I ne'er thought beyond the Fancy, that 'twas a very pretty, idle, silly kind of Pleasure to pass ones time with, to write little, soft, nonsensical Billets, and with great difficulty and danger receive Answers ; in which I shall have my Beauty prais'd, my Wit admir'd (tho little or none) and have the Vanity and Power to know I am desirable ; then I have the more Inclination that way, because I am to be a Nun, and so shall not be suspected to have any such earthly Thoughts about me —— But when I walk thus ——

and

and sigh thus——they'll think my Mind's upon my Monastery, and cry, how happy 'tis she's so resoly'd!——
But not a Word of Man.

Flor. What a mad Creature's this!

Hell. I'll warrant, if my Brother hears either of you sigh, he cries (gravely) —I fear you have the Indiscretion to be in love, but take heed of the Honour of our House, and your own unspotted Fame; and so he conjures on till he has laid the soft-wing'd God in your Hearts, or broke the Birds-nest—— But see here comes your Lover: but where's my inconstant? let's step aside, and we may learn something. [Go aside.

Enter Belvile, Fred. and Blunt.

Belv. What means this? the Picture's taken in.

Blunt. It may be the Wench is good-natur'd, and will be kind gratis. Your Friend's a proper handsom Fellow.

Belv. I rather think she has cut his Throat and is fled: I am mad he should throw himself into Dangers——Pox on't, I shall want him to night——let's knock and ask for him.

Hell. My Heart goes a-pit a-pat, for fear 'tis my Man they talk of. [Knock, Moretta above.

Moret. What would you have?

Belv. Tell the Stranger that enter'd here about two Hours go, that his Friends stay here for him.

Moret. A Curse upon him for Moretta, would he were at the Devil——but he's coming to you. [Enter Wilmore.

Hell. I, I, 'tis he. Oh how this vexes me.

Belv. And how, and how, dear Lad, has Fortune smil'd? Are we to break her Windows, or raise up Alters to her? hah!

Will. Does not my Fortune sit triumphant on my Brow? dost not see the little wanton God there all gay and smiling? have I not an Air about my Face and Eyes, that distinguish me from the Croud of common Lovers? By Heav'n, Cupid's Quiver has not half so many Darts as her Eyes——Oh such a Bona Roba, to sleep in her Arms is lying in Fresco, all perfum'd Air about me.

Hell. Here's fine encouragement for me to fool on. [Aside.

Will. Hark ye, where didst thou purchase that rich Canary

nary we drank to day? Tell me, that I may adore the Spigot, and sacrifice to the Butt: the Juice was divine, into which I must dip my Rosary, and then bless all things that I would have bold or fortunate.

Belv. Well, Sir, let's go take a Bottle, and hear the Story of your Success.

Fred. Would not French Wine do better?

Will. Damn the hungry Balderdash; cheerful Sack has a generous Virtue in't, inspiring a successful Confidence, gives Eloquence to the Tongue, and Vigour to the Soul; and has in a few Hours compleated all my Hopes and Wishes. There's nothing left to raise a new Desire in me——Come let's be gay and wanton——and Gentlemen, study, study what you want, for here are Friends,——that will supply, Gentlemen,——hark! what a charming sound they make——'tis he and she Gold whilst here, shall beget new Pleasures every moment.

Blunt. But hark ye Sir, you are not married, are you?

Will. All the Honey of Matrimony, but none of the Sting, Friend.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, thou'rt a fortunate Rogue.

Will. I am so Sir, let these inform you. ——Ha, how sweetly they chime! Pox of Poverty, it makes a Man a Slave, makes Wit and Honour sneak, my Soul grew lean and rusty for want of Credit.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, this I like well, it looks like my lucky Bargain! Oh how I long for the Approach of my Squire, that is to conduct me to her House again. Why! here's two provided for.

Fred. By this Light y're happy Men.

Blunt. Fortune is pleased to smile on us, Gentlemen,--- to smile on us.

Enter Sancho, and pulls Blunt by the Sleeve. They go aside.

Sancho. Sir, my Lady expects you——she has remov'd all that might oppose your Will and Pleasure——and is impatient till you come.

Blunt. Sir, I'll attend you —— Oh the happiest Rogue! I'll take no leave, lest they either dog me, or stay me.

[Ex. with Sancho.

Belv.

Belw. But then the little Gipsy is forgot?

Will. A Mischief on thee for putting her into my thoughts; I had quite forgot her else, and this Night's Debauch had drunk her quite down.

Hell. Had it so, good Captain? [Claps him on the Back.]

Will. Ha! I hope she did not hear.

Hell. What afraid of such a Champion!

Will. Oh! you're a fine Lady of your word, are you not? to make a Man languish a whole day——

Hell. In tedious search of me.

Will. Egad Child thou'rt in the right, hadst thou seen what a melancholy Dog I have been ever since I was a Lover, how I have walkt the Streets like a Capuchin, with my Hands in my Sleeves——Faith Sweatheart, thou wouldst pity me.

Hell. Now, if I should be hang'd, I can't be angry with him, he dissembles so heartily——Alas good Captain, what pains you have taken——Now were I ungrateful not to reward so true a Setvant.

Will. Poor Soul! that's kindly said, I see thou bearest a Conscience——come then for a beginning shew me thy dear Face.

Hell. I'm afraid, my small Acquaintance, you have been staying that swinging stomach you boasted of this morning; I remember then my little Collation would have gone down with you, without the Sauce of a handsom Face——Is your Stomach so queasy now?

Will. Faithlong fasting, Child, spoils a Man's Appetite——yet if you durst treat, I could so lay about me full.

Hell. And would you fall to, before a Priest says Grace?

Will. Oh fie, fie, what an old out-of-fashion'd thing hast thou nam'd? Thou couldst not dash me more out of Countenance, shouldst thou shew me an ugly Face.

Whilst he is seemingly courting Hellena, enter Angelica, Moretta, Biskey, and Sebastian, all in Masquerade:

Ang. sees Will. and starts.

Ang. Heavens, is't he? and passionately fond to see another Woman?

Moret. What could you expect less from such a Swaggerer?

Ang.

Ang. Expect ! as much as I paid him, a Heart intire, which I had pride enough to think when e'er I gave, it would have rais'd the Man above the Vulgar, made him all Soul, and that all soft and constant.

Hell. You see, Captain, how willing I am to be Friends with you, till Time and Ill-luck make us Lovers ; and ask you the Question first, rather than put your Modesty to the blush, by asking me : for alas, I know you Captains are such strict Men, severe Observers of your Vows to Chastity, that 'twill be hard to prevail with your tender Conscience to marry a young willing Maid.

Will. Do not abuse me, for fear I should take thee at thy word, and marry thee indeed, which I'm sure will be Revenge sufficient.

Hell. O' my Conscience, that will be our Destiny, because we are both of one humour ; I am as inconstant as you, for I have considered, Captain, that a handsom Woman has a great deal to do whilst her Face is good, for then is our Harvest-time to gather Friends ; and should I in these days of my Youth, catch a fit of foolish Constancy, I were undone ; 'tis loitering by day-light in our great Journey : therefore declare, I'll allow but one year for Love, one year for Indifference, and one year for Hate—and then—go hang your self—for I profess my self the gay, the kind, and the inconstant—the Devil's in't if this won't please you.

Will. Oh most damnably !—I have a Heart with a hole quite thro it too, no Prison like mine to keep a Mistress in.

Ang. Perjur'd Man ! how I believe thee now ! [Aside.

Hell. Well, I see our Business as well as Humours are alike, yours to cozen as many Maids as will trust you, and I as many Men as have Faith—See if I have not as desperate a lying look, as you can have for the heart of you.

[Pulls off her Vizard ; he starts.

—How do you like it Captain ?

Will. Like it ! by Heav'n, I never saw so much Beauty. Oh the Charms of those sprightly black Eyes, that strangely fair Face, full of Smiles and Dimples ! those soft round melting melting cherry Lips! and small even white Teeth! not to be exprest, but silently adored!——Oh one Look more, and strike me dumb, or I shall repeat nothing else till I am mad.

[He seems to court her to pull off her Vizard: she refuses.

Ang. I can endure no more——nor is it fit to interrupt him; for if I do, my Jealousy has so destroy'd my Reason,——I shall undo him:——Therefore I'll retire. And you Sebastian [To one of her Bravoes] follow that Woman, and learn who 'tis; while you tell the Fugitive, I would speak to him instantly. [To the other Bravo.

[Exit'

[This while Flor. is talking to Belvile, who stands sullenly. Fred. courting Valeria.

Val. Prithce dear Stranger, be not so sullen; for tho you have lost your Love, you see my Friend frankly offers you hers, to play with in the mean time.

Belv. Faith Madam, I am sorry I can't play at her Game.

Fred. Pray leave your Intercession, and mind your own Affair, they'll better agree apart; he's a modest Sigher in Company, but alone no Woman escapes him.

Flor. Sure he does but raily——yet if it should be true——I'll tempt him farther——Believe me noble Stranger, I'm no common Mistress——and for a little proof on't——wear this Jewel——nay, take it, Sir, 'tis right, and Bills of Exchange may sometimes miscarry.

Belv. Madam, why am I chose out of all Mankind to be the Object of your Bounty?

Val. There's another civil Question askt.

Fred. Pox of's Modesty, it spoils his own Markets, and hinders mine.

Flor. Sir, from my Window I have often seen you; and Women of Quality have so few opportunities for Love, that we ought to lose none.

Fred. Ay, this is something! here's a Woman!——When shall I be blest with so much kindness from your fair Mouth?——Take the Jewel, Fool. [Aside to Belv.

Belv. You tempt me strangely, Madam, every way.

Flor. So, if I find him false, my whole Repose is gone.

(Aside.

Belv.

Belv. And but for a Vow I've made to a very fine Lady, this Goodness had subdu'd me.

Fred. Pox on't be kind, in pity to me be kind, for I am to thrive here but as you treat her Friend.

Hell. Tell me what did you in yonder House, and I'll unmasque.

Will. Yonder House——oh——I went to——a——to——why there's a Friend of mine lives there.

Hell. What a she, or a he Friend?

Will. A Man upon my Honour! a Man——A She Friend! no, no, Madam, you have done my Business, I thank you.

Hell. And was't your Man Friend, that had more Darts in's Eyes than Cupid carries in's whole Budget of Arrows?

Will. So——

Hell. Ah such a Bona Roba: to be in her Arms is lying in Fresco, all perfum'd Air about me——Was this your Man Friend too?

Will. So——

Hell. That gave you the He, and the She—Gold, that begets young Pleasures.

Will. Well, well, Madam, then you see there are Ladies in the World, that will not be cruel——here are Madam, there are——

Hell. And there be Men too as fine, wild, inconstant Fellows as your self, there be Captain, there be, if you go to that now——therefore I'm resolv'd——

Will. Oh!

Hell. To see your Face no more——

Will. Oh!

Hell. Till to morrow.

Will. Egad you frighted me.

Hell. Nor then neither, unless you'll swear never to see that Lady more.

Will. See her!——why! never to think of Woman-kind again?

Hell. Kneel, and swear. [Kneels, she gives him her hand.]

Will. I do, never to think—to see—to love—nor lie with any but thy self.

Hell. Kifs the Book.

Will.

Will. Oh, most religiously. [Kisses her Hand.

Hell. Now what a wicked Creature am I, to damn a proper Fellow.

Call. Madam, I'll stay no longer, 'tis e'en dark. [To Flor.

Flor. However, Sir, I'll leave this with you—that when I'm gone, you may repent the opportunity you have lost by your Modesty. [Gives him the Jewel. which is her Picture, and Ex. he gazes after her.

Will. 'Twill be an Age till to morrow,——and till then I will most impatiently expect you——Adieu, my dear pretty Angel. [Ex. all the Women.

Belv. Ha! Florinda's Picture! 'twas she her self——what a dull Dog was I? I would have given the World for one minute's discourse with her.——

Fred. This comes of your Modesty,——ah pox on your Vow, 'twas ten to one but we had lost the Jewel by't.

Belv. Willmore! the blessed'st Opportunity lost!—— Florinda, Friends, Florinda!

Will. Ah Rogue! such black Eyes, such a Face, such a Mouth, such Teeth,——and so much Wit!

Belv. All, all, and a thousand Charms besides.

Will. Why dost thou know her?

Belv. Know her! ay, ay, and a Pox take me with all my Heart for being modest.

Will. But hark ye, Friend of mine, are you my Rival? and have I been only beating the Bush all this while?

Belv. I understand thee not—I'm mad—see here——

Will. Ha! whose Picture is this?——'tis a fine Wench.

Ered. The Colonel's Mistress, Sir.

Will. Oh, oh, here——I thought it had been another Prize——come, come, a Bottle will set thee right again. [Gives the Picture back.

Belv. I am content to try, and by that time 'twill be late enough for our Design.

Will. Agreed.

*Love does all day the Soul's great Empire keep,
But Wine at night lulls the soft God asleep.*

S C E N E II. Lucetta's House.

Enter Blunt and Lucetta with a Light.

Luc. Now we are safe and free, no fears of the coming home of my old jealous Husband, which made me a little thoughtful when you came in first — but now Love is all the business of my Soul.

Blunt. I am transported — Pox on't, that I had but some fine things to say to her, such as Lovers use — I was a Fool not to learn of Fred. a little by Heart before I came — something I must say. — [Aside. 'Sheartlikins, sweet Soul, I am not us'd to complement, but I'm an honest Gentleman, and thy humble Servant.

Luc. I have nothing to pay for so great a Favour, but such a Love as cannot but be great, since at first sight of that sweet Face and Shape it made me your absolute Captive.

Blunt. Kind heart, how prettily she talks! Egad I'll shew her Husband a Spanish Trick; send him out of the World, and marry her: she's damnably in love with me, and will ne'er mind Settlements, and so there's that sav'd. [Aside.

Luc. Well, Sir, I'll go and undress me, and be with you instantly.

Blunt. Make haste then, for 'dsheartlikins, dear Soul, thou canst not guess at the pain of a longing Lover, when his Joys are drawn within the compass of a few minutes.

Luc. You speak my Sense, and I'll make haste to provide it. [Aside.

Blunt. 'Tis a rare Girl, and this one night's enjoyment with her will be worth all the days I ever past in Essex — Would she'd go with me into England, tho' to say truth, there's plenty of Whores there already. — But a pox on 'em they are such mercenary prodigal Whores, that they want such a one as this, that's free and generous, to give 'em good Examples: — Why, what a House she has! how rich and fine!

Sancho. Sir, my Lady has sent me to conduct you to her Chamber. [Ex. Sancho.

Blunt. Sir, I shall be proud to follow — Here's one of her Servants too: 'dsheartlikins, by his Garb and Gravity vity he might be a Justice of Peace in Essex, and is but a Pimp here. [Exit.]

The Scene changes to a Chamber with an Alcove-Bed in it, a Table, &c. Lucetta in Bed. Enter Sancho and Blunt, who takes the Candle of Sancho at the Door.

Sanch. Sir, my Commission reaches no farther.

Blunt. Sir, I'll excuse your Complement: — what, in Bed my sweet Mistress?

Luc. You see, I still out-do you in kindness.

Blunt. And thou shalt see what haste I'll make to quit scores—oh the luckiest Rogue! [Undresses himself.]

Luc. Shou'd you be false or cruel now!

Blunt. False, 'Sheartlikins, what dost thou take me for a Jew? an insensible Heathen, — A Pox of thy old jealous Husband: and he were dead, egad, sweet Soul, it shou'd be none of my fault, if I did not marry thee.

Luc. It never shou'd be mine.

Blunt. Good Soul, I'm the fortunatest Dog!

Luc. Are you not undrest yet?

Blunt. As much as my Impatience will permit

[Goes towards the Bed in his Shirt and Drawers.]

Luc. Hold, Sir, put out the Light, it may betray us else.

Blunt. Any thing, I need no other Light but that of thine Eyes! — 'Sheartlikins, there I think I had it. [Aside.]

— Why—why—where am I got? what not yet? — where are you sweetest? — ah, the Rogue's silent now — a pretty Love-trick this — how she'll laugh at me anon! — you need not, my dear Rogue! you need not! I'm all on a fire already — come, come, now call me in for pity — Sure I'm enchanted! I have been round the Chamber, and can find neither Woman, nor Bed — I lockt the Door, I'm sure she cannot go that way; or if she cou'd, the Bed cou'd not — Enough, enough, my pretty Wanton, do not carry the Jest too far — Ha, betray'd! Dogs! Rogues! Imps! help! help!

[Lights on a Trap, and is let down.]

Enter Lucetta, Philipppo, and Sancho with a Light.

Phil. Ha. ha, ha, he's dispatht finely.

Luc. Now, Sir, had I been coy, we had mist of this Booty.

Phil. Nay when I saw 'twas a substantial Fool, I was mollified; but when you deat upon a Serenading Coxcomb, upon a Face, fine Clothes, and a Lute, it makes me rage.

Luc. You know I never was guilty of that Folly, my dear Philippo, but with your self——But come let's see what we have got by this.

Phil. A rich Coat! —— Sword and Hat! —— these Breeches too —— are well lin'd! —— see here a Gold Watch! —— a Purse—— ha! Gold! —— at least two hundred Pistoles! a bunch of Diamond Rings; and one with the Family Arms! —— a Gold Box! —— with a Medal of his King! and his Lady Mother's Picture! —— these were sacred Reliques, believe me! —— see, the Wasteband of his Breeches have a Mine of Gold! —— Old Queen Bess's. We have a Quarrel to her ever since Eighty Eight, and may therefore justify the Theft, the Inquisition might have committed it.

Luc. See, a Bracelet of bow'd Gold, these his Sister ty'd about his Arm at parting —— but well —— for all this, I fear his being a Stranger may make a noise, and hinder our Trade with them hereafter.

Phil. That's our security; he is not only a Stranger to us, but to the Country too —— the Common-Shore into which he is descended, thou know'st, conducts him into another Street, which this Light will hinder him from ever finding again—— he knows neither your Name, nor the Street where your House is, nay, nor the way to his own Lodgings.

Luc. And art not thou an unmerciful Rogue, not to afford him one Night for all this? —— I should not have been such a Jew.

Phil. Blame me not Lucetta, to keep as much of thee as I can to my self——come, that thought makes me wanton, —— let's to Bed, —— Sancho, lock up these.

*This is the Fleece which Fools do bear,
Design'd for witty Men to share.* [Exeunt.

The Scene changes, and discovers Blunt, creeping out of a Common Shore, his Face, &c. all dirty.

Blunt. Oh Lord!

[Climbing up.

I am got out at last, and (which is a Miracle) without a Clue——and now to Damning and Cursing,——but if that would ease me, where shall I begin? with my Fortune, my self, or the Quean that cozen'd me ——What a Dog was I to believe in Women! Oh Coxcomb——ignorant conceited Coxcomb! to fancy she cou'd be enamour'd with my Person, at the first sight enamour'd——Oh, I'm a curf'd Puppy, 'tis plain, Fool was writ upon my Forehead, she perceiv'd it, —— saw the Essex Calf there—— for what Allurements could there be in this Countenance? which I can indure, because I'm acquainted with it —— Oh, dull silly Dog! to be thus sooth'd into a Cozening! Had I been drunk, I might fondly have credited the young Quean! —— but as I was in my right Wits, to be thus cheated, confirms I am a dull believing English Country Fop.——But my Comrades! Death and the Devil, there's the worst of all —— then a Ballad will be sung to Morrow on the Prado, to a lousy Tune of the enchanted Squire, and the annihilated Damsel —— But Fred. that Rogue, and the Colonel, will abuse me beyond all Christian patience——had she left me my Clothes, I have a Bill of Exchange at home wou'd have sav'd my Credit—— but now all hope is taken from me—— Well, I'll home (if I can find the way) with this Consolation, that I am not the first kind believing Coxcomb; but there are, Gallants, many such good Natures amongst ye.

And tho' you've better Arts to hide your Follies, Adshartlikins y'are all as errant Cullies.

SCENE, The Garden, in the Night.

Enter Florinda undress'd, with a Key, and a little Box.

Flor. Well, thus far I'm in my way to Happiness; I have got my self free from Callis; my Brother too, I find by yonder light, is got into his Cabinet, and thinks not of me: I have by good Fortune got the Key of the Garden Back-door,——I'll open it, to prevent Belvile's knocking, ing,—a little noise will now alarm my Brother. Now am I as fearful as a young Thief. [Unlocks the Door.] — Hark, — what noise is that? — Oh, 'twas the Wind that plaid amongst the Boughs.—Belvile stays long, methinks— it's time — stay— for fear of a surprize, I'll hide these Jewels in yonder Jeffamin.

[She goes to lay down the Box.]

Enter Willmore drunk.

Will. What the Devil is become of these Fellows, Belvile and Frederick? They promis'd to stay at the next corner for me, but who the Devil knows the corner of a full Moon?—Now—whereabouts am I?—hah— what have we here? a Garden!—a very convenient place to sleep in—hah—what has God sent us here?—a Female—by this light, a Woman; I'm a Dog if it be not a very Wench.—

Flor. He's come!—hah—who's there?

Will. Sweet Soul, let me salute thy Shoe-string.

Flor. 'Tis not my Belvile—good Heavens, I know him not.—Who are you, and from whence come you?

Will. Prithee—prithée Child—not so many hard Questions—let it suffice I am here, Child—Come, come kiss me.

Flor. Good Gods! what luck is mine?

Will. Only good luck Child, parlous good luck.—Come hither,—'tis a delicate shining Wench,—by this Hand she's perfum'd, and smells like any Nofegay.—Prithee dear Soul, let's not play the Fool, and lose time, —precious time—for as Gad shall save me, I'm as honest a Fellow as breathes, tho I am a little disguis'd at present.—Come, I say,—why, thou may'st be free with me, I'll be very secret. I'll not boast who 'twas oblig'd me, not I—for hang me if I know thy Name.

Flor. Heavens! what a filthy Beast is this!

Will. I am so, and thou oughst the sooner to lie with me for that reason,—for look you Child, there will be no Sin in't, because 'twas neither design'd nor premeditated; 'tis pure Accident on both sides—that's a certain thing now—Indeed should I make love to you, and you vow Fidelity—and swear and lye till you believ'd
and

and yielded—Thou art therefore (as thou art a good Christian) oblig'd in Conscience to deny me nothing. Now—come, be kind, without any more idle prating.

Flor. Oh, I am ruin'd—wicked Man, unband me.

Will. Wicked! Egad Child, a Judge, were he young and vigorous, and saw those Eyes of thine, would know 'twas they gave the first blow—the first provocation.—Come, prithee let's lose no time, I say—this is a fine convenient place.

Flor. Sir, let me go, I conjure you, or I'll call out.

Will. Ay, ay, you were best to call Witness, to see how finely you treat me—do.—

Flor. I'll cry Murder, Rape, or any thing, if you do not instantly let me go.

Will. A Rape! Come, come, you lye you Baggage, you lye: What, I'll warrant you would fain have the World believe now that you are not so forward as I. No, not you,—why at this time of Night was your Cobweb-door set open, dear Spider—but to catch Flies?—Hah come—or I shall be damnably angry.—Why what a Coil is here.—

Flor. Sir, can you think—

Will. That you'd do it for nothing? oh, oh, I find what you'd be at—look here, here's a Pistole for you—here's a work indeed—here—take it, I say.—

Flor. For Heaven's sake, Sir, as you're a Gentleman—

Will. So—now—the would be wheedling me for more—what, you will not take it then—you're resolv'd you will not.—Come, come, take it, or I'll put it up again; for, look ye, I never give more.—Why, how now Mistress, are you so high i'th' Mouth, a Pistole won't down with you?—hah—why, what a work's here—in good time—come, no struggling, be gone—But an y'are good at a dumb Wrestle, I'm for ye,—look ye,—I'm for ye.— [She struggles with him.

Enter Belville and Frederick.

Bel. The Door is open, a Pox of this mad Fellow, I'm angry that we've lost him, I durst have sworn he had follow'd us.

Fred. But you were so hasty, Colonel, to be gone.

Flor.

Flor. Help, help,——Murder!——help——oh, I'm ruin'd.

Belv. Ha, sure that's Florinda's Voice.

[Comes up to them.

——A Man! Villain, let go that Lady. [A noise.

[Will. turns and draws, Fred. interposes.

Flor. Belvile! Heavens! my Brother too is coming, and 'twill be impossible to escape.——Belvile, I conjure you to walk under my Chamber-window, from whence I'll give you some instructions what to do——This rude Man has undone us.

[Exit.

Will. Belvile!

Enter Pedro, Stephano, and other Servants with Lights.

Ped. I'm betray'd; run Stephano, and see if Florinda be safe.

[Exit Steph.

So whoe'er they be, all is not well, I'll to Florinda's Chamber. [They fight, and Pedro's Party beats 'em out; going out, meets Stephano.

Steph. You need not, Sir, the poor Lady's fast asleep, and thinks no harm: I wou'd not awake her Sir, for fear of frightening her with your danger.

Ped. I'm glad she's there——Rascals, how came the Garden-Door open?

Steph. That Question comes too late, Sir, some of my Fellow-Servants Masquerading I'll warrant.

Ped. Masquerading! a leud Custom to debauch our Youth——there's something more in this than I imagine.

[Exeunt.

SCENE changes to the Street.

Enter Belvile in Rage, Fred. holding him, and Willmore. melancholy.

Will. Why, how the Devil shou'd I know Florinda?

Belv. Ah plague of your ignorance! if it had not been Florinda, must you be a Beast?——a Brute, a senseless Swine?

Will. Well, Sir, you see I am endu'd with Patience——I can bear——tho egad y're very free with me methinks.——I was in good hopes the Quarrel wou'd have been on my side, for so uncivilly interrupting me.

Belv. Peace Brute, whilst thou'rt safe——oh, I'm distracted.

Will. Nay, nay, I'm an unlucky Dog, that's certain.

Belv. Ah curse upon the Star that rul'd my Birth! or whatsoever other Influence that makes me still so wretched.

Will. Thou break'st my Heart with these Complaints; there is no Star in fault, no Influence but Sack, the cursed Sack I drank.

Fred. Why, how the Devil came you so drunk?

Will. Why, how the Devil came you so sober?

Belv. A curse upon his thin Skull, he was always before-hand that way.

Fred. Prithee, dear Colonel, forgive him, he's sorry for his fault.

Belv. He's always so after he has done a mischief——a plague on all such Brutes.

Will. By this Light I took her for an errant Harlot.

Belv. Damn your debauch'd Opinion: tell me Sot, hadst thou so much sense and light about thee to distinguish her to be a Woman, and could'st not see something about her Face and Person, to strike an awful Reverence into thy Soul?

Will. Faith no, I consider'd her as mere a Woman as I cou'd wish.

Belv. 'Sdeath I have no patience——draw, or I'll kill you.

Will. Let that alone till to morrow, and if I set not all right again, use your Pleasure.

Belv. To morrow, damn it.

The spiteful Light will lead me to no happiness.

To morrow is Antonio's, and perhaps

Guides him to my undoing;——oh that I could meet

This Rival, this powerful Fortunate.

Will. What then?

Belv. Let thy own Reason, or my Rage instruct thee.

Will. I shall be finely inform'd then, no doubt; hear me Colonel——hear me——shew me the Man and I'll do his Business.

Belv. I know him no more than thou, or if I did, I should not need thy aid.

Will.

Will. This you say is Angelica's House, I promis'd the kind Baggage to lie with her to Night. [Offers to go in.
Enter Antonio and his Page. Ant. knocks on the Hilt of his Sword.

Ant. You paid the thousand Crowns I directed?

Page. To the Lady's old Woman, Sir, I did.

Will. Who the Devil have we here?

Belv. I'll now plant my self under Florinda's Window, and if I find no comfort there, I'll die.

[Ex. Bely. and Fred.

Enter Moretta.

Moret. Page!

Will. How is this, a Piccaroon going to board my Frigate! here's one Chase-Gun for you.

[Drawing his Sword, justles Ant. who turns and draws. They fight, Ant. falls.

Moret. Oh, bless us, we are all undone!

[Runs in, and shuts the Door.

[Belvile returns at the noise of fighting.

Belv. Ha, the mad Rogue's engag'd in some unlucky Adventure again.

Enter two or three Masqueraders.

Masq. Ha, a Man kill'd!

Will. How! a Man kill'd! then I'll go home to sleep.

[Puts up, and reels out. Ex. Masquers another way.

Belv. Who shou'd it be! pray Heaven the Rogue is safe, for all my Quarrel to him. [As Belvile is groping about, enter an Officer and six Soldiers.

Sold. Who's there?

Offic. So, here's one dispatch——secure the Murderer.

Belv. Do not mistake my Charity for Murder:

I came to his Assistance. [Soldiers seize on Belvile.

Offic. That shall be tried, Sir.—St. Fago, Swords drawn in the Carnival time!

[Goes to Antonio.

Ant. Thy Hand prithee,

Offic. Ha, Don Antonio! look well to the Villain there.——How is't, Sir?

Ant. I'm hurt.

Belv. Has my Humanity made me a Criminal?

Offic. Away with him.

Belv. What a curst Chance is this!

[Ex. Soldiers with Belv.

Ant. This is the Man that has set upon me twice—carry him to my Apartment till you have further Orders from me.

[To the Officer. Ex. Ant. led.

ACT IV. SCENE I. A fine Room.

Discovers Belvile, as by Dark alone.

Belv. WHEN shall I be weary of railing on Fortune, who is resolv'd never to turn with Smiles upon me?—Two such Defeats in one Night—none but the Devil and that mad Rogue could have contriv'd to have plagued me with—I am here a Prisoner—but where?—Heaven knows—and if there be Murder done, I can soon decide the Fate of a Stranger in a Nation without Mercy—Yet this is nothing to the Torture my Soul bows with, when I think of losing my fair, my dear Florinda.—Hark—my Door opens—a Light—a Man—and seems of Quality—arm'd too.—Now shall I die like a Dog without defence.

Enter Antonio in a Night-Gown, with a Light; his Arm in a Scarf, and a Sword under his Arm: He sets the Candle on the Table.

Ant. Sir, I come to know what Injuries I have done you, that could provoke you to so mean an Action, as to attack me basely, without allowing time for my Defence.

Belv. Sir, for a Man in my Circumstances to plead Innocence, would look like Fear—but view me well, and you will find no marks of a Coward on me, nor any thing that betrays that Brutality you accuse me of.

Ant. In vain, Sir, you impose upon my Sense, You are not only he who drew on me last Night, But yesterday before the same House, that of Angelica. Yet there is something in your Face and Mein—

Belv.

Belv. I own I fought to day in the defence of a Friend of mine, with whom you (if you're the same) and your Party were first engag'd.

Perhaps you think this Crime enough to kill me, But if you do, I cannot fear you'll do it basely.

Ant. No, Sir, I'll make you fit for a Defence with this. [Gives him the Sword.]

Belv. This Gallantry surprizes me—nor know I how to use this Present, Sir, against a Man so brave.

Ant. You shall not need;
For know, I come to snatch you from a Danger That is decreed against you;
Perhaps your Life, or long Imprisonment:
And 'twas with so much Courage you offended,
I cannot see you punisht.

Belv. How shall I pay this Generosity?

Ant. It had been safer to have kill'd another, Than have attempted me:
To shew your Danger, Sir, I'll let you know my Quality;
And 'tis the Vice-Roy's Son whom you have wounded.

Belv. The Vice-Roy's Son!
Death and Confusion! was this Plague reserved
To compleat all the rest?—oblig'd by him!
The Man of all the World I wou'd destroy. [Aside.]

Ant. You seem disorder'd, Sir.

Belv. Yes, trust me, Sir, I am, and 'tis with pain
That Man receives such Bounties,
Who wants the pow'r to pay 'em back again.

Ant. To gallant Spirits 'tis indeed uneasy;
—But you may quickly over-pay me, Sir.

Belv. Then I am well—kind Heaven! but set us even,
That I may fight with him, and keep my Honour safe. [Aside.]

—Oh, I'm impatient, Sir, to be discounting
The mighty Debt I owe you; command me quickly—

Ant. I have a Quarrel with a Rival, Sir,
About the Maid we love.

Belv. Death, 'tis Florinda he means—
That Thought destroys my Reason, and I shall kill him—

[Aside.]
Ant.

Ant. My Rival, Sir,
Is one has all the Virtues Man can boast of.

Belv. Death! who shou'd this be? [Aside.]

Ant. He challeng'd me to meet him on the Molo,
As soon as Day appear'd; but last Night's quarrel
Has made my Arm unfit to guide a Sword.

Belv. I apprehend you, Sir, you'd have me kill the Man
That lays a claim to the Maid you speak of.

—I'll do't— I'll fly to do it.

Ant. Sir, do you know her?

Belv. —No, Sir, but 'tis enough she is admired by you.

Ant. Sir, I shall rob you of the Glory on't,
For you must fight under my Name and Dress.

Belv. That Opinion must be strangely obliging that makes you think I can personate the brave Antonio, whom I can but strive to imitate.

Ant. You say too much to my Advantage.
Come, Sir, the Day appears that calls you forth.

Within, Sir, is the Habit. [Exit Antonio.]

Belv. Fantastick Fortune, thou deceitful Light,
That cheats the wearied Traveller by Night,
Tho on a Precipice each step you tread,
I am resolv'd to follow where you lead. [Exit.]

Enter Florinda and Callis in Masques, with Stephano.

Flor. I'm dying with my fears; Belvile's not coming,
As I expected, underneath my Window,
Makes me believe that all those Fears are true. [Aside.]

—Canst thou not tell with whom my Brother fights?

Steph. No Madam, they were both in Masquerade, I as by when they challeng'd one another, and they had wided the Quarrel then, but were prevented by some de valiers; which made 'em put it off till now—but I am
Cae 'tis about you they fight.

Flor. Nay then 'tis with Belvile, for what other Lover have I that dares fight for me, except Antonio? and he is too much in favour with my Brother—If it be he, for whom shall I direct my Prayers to Heaven?

Steph.

Steph. Madam, I must leave you; for if my Master see me, I shall be hang'd for being your Conductor.—I escap'd narrowly for the Excuse I made for you last night i'th' Garden.

Flor. And I'll reward thee for't——prihee no more.
[Exit Steph.]

Enter Don Pedro in his Masque Habit.

Pedro. Antonio's late to day, the place will fill, and we may be prevented.
[Walks about.]

Flor. Antonio! sure I heard amiss.
[Aside.]

Pedro. But who would not excuse a happy Lover,
When soft fair Arms confine the yielding Neck;
And the kind Whisper languishingly breathes,
Must you be gone so soon?
Sure I had dwelt for ever on her Bosom.

——But stay, he's here.

Enter Belvile dress'd in Antonio's Clothes.

Flor. 'Tis not Belvile, half my Fears are vanish.

Pedro. Antonio! ——

Belv. This must be he.
[Aside.]

You're early, Sir,—I do not use to be out-done this way.

Pedro. The wretched, Sir, are watchful, and 'tis enough
You have the advantage of me in Angelica.

Belv. Angelica! or I've mistook my Man! Or else
Antonio,

Can he forget his Interest in Florinda,
And fight for common Prize?
[Aside.]

Pedro. Come, Sir, you know our terms——

Belv. By Heaven, not I.
[Aside.]

—No talking, I am ready, Sir.
[Offers to fight. Flor. runs in.]

Flor. Oh, hold! who'er you be, I do conjure you hold.
[To Belv.]

Pedro. Florinda!

Belv. Florinda imploring for my Rival!

Pedro. Away, this Kindness is unseasonable.

[Puts her by, they fight; she runs in just as Belv. disarms Pedro.]

Flor. Who are you, Sir, that dare deny my Prayers?

Belv. Thy Prayers destroy him; if thou wouldst preserve him,
Do that thou'rt unacquainted with, and curse him.

[She holds him.]

Flor. By all you hold most dear, by her you love,
I do conjure you, touch him not.

Belv. By her I love!

See——I obey——and at your Feet resign
The useless Trophy of my Victory.

[Lays his Sword at her Feet.]

Pedro. Antonio, you've done enough to prove you love Florinda.

Belv. Love Florinda!

Does Heaven love Adoration, Pray'r, or Penitence?
Love her! here Sir,——your Sword again.

[Snatches up the Sword, and gives it him.]

Upon this Truth I'll fight my Life away.

Pedro. No, you've redeem'd my Sister, and my Friendship!

Belv. Don Pedro!

[He gives him Flor. and pulls off his Vizard to shew his Face, and puts it on again.]

Pedro. Can you resign your Claims to other Women,
And give your Heart intirely to Florinda?

Belv. Intire, as dying Saints Confessions are.

I can delay my happiness no longer.

This minute let me make Florinda mine:

Pedro. This minute let it be——no time so proper,
This Night my Father will arrive from Rome,
And possibly may hinder what we propose.

Flor. Oh Heavens! this Minute!

[Enter Masqueraders, and pass over.]

Belv. Oh, do not ruin me!

Pedro. The place begins to fill; and that we may not be observ'd, do you walk off to St. Peter's Church, where I will meet you, and conclude your Happiness.

Belv. I'll meet you there——if there be no more Saints Churches in Naples. [Aside.]

Flor. Oh stay, Sir, and recall your hasty Doom:
Alas I have not yet prepar'd my Heart
To entertain so strange a Guest.

Pedro.

Pedro. Away, this silly Modesty is assum'd too late.

Belv. Heaven, Madam! what do you do?

Flor. Do! despise the Man that lays a Tyrant's Claim
To what he ought to conquer by Submission.

Belv. You do not know me—move a little this way.
[Draws her aside.]

Flor. Yes, you may even force me to the Altar,
But not the holy Man that offers there
Shall force me to be thine.

[Pedro talks to Callis this while.]

Belv. Oh do not lose so blest an opportunity!
See——'tis your Belvile——not Antonio,
Whom your mistaken Scorn and Anger ruins.

[Pulls off his Vizard.]

Flor. Belvile!

Where was my Soul it cou'd not meet thy Voice,
And take this knowledge in?

[As they are talking, enter Willmore finely dress'd, and Frederick.]

Will. No Intelligence! no News of Belvile yet—well
I am the most unlucky Rascal in Nature—ha!—am I deceiv'd—or is it he—look.

Fred. —'Tis he—my dear Belvile.

[Vizard falls out on's hand, runs and embraces him.]

Belv. Hell and Confusion seize thee!

Pedro. Ha! Belvile! I beg your Pardon, Sir.

[Takes Flor. from him.]

Belv. Nay, touch her not, she's mine by Conquest, Sir.
I won her by my Sword.

Will. Did'st thou so——and egad Child we'll keep her by the Sword. [Draws on Pedro, Belv. goes between.]

Belv. Stand off.

Thou'rt so profanely leud, so curst by Heaven,
All Quarrels thou espoucest must be fatal.

Will. Nay, an you be so hot, my Valour's coy, and shall be courted when you want it next.

[Puts up his Sword.]

Belv. You know I ought to claim a Victor's Right,
But you're the Brother to divine Florinda,

[To Pedro.]

To whom I'm such a Slave——to purchase her,
I durst not hurt the Man she holds so dear.

Pedro. 'Twas by Antonio's, not by Belville's Sword,
This Question should have been decided, Sir :

I must confess much to your Bravery's due,
Both now, and when I met you last in Arms.

But I am nicely punctual in my word,
As Men of Honour ought, and beg your Pardon.

——For this Mistake another Time shall clear.

——This was some Plot between you and Belville :

But I'll prevent you. [Aside to Flor. as they are going out.

[Belv. looks after her, and begins to walk up and down in a Rage.

Will. Do not be modest now, and lose the Woman :
but if we shall fetch her back, so——

Belv. Do not speak to me.

Will. Not speak to you !——Egad I'll speak to you, and will be answered too.

Belv. Will you, Sir ?

Will. I know I've done some mischief, but I'm so dull a Puppy, that I am the Son of a Whore, if I know how, or where——prithee inform my Understanding.——

Belv. Leave me I say, and leave me instantly.

Will. I will not leave you in this humour, nor till I know my Crime.

Belv. Death, I'll tell you, Sir ——

[*Draws and runs at Will. he runs out ; Belv.
after him, Fred. interposes.*

Enter Angelica, Moretta, and Sebastian.

Ang. Ha——Sebastian——Is not that Willmore ?
haste, haste, and bring him back.

Fred. The Colonel's mad——I never saw him thus before; I'll after 'em, lest he do some mischief, for I am sure Willmore will not draw on him. [Exit.

Ang. I am all Rage ! my first desires defeated for one, for ought he knows, that has no other Merit than her Quality,——her being Don Pedro's Sister——He loves her :

I know 'tis so ——dull, dull, insensible——

He will not see me now tho oft invited ;

And broke his Word last night ——false perjurd Man ?

——He

—He that but yesterday fought for my Favours,
And would have made his Life a Sacrifice
To've gain'd one Night with me,
Must now be hired and courted to my Arms.

Moret. I told you what wou'd come on't, but Moretta's an old doating Fool——Why did you give him five hundred Crowns, but to set himself out for other Lovers?
You shou'd have kept him poor, if you had meant to have had any good from him.

Ang. Oh, name not such mean Trifles.——Had I given him all my Youth has earn'd from Sin,
I had not lost a Thought nor Sigh upon't.
But I have given him my eternal Rest,
My whole Repose, my future Joys, my Heart,
My Virgin Heart. Moretta! oh 'tis gone!

Moret. Curse on him, here he comes;
How fine she has made him too!

Enter Willmore and Sebast. Ang. turns and walks away.

Will. How now, turn'd Shadow?
Fly when I pursue, and follow when I fly!

Stay gentle Shadow of my Dove,

[Sings.

And tell me e'er I go,

Whether the Substance may not prove

A fleeting Thing like you.

There's a soft kind Look remaining yet.

[As she turns she looks on him.

Ang. Well, Sir, you may be gay; all Happiness, all Joys pursue you still, Fortune's your Slave, and gives you every hour choice of new Hearts and Beauties, till you are cloy'd with the repeated Bliss, which others vainly languish for——But know, false Man, that I shall be re-veng'd.

[Turns away in a Rage.

Will. So, 'gad, there are of those faint-hearted Lovers, whom such a sharp Lesson next their Hearts would make as impotent as Fourscore——pox o' this whining——my Bus'ness is to laugh and love—a pox on't; I hate your sullen Lover, a Man shall lose as much time to put you in Humour now, as would serve to gain a new Woman.

Ang.

Ang. I scorn to cool that Fire I cannot raise,
Or do the Drudgery of your virtuous Mistress.

Will. A virtuous Mistress! Death, what a thing thou hast found out for me! why what the Devil should I do with a virtuous Woman?—a sort of ill-natur'd Creatures, that take a Pride to torment a Lover. Virtue is but an Infirmity in Women, a Disease that renders even the handsom ungrateful; whilst the ill-favour'd, for want of Sollicitations and Addresse, only fancy themselves so.— I have lain with a Woman of Quality, who has all the while been railing at Whores.

Ang. I will not answer for your Mistress's Virtue,
Tho she be young enough to know no Guilt:
And I could wish you would persuade my Heart,
'Twas the two hundred thousand Crowns you courted.

Will. Two hundred thousand Crowns! what Story's this?—what Trick?—what Woman?—ha.

Ang. How strange you make it! have you forgot the Creature you entertain'd on the Piazza last night?

Will. Ha, my Gipsy worth two hundred thousand Crowns!—oh how I long to be with her——pox, I knew she was of Quality. [Aside.

Ang. False Man, I see my Ruin in thy Face.
How many Vows you breath'd upon my Bosom,
Never to be unjust——have you forgot so soon?

Will. Faith no, I was just coming to repeat 'em—— but here's a Humour indeed——would make a Man a Saint——Wou'd she'd be angry enough to leave me, and command me not to wait on her. [Aside.

Enter Hellena, drest in Man's Clothes.

Hell. This must be Angelica, I know it by her mump-ing Matron here——Ay, ay, 'tis she: my mad Captain's with her too, for all his swearing——how this inconstant Humour makes me love him:——pray, good grave Gentlewoman, is not this Angelica?

Moret. My too young Sir, it is——I hope 'tis one from Don Antonio. [Goes to Angelica.

Hell. Well, something I'll do to vex him for this. [Aside.

Ang. I will not speak with him; am I in humour to receive a Lover?

Will.

Will. Not speak with him ! why, I'll be gone—— and wait your idler minutes——Can I shew less Obedience to the thing I love so fondly ? [Offers to go.

Ang. A fine Excuse this——stay——

Will. And hinder your Advantage : should I repay your Bounties so ungratefully ?

Ang. Come hither, Boy,——that I may let you see
How much above the Advantages you name
I prize one Minute's Joy with you.

Will. Oh, you destroy me with this Endearment.

[Impatient to be gone.]
——Death, how shall I get away ?——Madam, 'twill not be fit I should be seen with you——besides, it will not be convenient—and I've a Friend—that's dangerously sick.

Ang. I see you're impatient——yet you shall stay.

Will. And miss my Assignment with my Gipsy.

[Aside, and walks about impatiently.]

Hell. Madam, [Moretta brings Hellena, who addresses
You'] hardly pardon my Intrusion, (her self to Angelica.)
When you shall know my Business ;
And I'm too young to tell my Tale with Art :
But there must be a wondrous store of Goodness
Where so much Beauty dwells.

Ang. A pretty Advocate, whoever sent thee,
——Prithce proceed ——Nay, Sir, you shall not go.

[To Will. who is stealing off.]

Will. Then shall I lose my dear Gipsy for ever.

——Pox on't, she stays me out of spite. [Aside.]

Hell. I am related to a Lady, Madam,
Young, rich, and nobly born, but has the fate
To be in love with a young English Gentleman.
Strangely she loves him, at first sight she lov'd him,
But did adore him when she heard him speak ;
For he, she said, had Charms in every word,
That fail'd not to surprize, to wound, and conquer——

Will. Ha, Egad I hope this concerns me. [Aside.]

Ang. 'Tis my false Man, he means,——wou'd he were gone. This Praise will raise his Pride and ruin me.—— Well, since you are so impatient to be gone, I will release you, Sir.

[To Will,
Will.]

Will. Nay, then I'm sure 'twas me he spoke of, this cannot be the Effects of Kindness in her. [Aside.]

—No, Madam, I've consider'd better on't,
And will not give your cause of Jealousy.

Ang. But, Sir, I've _____business, that _____

Will. This shall not do, I know 'tis but to try me.

Ang. Well, to your Story, Boy,—tho' 'twill undo me.

[Aside.]

Hell. With this Addition to his other Beauties,
He won her unresisting tender Heart,
He vow'd and sigh'd, and swore he lov'd her dearly;
And she believ'd the cunning Flatterer,
And thought her self the happiest Maid alive:
To day was the appointed time by both,
To consummate their Bliss;
The Virgin, Altar, and the Priest were dress'd,
And whilst she languisht for the expected Bridegroom,
She heard, he paid his broken Vows to you.

Will. So, this is some dear Rogue that's in love with me, and this way lets me know it; or if it be not me, she means some one whose place I may supply. [Aside.]

Ang. Now I perceive the cause of thy Impatience to be gone, and all the business of this glorious Dress.

Will. Damn the young Prater, I know not what he means.

Hell. Madam,
In your fair Eyes I read too much concern
To tell my farther Business.

Ang. Prithee sweet Youth talk on, thou may'st perhaps Raise here a Storm that may undo my Passion,
And then I'll grant thee any thing.

Hell. Madam, 'tis to intreat you, (oh unreasonable!)
You wou'd not see this Stranger;
For if you do, the vows you are undone,
Tho' Nature never made a Man so excellent;
And sure he'ad been a God, but for Inconstancy.

Will. Ah, Rogue, how finely he's instructed! [Aside.]
—'Tis plain some Woman that has seen me en passant.

Ang. Oh, I shall burst with Jealousy! do you know the Man you speak of? _____

Hell.

Hell. Yes, Madam, he us'd to be in Buff and Scarlet.

Ang. Thou, false as Hell, what canst thou say to this?

[To Will.

Will. By Heaven——

Ang. Hold, do not damn thy self——

Hell. Nor hope to be believ'd. [He walks about, they follow.

Ang. Oh, perjur'd Man!

Is't thus you pay my generous Passion back?

Hell. Why wou'd you, Sir, abuse my Lady's Faith?

Ang. And use me so inhumanly?

Hell. A Maid so young, so innocent——

Will. Ah, young Devil!

Ang. Dost thou not know thy Life is in my Power?

Hell. Or think my Lady cannot be reveng'd?

Will. So, so, the Storm comes finely on. [Aside.

Ang. Now thou art silent, Guilt has struck thee dumb.

Oh, hadst thou still been so, I'd liv'd in safety.

[She turns away and weeps.

Will. Sweetheart, the Lady's Name and House—— quickly: I'm impatient to be with her.——

[Aside to Hellena, looks towards Angel. to watch her turning; and as she comes towards them, he meets her.

Hell. So now is he for another Woman. [Aside.

Will. The impudent'st young thing in Nature!

I cannot persuade him out of his Error, Madam.

Ang. I know he's in the right,—yet thou'st a Tongue
That wou'd persuade him to deny his Faith. [In Rage walks away.

Will. Her Name, her Name, dear Boy— [Said softly to Hell. Have you forgot it, Sir? Hell.

Will. Oh, I perceive he's not to know I am a Stranger to his Lady. [Aside.

—Yes, yes, I do know—but—I have forgot the—— [Angel. turns,

——By Heaven, such early Confidence I never saw.

Ang. Did I not charge you with this Mistress, Sir?

Which you denied, tho I beheld your Perjury.

This little Generosity of thine has render'd back my Heart.

[Walks away.

Will.

Will. So, you have made sweet work here, my little Mischief; Look your Lady be kind and good-natur'd now, or I shall have but a curst Bargain on't.

[Ang. turns towards them.

—The Rogue's bred up to Mischief,
Art thou so great a Fool to credit him?

Ang. Yes, I do; and you in vain impose upon me.

—Come hither, Boy—Is not this he you speak of?

Hell. I think—it is; I cannot swear, but I vow he has just such another lying Lover's look.

[Hell. looks in his Face, he gazes on her.

Will. Hah! do not I know that Face?—

By Heaven, my little Gipsy! what a dull Dog was I?

Had I but lookt that way, I'd known her.

Are all my hopes of a new Woman banisht? [Aside.

—Egad, if I don't fit thee for this, hang me.

—Madam, I have found out the Plot.

Hell. Oh Lord, what does he say? am I discover'd now?

Will. Do you see this young Spark here?

Hell. He'll tell her who I am.

Will. Who do you think this is?

Hell. Ay, ay, he does know me.—Nay, dear Captain, I'm undone if you discover me.

Will. Nay, nay, no cogging; she shall know what a precious Mistress I have.

Hell. Will you be such a Devil?

Will. Nay, nay, I'll teach you to spoil sport you will not make.—This small Ambassador comes not from a Person of Quality, as you imagine, and he says; but from a very errant Gipsy, the talkingst, pratingst, canningst little Animal thou ever saw'st.

Ang. What news you tell me! that's the thing I mean.

Hell. Wou'd I were well off the place.—If ever I go a Captain-hunting again.— [Aside.

Will. Mean that thing? that Gipsy thing? thou mayst as well be jealous of thy Monkey, or Parrot as her: a German Motion were worth a dozen of her, and a Dream were a better Enjoyment, a Creature of a Constitution fitter for Heaven than Man.

Hell.

Hell. Tho I'm sure he lyes, yet this vexes me. [Aside.

Ang. You are mistaken, she's a Spanish Woman made up of no such dull Materials.

Will. Materials! Egad, an she be made of any that will either dispense, or admit of Love, I'll be bound to continuance.

Hell. Unreasonable Man, do you think so?

[Aside to him.

Will. You may Return, my little Brazen Head, and tell your Lady, that till she be handsom enough to be belov'd, or I dull enough to be religious, there will be small hopes of me.

Ang. Did you not promise then to marry her?

Will. Not I by Heaven.

Ang. You cannot undeceive my fears and torments, till you have vow'd you will not marry her.

Hell. If he swears that, he'll be reveng'd on me indeed for all my Rogueries.

Ang. I know what Arguments you'll bring against me, Fortune and Honour.

Will. Honour! I tell you, I hate it in your Sex; and those that fancy themselves possess'd of that Foppery, are the most impertinently troublesom of all Woman-kind, and will transgress nine Commandments to keep one; and to satisfy your Jealousy I swear——

Hell. Oh, no swearing, dear Captain—— [Aside to him.

Will. If it were possible I should ever be inclin'd to marry, it shou'd be some kind young Sinner, one that has Generosity enough to give a favour handsomely to one that can ask it discreetly, one that Whas it enough to manage an Intrigue of Love——oh, how civil such a Wench is, to a Man that does her the Honour to marry her.

Ang. By Heaven there's no Faith in any thing he says.

Enter Sebastian.

Sebast. Madam, Don Antonio——

Ang. Come hither.

Hell. Ha, Antonio! he may be coming hither, and he'll certainly discover me, I'll therefore retire without a Ceremony. [Exit Hellena.

Ang. I'll see him, get my Coach ready.

Sebast.

Sebast. It waits you, Madam.

Will. This is lucky: what, Madam, now I may be gone and leave you to the enjoyment of my Rival?

Ang. Dull Man, that canst not see how ill, how poor That false dissimulation looks——Be gone, And never let me see thy cozening Face again, Lest I relapse and kill thee.

Will. Yes, you can spare me now, ——farewell till you are in better Humour——I'm glad of this release—— Now for my Gipsy:

For tho' to worse we change, yet still we find New Joys, new Charms, in a new Miss that's kind.

[Ex. Will.

Ang. He's gone, and in this Ague of my Soul The shivering Fit returns; Oh with what willing haste he took his leave, As if the long'd for Minute were arriv'd, Of some blest Assignation.

In vain I have consulted all my Charms, In vain this Beauty priz'd, in vain believ'd My Eyes cou'd kindle any lasting Fires. I had forgot my Name, my Infamy, And the Reproach that Honour lays on those That dare pretend a sober passion here. Nice Reputation, tho' it leave behind More Virtues than inhabit where that dwells, Yet that once gone, those Virtues shine no more.

——Then since I am not fit to be belov'd, I am resolv'd to think on a Revenge On him that sooth'd me thus to my undoing. [Exeunt.

Enter Florinda and Valeria in Habits different from what they have been seen in.

Flor. We're happily escap'd, yet I tremble still.

Val. A Lover and fear! why, I am but half a one, and yet I have Courage for any Attempt. Would Hellena were here. I wou'd fain have had her as deep in this Mischief as we, she'll fare but ill else I doubt.

Flor.

Flor. She pretended a Visit to the Augustine Nuns, but I believe some other design carried her out, pray Heavens we light on her.

—Prithee what didst do with Callis?

Val. When I saw no Reason wou'd do good on her, I follow'd her into the Wardrobe, and as she was looking for something in a great Chest, I tumbled her in by the Heels, snatcht the Key of the Apartment where you were confin'd, lock ther in, and left her bauling for help.

Flor. 'Tis well you resolve to follow my Fortunes, for thou darest never appear at home again after such an Action.

Val. That's according as the young Stranger and I shall agree.—But to our business—I deliver'd your Letter, your Note to Belvile, when I got out under pretence of going to Mafs, I found him at his Lodging, and believe me it came seasonably; for never was Man in so desperate a Condition. I told him of your Resolution of making your escape to day, if your Brother would be absent long enough to permit you; if not, die rather than be Antonio's.

Flor. Thou shou'dst have told him I was confin'd to my Chamber upon my Brother's suspicion, that the Business on the Mole was a Plot laid between him and I.

Val. I said all this, and told him your Brother was now gone to his Devotion, and he resolves to visit every Church till he find him; and not only undeceive him in that, but cares him so as shall delay his return home.

Flor. Oh Heavens! he's here, and Belvile with him too.

[They put on their Vizards.]

Eeter Don Pedro, Belvile, Willmore; Belvile and Don Pedro seeming in serious Discourse.

Val. Walk boldly by them, I'll come at a distance, lest he suspect us.

[She walks by them, and looks back on them.]

Will. Ha! Woman! and of an excellen: Mien!

Ped. She throws a kind look back on you.

Will. Death, 'tis a likely Wench, and that kind look shall not be cast away — I'll follow her.

Belv.

Belv. Prithee do not,

Will. Do not! By Heavens to the Antipodes, with such an Invitation. [She goes out, and Will. follows her.]

Belv. 'Tis a mad Fellow for a Wench.

Enter Fred.

Fred. Oh Colonel, such News!

Belv. Prithee what?

Fred. News that will make you laugh in spite of Fortune.

Belv. What, Blunt has had some damn'd Trick put upon him, cheated, bang'd, or clapt?

Fred. Cheated, Sir, rarely cheated of all but his Shirt and Drawers; the unconscionable Whore too turn'd him out before Consummation, so that traversing the Streets at Midnight, the Watch found him in this Fresco, and conducted him home: By Heaven 'tis such a slight, and yet I durst as well have been hang'd as laugh at him, or pity him; he beats all that do but ask him a Question, and is in such an Humour——

Ped. Who is't has met with this ill usage, Sir?

Belv. A Friend of ours, whom you must see for Mirth's sake. I'll employ him to give Florinda time for an escape. [Aside.]

Ped. What is he?

Belv. A young Countryman of ours, one that has been educated at so plentiful a rate, he yet ne'er knew the want of Money, and 'twill be a great Jest to see how simply he'll look without it. For my part I'll lend him none, and Rogue knows not how to put on a borrowing Face, and ask first. I'll let him see how good 'tis to play our parts whilst I play his—Prithee Fred. do you go home and keep him in that posture till we come. [Exeunt.]

Enter Florinda from the farther end of the Scene, looking behind her.

Flor. I am follow'd still——hah——my Brother too advancing this way, good Heavens defend me from being seen by him. [She goes off.]

Enter Willmore, and after him Valeria, at a little distance.

Will. Ah! There she fails, she looks back as she were willing willing to be boarded, I'll warrant her Prize.

[He goes out, Valeria following.

Enter Hellena, just as he goes out, with a Page.

Hell. Hah, is not that my Captain that has a Woman in chase?—'tis not Angelica. Boy, follow those People at a distance, and bring me an Account where they go in.

——I'll find his Haunts, and plague him every where.

——ha——my Brother! [Exit Page.

[Bel. Wil. Ped. cross the Stage: Hell. runs off.

Scene changes to another Street. Enter Florinda.

Flor. What shall I do, my Brother now pursues me. Will no kind Power protect me from his Tyranny?

——Hah, here's a Door open, I'll venture in, since nothing can be worse than to fall into his Hands, my Life and Honour are at stake, and my Necessity has no choice.

[She goes in.

Enter Valeria, and Hellena's Page peeping after Florinda.

Pag. Here she went in, I shall remember this House.

[Exit Boy.

Val. This is Belvile's Lodgings; she's gone in as readily as if she knew it——hah——here's that mad Fellow again, I dare not venture in——I'll watch my Opportunity.

[Goes aside.

Enter Willmore, gazing about him.

Will. I have lost her hereabouts—Pox on't she must not scape me so.

[Goes out.

Scene changes to Blunt's Chamber, discovers him sitting on a Couch in his Shirt and Drawers, reading.

Blunt. So, now my Mind's a little at Peace, since I have resolv'd Revenge—A Pox on this Taylor tho, for not bringing home the Clothes I bespoke; and a Pox of all poor Cavaliers, a Man can never keep a spare Suit for 'em; and I shall have these Rogues come in and find me naked; and then I'm undone; but I'm resolv'd to arm my self——the Rascals shall not insult over me too much.

[Puts on an old rusty Sword and Buff-Belt.

——Now, how like a Morrice-Dancer I am equipt——a fine Lady-like Whore to cheat me thus, without affording me a Kindness for my Money, a Pox light on her, I shall never be reconciled to the Sex more, she has made me as faithless faithless as a Physician, as uncharitable as a Churchman, and as ill-natur'd as a Poet. O how I'll use all Women-kind hereafter! what wou'd I give to have one of 'em within my reach now! any Mortal thing in Petticoats, kind Fortune, send me; and I'll forgive thy last Night's Malice—Here's a curf'd Book too, (a Warning to all young Travellers) that can instruct me how to prevent such Mischiefs now 'tis too late. Well 'tis a rare convenient thing to read a little now and then, as well as hawk and hunt.

[Sits down again and reads.

Enter to him Florinda.

Flor. This House is haunted sure, 'tis well furnisht and no living thing inhabits it—hah—a Man! Heavens how he's attir'd! sure 'tis some Rope-dancer, or Fencing-Master; I tremble now for fear, and yet I must venture now to speak to him—Sir, if I may not interrupt your Meditations—

[He starts up and gazes.

Blunt. Hah—what's here? Are my wishes granted? and is not that a she Creature? Adsheartlikins 'tis! what wretched thing art thou—hah!

Flor. Charitable Sir, you've told your self already what I am; a very wretched Maid, forc'd by a strange unlucky Accident, to seek a safety here, and must be ruin'd, if you do not grant it.

Blunt. Ruin'd! Is there any Ruin so inevitable as that which now threatens thee? Dost thou know, miserable Woman, into what Den of Mischiefs thou art fall'n? what a Bliss of Confusion?—hah—dost not see something in my looks that frights thy guilty Soul, and makes thee wish to change that Shape of Woman for any humble Animal, or Devil? for those were safer for thee, and less mischievous.

Flor. Alas, what mean you, Sir? I must confess your Looks have something in 'em makes me fear; but I beseech you, as you seem a Gentleman, pity a harmless Virgin, that takes your House for Sanctuary.

Blunt. Talk on, talk on, and weep too, till my faith return. Do, flatter me out of my Senses again—a harmless Virgin with a Pox, as much one as t'other, adsheartlikins. Why, what the Devil can I not be safe in my House for you? not in my Chamber? nay, even being naked too cannot secure me. This is an Impudence greater than has invaded me yet.—Come no Resistance.

 [Pulls her rudely.]

Flor. Dare you be so cruel?

Blunt. Cruel, adsheartlikins as a Gally-flave, or a Spanish Whore: Cruel, yes, I will kifs and beat thee all over; kifs, and see thee all over; thou shalt lie with me too, not that I care for the Injoyment, but to let you see I have ta'en deliberated Malice to thee, and will be revenged on one Whore for the Sins of another; I will smile and deceive thee, flatter thee, and beat thee, kifs and swear, and lye to thee, imbrace thee and rob thee, as she did me, fawn on thee, and strip thee stark naked, then hang thee out at my Window by the Heels, with a Paper of scurvey Verses fasten'd to thy Breast, in praise of damnable Women—Come, come along.

Flor. Alas, Sir, must I be sacrific'd for the Crimes of the most infamous of my Sex? I never understood the Sins you name.

Blunt. Do, persuade the Fool you love him, or that one of you can be just or honest; tell me I was not an easy Coxcomb, or any strange impossible Tale: it will be believ'd sooner than thy false Showers or Protestations. A Generation of damn'd Hypocrites, to flatter my very Clothes from my back! dissembling Witches! are these the Returns you make an honest Gentleman that trusts, believes, and loves you?—But if I be not even with you—Come along, or I shall—

[Pulls hers again.]

Enter Frederick.

Fred. Hah, what's here to do?

Blunt. Adsheartlikins, Fred. I am glad thou art come, to be a Witness of my dire Revenge.

Fred. What's this, a Person of Quality too, who is upon the Ramble to supply the Defects of some grave impotent Husband.

Blunt. No, this has another Pretence, some very unfortunate Accident brought her hither, to save a Life pursued by I know not who, or why, and forc'd to take

Sanc-

Sanctuary here at Fools Haven. Adsheartlikins to me of all Mankind for Protection? Is the Afs to be cajol'd again, think ye? No, young one, no Prayers or Tears shall mitigate my Rage; therefore prepare for both my Pleasure of Enjoyment and Revenge, for I am resolv'd to make up my Loss here on thy Body, I'll take it out in kindness and in beating.

Fred. Now Mistress of mine, what do you think of this?

Flor. I think he will not—dares not be so barbarous.

Fred. Have a care, Blunt, she fetch'd a deep Sigh, she is inamour'd with thy Shirt and Drawers, she'll strip thee even of that. There are of her Calling such unconscionable Baggages, and such dextrous Thieves, they'll flea a Mun, and he shall ne'er miss his Skin, till he feels the Cold. There was a Country-man of ours robb'd of a Row of Teeth whilst he was sleeping, which the Jilt made him buy again when he wak'd——You see, Lady, how little Reason we have to trust you.

Blunt. 'Dsheartlikins, why, this is most abominable.

Flor. Some such Devils there may be, but by all that's holy I am none such, I entered here to save a Life in danger.

Blunt. For no goodness I'll warrant her.

Fred. Faith, Damsel, you had e'en confess the plain Truth, for we are Fellows not to be caught twice in the same Trap: Look on that Wreck, a tight Vessel when he set out of Haven, well trim'd and laden, and see how a Female Piccaroon of this Island of Rogues has shatter'd him, and canst thou hope for any Mercy?

Blunt. No, no, Gentlewoman, come along, adsheartlikins we must be better acquainted——we'll both lie with her, and then let me alone to bang her.

Fred. I am ready to serve you in matters of Revenge, that has a double Pleasure in'r.

Blunt. Well said. You hear, little one, how you are condemn'd by publick Voice to the Bed within, there's no resisting your Destiny, Sweetheart. [Pulls her.

Flor. Stay, Sir, I have seen you with Belvite, an English Cavalier, for his sake use me kindly; you know how, Sir. Blunt.

Blunt. Belvile! why, yes, Sweeting, we do know Belvile, and wish he were with us now, he's a Cormorant at Whore and Bacon, he'd have a Limb or two of thee, my Virgin Puller: but 'tis no matter, we'll leave him the Bones to pick.

Flor. Sir, if you have any Esteem for that Belvile, I conjure you to treat me with more Gentleness; he'll thank you for the Justice.

Fred. Hark ye, Blunt, I doubt we are mistaken in this matter.

Flor. Sir, if you find me not worth Belvile's Care, use me as you please; and that you may think I merit better treatment than you threaten—pray take this Present—

[Gives him a Ring: He looks on it.]

Blunt. Hum—A Diamond! why, 'tis a wonderful Virtue now that lies in this Ring, a mollifying Virtue; adsheartlikins there's more persuasive Rhetorick in't, than all her Sex can utter.

Fred. I begin to suspect something; and 'twou'd anger us vilely to be truss'd up for a Rape upon a Maid of Quality, when we only believe we ruffle a Harlot.

Blunt. Thou art a credulous Fellow, but adsheartlikins I have no Faith yet; why, my Saint prattled as parlously as this does, she gave me a Bracelet too, a Devil on her; but I sent my Man to sell it to day for Necessaries, and it prov'd as counterfeit as her Vows of Love.

Fred. However let it reprieve her till we see Belvile.

Blunt. That's hard, yet I will grant it.

Enter a Servant.

Serv. Oh, Sir, the Colonel is just come with his new Friend and a Spaniard of Quality, and talks of having you to Dinner with 'em.

Blunt. 'Dsheartlikins, I'm undone—I would not see 'em for the World: Harkye, Fred. lock up the Wench in your Chamber.

Fred. Fear nothing, Madam, whate'er he threatens, you're safe whilst in my Hands. [Ex. Fred. and Flor.]

Blunt. And Sirrah—upon your Life, say—I am not at home—or that I am asleep—or—or any thing—away—I'll prevent their coming this way. [Locks the Door and Exit.]

ACT V. SCENE I.

Blunt's Room.

After a great knocking at his Chamber-door, enter Blunt softly, crossing the Stage in his Shirt and Drawers, as before.

NED, Ned Blunt, Ned Blunt. [Call within.
Blunt. The Rogues are up in Arms, 'dsheartlikins, this villainous Frederick has betray'd me, they have heard of my blessed Fortune.

Ned Blunt, Ned Ned—— [and knocking within.

Belv. Why, he's dead, Sir, without dispute dead, he has not been seen to day; let's break open the Door—here——Boy——

Blunt. Ha, break open the Door! 'dsheartlikins that mad Fellow will be as good as his word.

Belv. Boy, bring something to force the Door.

[A great noise within at the Door again.

Blunt. So, now must I speak in my own Defence, I'll try what Rhetorick will do—hold—hold, what do you mean Gentlemen, what do you mean?

Belv. Oh Rogue, art alive? prithee open the Door, and convince us.

Blunt. Yes, I am alive Gentlemen——but at present a little busy.

Belv. How! Blunt grown a man of Business! come, come, open, and let's see this Miracle. [within.

Blunt. No, no, no, no Gentlemen, 'tis no great Business——but——I am——at——my Devotion,——'dsheartlikins, will you not allow a man time to pray?

Belv. Turn'd religious! a greater Wonder than the first, therefore open quickly, or we shall unhinge, we shall. [within.

Blunt. This won't do——Why, hark ye, Colonel; to tell you the plain Truth, I am about a necessary Affair of Life.—I have a Wench with me——you apprehend me? the Devil's in't if they be so uncivil as to disturb me now.

Will.

Will. How, a Wench! Nay, then we must enter and partake; no Resistance,——unless it be your Lady of Quality, and then we'll keep our distance.

Blunt. So, the Business is out.

Will. Come, come, lend more hands to the Door,——now heave altogether——so, well done, my Boys——

[Breaks open the Door.]

Enter Belvile, Willmore, Fred. and Pedro: Blunt looks simply, they all laugh at him, he lays his hand on his sword, and comes up to Willmore.

Blunt. Hark ye, Sir, laugh out your laugh quickly, d'ye hear, and be gone, I shall spoil your sport else; 'dsheartlikins, Sir; I shall——the Jest has been carried on too long,——a Plague upon my Taylor—— [Aside.]

Will. 'Sdeath, how the Whore has dress'd him! Faith, Sir, I'm sorry.

Blunt. Are you so, Sir? keep't to your self then Sir; I advise you, d'ye hear? for I can as little endure your Pity as his Mirth.

[Lays his Hand on's sword.]

Belv. Indeed, Willmore, thou wert a little too rough with Ned Blunt's Mistress; call a Person of Quality Whore, and one so young, so handsome, and so eloquent!——ha, ha, ha.

Blunt. Hark ye, Sir, you know me, and know I can be angry; have a care——for 'dsheartlikins I can fight too——I can Sir,——do you mark me——no more.

Belv. Why, so peevish, good Ned? some Disappointments, I'll warrant——What! did the jealous Count her Husband return just in the nick?

Blunt. Or the Devil, Sir,——d'ye laugh? [They laugh.] Look ye, settle me a good sober Countenance, and that quickly too, or you shall know Ned Blunt is not——

Belv. Not every Body, we know that.

Blunt. Not an Ass, to be laught at, Sir.

Will. Unconscionable Sinner, to bring a Lover so near his Happiness, a vigorous passionate Lover, and then not only cheat him of his Moveables, but his Desires too.

Belv. Ah, Sir, a Mistress is a Trifle with Blunt, he'll have a dozen the next time he looks abroad; his Eyes have Charms not to be resisted: There needs no more than to expose that taking Person to the view of the Fair, and he leads 'em all in Triumph.

Ped. Sir, tho' I'm a stranger to you, I'm asham'd at the rudeness of my Nation; and could you learn who did it, would assist you to make an Example of 'em.

Blunt. Why, ay, there's one speaks sense now, and handsomly; and let me tell you Gentlemen, I should not have shew'd my self like a Jack-Pudding, thus to have made you Mirth, but that I have revenge within my power; for know, I have got into my possession a Female, who had better have fallen under any Curse, than the Ruin I design her: 'dsheartlikins, she assaulted me here in my own Lodgings, and had doubtless committed a Rape upon me, had not this Sword defended me.

Fred. I knew not that, but o' my Conscience thou hadst ravisht her, had she not redeem'd her self with a Ring——let's see't Blunt. [Blunt shews the Ring.]

Belv. Hah!——the Ring I gave Florinda when we exchange'd our Vows!——hark ye Blunt—— [Goes to whisper to him.]

Will. No whispering, good Colonel, there's a Woman in the case, no whispering.

Belv. Hark ye, Fool, be advis'd, and conceal both the Ring and the Story, for your Reputation's sake; don't let People know what despis'd Cullies we English are: to be cheated and abus'd by one Whore, and another rather bribe thee than be kind to thee, is an Infamy to our Nation.

Will. Come, come, where's the Wench? we'll see her, let her be what she will, we'll see her.

Ped. Ay, ay, let us see her, I can soon discover whether she be of Quality, or for your Diversion.

Blunt. She's in Fred's Custody.

Will. Come, come, the Key.

[To Fred. who gives him the Key, they are going.]

Belv. Death! what shall I do?——stay Gentlemen——yet if I hinder 'em, I shall discover all——hold, let's go one at once——give me the Key.

Will. Nay, hold there, Colonel, I'll go first.

Fred. Nay, no Dispute, Ned and I have the property of her.

Will. Damn Property——then we'll draw Cuts.

[Belv. goes to whisper Will.

Nay, no Corruption, good Colonel: come, the longest Sword carries her.—— [They all draw, forgetting Don Pedro, being a Spaniard, had the longest.

Blunt. I yield up my Interest to you Gentlemen, and that will be Revenge sufficient.

Will. The Wench is yours——(To Ped.) Pox of his Toledo, I had forgot that.

Fred. Come, Sir, I'll conduct you to the Lady.

[Ex. Fred. and Ped.

Belv. To hinder him will certainly discover——[Aside] Dost know, dull Beast, what Mischief thou hast done?

[Will. walking up and down out of Humour.

Will. Ay, ay, to trust our Fortune to Lots, a Devil on't, 'twas madness, that's the Truth on't.

Belv. Oh intolerable Sot!

Enter Florinda, running masqu'd, Pedro after her, Will. gazing round her.

Flor. Good Heaven, defend me from discovery. [Aside.

Pedro. 'Tis but in vain to fly me, you are fallen to my Lot.

Belv. Sure she is undiscover'd yet, but now I fear there is no way to bring her off.

Will. Why, what a Pox is not this my Woman, the same I follow'd but now?

[Ped. talking to Florinda, who walks up and down.

Ped. As if I did not know ye, and your Business here.

Flor. Good Heaven! I fear he does indeed—— [Aside.

Ped. Come, pray be kind, I know you meant to be so when you enter'd here, for these are proper Gentlemen.

Will. But, Sir——perhaps the Lady will not be impos'd upon, she'll chuse her Man.

Ped. I am better bred, than not to leave her Choice free.

Enter Valeria, and is surpriz'd at the Sight of Don Pedro.

Val. Don Pedro here! there's no avoiding him. [Aside.

Flor. Valeria! then I'm undone—— [Aside.]

Val. Oh! have I found you, Sir——

[To Pedro, running to him.]

——The strangest Accident——if I had breath——to tell it.

Ped. Speak——is Florinda safe? Hellena well?

Val. Ay, ay Sir——Florinda——is safe——from any fears of you.

Ped. Why, where's Florinda?——speak.

Val. Ay, where indeed, Sir? I wish I could inform you,——But to hold you no longer in doubt——

Flor. Oh, what will she say? [Aside.]

Val. She's fled away in the Habit of one of her Pages, Sir——but Callis thinks you may retrieve her yet, if you make haste away; she'll tell you, Sir, the rest——if you can find her out. [Aside.]

Ped. Dishonourable Girl, she has undone my Aim——Sir——you see my necessity of leaving you, and I hope you'll pardon it; my Sister, I know, will make her flight to you; and if she do, I shall expect she should be render'd back.

Belv. I shall consult my Love and Honour, Sir.

[Ex. Ped.]

Flor. My dear Preserver, let me imbrace thee.

[To Val.]

Will. What the Devil's all this?

Blunt. Mystery by this Light.

Val. Come, come, make haste and get your selves married quickly, for your Brother will return again.

Belv. I am so surpriz'd with Fears and Joys, so amaz'd to find you here in safety, I can scarce persuade my Heart into a Faith of what I see——

Will. Harkye, Colonel, is this that Mistress who has cost you so many Sighs, and me so many Quarrels with you?

Belv. It is——Pray give him the Honour of your Hand. [To Flor.]

Will. Thus it must be receiv'd then.

[Kneels and kisses her Hand.]

And with it give your Pardon too.

Flor. The Friend to Belvile may command me any thing. [Will.]

Will. Death, wou'd I might, 'tis a surprizing Beauty. [Aside.

Belv. Boy, run and fetch a Father instantly. [Ex. Boy.

Fred. So, now do I stand like a Dog, and have not a Syllable to plead my own Cause with: by this Hand, Madam, I was never thorowly confounded before, nor shall I ever more dare look up with Confidence, till you are pleas'd to pardon me.

Flor. Sir, I'd be reconcil'd to you on one Condition, that you'll follow the Example of your Friend, in marrying a Maid that does not hate you, and whose Fortune (I believe) will not be unwelcome to you.

Fred. Madam, had I no Inclinations that way, I shou'd obey your kind Commands.

Belv. Who, Fred. marry; he has so few Inclinations for Womankind, that had he been possess'd of Paradise, he might have continu'd there to this Day, if no Crime but Love cou'd have disinherited him.

Fred. Oh, I do not use to boast of my Intrigues.

Belv. Boast! why thou do'st nothing but boast; and I dare swear, wer't thou as innocent from the Sin of the Grape, as thou art from the Apple, thou might'st yet claim that right in Eden which our first Parents lost by too much loving.

Fred. I wish this Lady would think me so modest a Man.

Val. She shou'd be sorry then, and not like you half so well, and I shou'd be loth to break my Word with you; which was, That if your Friend and mine are agreed, it shou'd be a Match between you and I.

[She gives him her Hand.

Fred. Bear witness, Colonel, 'tis a Bargain.

[Kisses her Hand.

Blunt. I have a Pardon to beg too; but adsheartlikins I am so out of Countenance, that I am a Dog if I can say any thing to purpose. [To Florinda.

Flor. Sir, I heartily forgive you all.

Blunt. That's nobly said, sweet Lady ——— Belvile, prithee present her her Ring again, for I find I have not Courage to approach her my self.

[Gives him the Ring, he gives it to Florinda.

Enter Boy.

Boy. Sir, I have brought the Father that you sent for.

Belv. 'Tis well, and now my dear Florinda, let's fly to compleat that mighty Joy we have so long wish'd and sigh'd for. ——— Come Fred. you'll follow.

Fred. Your Example Sir, 'twas ever my Ambition in War, and must be so in Love.

Will. And must not I see this juggling Knot ty'd?

Belv. No, thou shalt do us better Service, and be our Guard, lest Don Pedro's sudden Return interrupt the Ceremony.

Will. Content; I'll secure this Pass.

[Ex. Bel. Flor. Fred. and Val.

Enter Boy.

Boy. Sir, there's a Lady without wou'd speak to you.

[To Will.

Will. Conduct her in, I dare not quit my Post.

Boy. And Sir, your Taylor waits you in your Chamber.

Blunt. Some comfort yet, I shall not dance naked at the Wedding. [Ex. Blunt and Boy.

Enter again the Boy, conducting in Angelica in a masquing Habit and a Vizard. Will. runs to her.

Will. This can be none but my pretty Gipsy ——— Oh, I see you can follow as well as fly ——— Come, confess thy self the most malicious Devil in Nature, you think you have done my Bus'ness with Angelica ———

Ang. Stand off, base Villain ——— [She draws a Pistol and holds to his Breast.

Will. Hah, 'tis not she: who art thou? and what's thy Business?

Ang. One thou hast injur'd, and who comes to kill thee for't.

Will. What the Devil canst thou mean?

Ang. By all my Hopes to kill thee ———

[Holds still the Pistol to his Breast, he going back, she following still.

Will. Prithee on what Acquaintance? for I know thee not.

Ang. Behold this Face! — so lost to thy Remembrance!

And

And then call all thy Sins about thy Soul, [Pulls off her
And let them die with thee. Vizard.

Will. Angelica!

Ang. Yes, Traitor.

Does not thy guilty Blood run shivering thro thy Veins?
Hast thou no Horrour at this Sight, that tells thee,
Thou hast not long to boast thy shameful Conquest?

Will. Faith, no Child, my Blood keeps its old Ebbs and Flows still, and that usual Heat too, that cou'd oblige thee with a Kindness, had I but opportunity.

Ang. Devil! dost wanton with my Pain ——— have at thy Heart.

Will. Hold, dear Virago! hold thy Hand a little,
I am not now at leisure to be kill'd—hold and hear me—
Death, I think she's in earnest. [Aside.

Ang. Oh if I take not heed,
My coward Heart will leave me to his Mercy.

——— [Aside, turning from him.
—What have you, Sir, to say?—but should I hear thee,
Thou'd'st talk away all that is brave about me:

[Follows him with the Pistol to his Breast.
And I have vow'd thy Death, by all that's sacred.

Will. Why, then there's an end of a proper handfom Fellow, that might have liv'd to have done good Service yet: ——— That's all I can say to't.

Ang. Yet——I wou'd give thee——time for Penitence.
[Pausingly.

Will. Faith, Child, I thank God, I have ever took care to lead a good, sober, hopeful Life, and am of a Religion that teaches me to believe, I shall depart in Peace.

Ang. So will the Devil: tell me
How many poor believing Fools thou hast undone;
How many Hearts thou hast betray'd to ruin!
—Yet these are little Mischiefs to the Ills
Thou'st taught mine to commit: thou'st taught it Love.

Will. Egad 'twas shreudly hurt the while.

Ang. ——Love, that has robb'd it of its Unconcern,
Of all that Pride that taught me how to value it,
And in its room a mean submissive Passion was convey'd,

That made me humbly bow, which I ne'er did
To any thing but Heaven.

—Thou, perjurd Man, didst this, and with thy Oaths,
Which on thy Knees thou didst devoutly make,
Softened my yielding Heart—And then, I was a Slave—
Yet still had been content to've worn my Chains,
Worn 'em with Vanity and Joy for ever,
Hadst thou not broke those Vows that put them on.

—'Twas then I was undone.

[All this while follows him with a Pistol to his Breast.

Will. Broke my Vows! why, where hast thou lived?
Amongst the Gods! For I never heard of mortal Man,
That has not broke a thousand Vows.

Ang. Oh, Impudence!

Will. Angelica! that Beauty has been too long tempting,
Not to have made a thousand Lovers languish,
Who in the amorous Favour, no doubt have sworn Like me; did they all die in that Faith? still adoring?
I do not think they did.

Ang. No, faithless Man: had I repaid their Vows, as I did thine, I wou'd have kill'd the ungrateful that had abandon'd me.

Will. This old General has quite spoil'd thee, nothing makes a Woman so vain, as being flatter'd; your old Lover ever supplies the Defects of Age, with intolerable Dotage, vast Charge, and that which you call Constancy;
and attributing all this to your own Merits, you domineer, and throw your Favours in's Teeth, upbraiding him still with the Defects of Age, and cuckold him as often as he deceives your Expectations. But the gay, young, brisk Lover, that brings his equal Fires, and can give you Dart for Dart, he'll be as nice as you sometimes.

Ang. All this thou'st made me know, for which I hate
Had I remain'd in innocent Security, (thee.
I shou'd have thought all Men were born my Slaves;
And worn my Pow'r like Lightning in my Eyes,
To have destroy'd at Pleasure when offended.

—But when Love held the Mirror, the undeceiving Glass Reflected all the Weakness of my Soul, and made me know,
My richest Treasure being lost, my Honour,

All the remaining Spoil cou'd not be worth
The Conqueror's Care or Value.

——— Oh how I felt like a long worship'd Idol,
Discovering all the Cheat !

Wou'd not the Incense and rich Sacrifice,
Which blind Devotion offer'd at my Altars,
Have fall'n to thee ?

Why wou'dst thou then destroy my fancy'd Power ?

Will. By Heaven thou art brave, and I admire thee
I wish I were that dull, that constant thing, (strangely-
Which thou wou'dst have, and Nature never meant me :
I must, like chearful Birds, sing in all Groves,
And perch on every Bough,
Billing the next kind She that flies to meet me ;
Yet after all cou'd build my Nest with thee,
Thither repairing when I'd lov'd my round,
And still reserve a tributary Flame.

——— To gain your Credit, I'll pay you back your Charity,
And be oblig'd for nothing but for Love.

[Offers her a Purse of Gold.

Ang. Oh that thou wert in earnest !

So mean a Thought of me,
Wou'd turn my Rage to Scorn, and I shou'd pity thee,
And give thee leave to live ;
Which for the publick Safety of our Sex,
And my own private Injuries, I dare not do.

Prepare——— [Follows still, as before.

——— I will no more be tempted with Replies.

Will. Sure———

Ang. Another Word will damn thee ! I've heard thee talk too long. [She follows him with a Pistol ready to shoot : he retires still amaz'd.

Enter Don Antonio, his Arm in a Scarf, and lays hold on the Pistol.

Anto. Hah ! Angelica !

Ang. Antonio ! What the Devil brought thee hither ?

Ant. Love and Curiosity, seeing your Coach at Door.
Let me disarm you of this unbecoming Instrument of Death.———

[Takes away the Pistol.

Amongst

Amongst the Number of your Slaves, was there not one worthy the Honour to have fought your Quarrel?

—— Who are you Sir, that are so very wretched To merit Death from her?

Will. One, Sir, that cou'd have made a better End of an amorous Quarrel without you, than with you.

Ant. Sure 'tis some Rival——hah——the very Man took down her Picture yesterday——the very same that set on me last night——Blest opportunity—— [Offers to shoot him.]

Ang. Hold, you're mistaken Sir.

Ant. By Heaven the very same!

—— Sir, what pretensions have you to this Lady?

Will. Sir, I don't use to be examin'd, and am ill at all Disputes but this—— [Draws, Anton. offers to shoot.]

Ang. Oh, hold! you see he's arm'd with certain Death:

[To Will.]

—— And you, Antonio, I command you hold, By all the Passion you've so lately vow'd me.

Enter Don Pedro, sees Antonio, and stays.

Ped. Hah, Antonio! and Angelica! [Aside.]

Ant. When I refuse Obedience to your Will, May you destroy me with your mortal Hate.

By all that's Holy I adore you so,
That even my Rival, who has Charms enough
To make him fall a Victim to my Jealousy,
Shall live, nay, and have leave to love on still.

Ped. What's this I hear? [Aside.]

Ang. Ah thus, 'twas thus he talk'd, and I believ'd.

[Pointing to Will.] —— Antonio, yesterday,

I'd not have sold my Interest in his Heart,
For all the Sword has won and lost in Battle.

—— But now to show my utmost of Contempt,
I give thee Life——which if thou would'st preserve,
Live where my Eyes may never see thee more,
Live to undo some one, whose Soul may prove
So bravely constant to revenge my Love.

[Goes out, Ant. follows, but Ped. pulls him back.]

Ped. Antonio——stay.

Ant. Don Pedro——

Ped.

Ped. What Coward Fear was that prevented thee
From meeting me this Morning on the Molo?

Ant. Meet thee?

Ped. Yes me; I was the Man that dar'd thee to't.

Ant. Hast thou so often seen me fight in War,
To find no better Cause to excuse my Absence?

—— I sent my Sword and one to do thee Right,
Finding my self incapable to use a Sword.

Ped. But 'twas Florinda's Quarrel that we fought,
And you to shew how little you esteem'd her,
Sent me your Rival, giving him your Interest.

—— But I have found the Cause of this Affront,
And when I meet you fit for the Dispute,

—— I'll tell you my Resentment.

Ant. I shall be ready, Sir, e'er long to do you Reason.

[Exit Anto.

Ped. If I cou'd find Florinda, now whilst my Anger's high, I think I shou'd be kind, and give her to Belvile in Revenge.

Will. Faith, Sir, I know not what you wou'd do, but I believe the Priest within has been so kind.

Ped. How! my Sister married?

Will. I hope by this time she is, and bedded too, or he has not my longings about him.

Ped. Dares he do thus? Does he not fear my Pow'r?

Will. Faith not at all. If you will go in, and thank him for the Favour he has done your Sister, so; if not, Sir, my Power's greater in this House than yours; I have a damn'd furly Crew here, that will keep you till the next Tide, and then clap you on board my Prize; my Ship lies but a League off the Molo, and we shall show your Donship a damn'd Tramontana Rover's Trick.

Enter Belvile.

Belv. This Rogue's in some new Mischief—— hah, Pedro return'd!

Ped. Colonel Belvile, I hear you have married my Sister.

Bel. You have heard truth then, Sir.

Ped. Have I so? then, Sir, I wish you Joy.

Bel. How!

Ped. By this Embrace I do, and I am glad on't.

Bel.

Bel. Are you in earnest?

Ped. By our long Friendship and my Obligations to thee, I am. The sudden Change I'll give you Reasons for anon. Come lead me to my Sister, that she may know I now approve her Choice. [Exit Bel. with Ped.

[Will. goes to follow them. Enter Hellena as before in Boy's Clothes, and pulls him back.

Will. Ha! my Gipsy——Now a thousand Blessings on thee for this Kindness. Egad Child I was e'en in despair of ever seeing thee again; my Friends are all provided for within, each Man his kind Woman.

Hell. Hah! I thought they had serv'd me some such Trick.

Will. And I was e'en resolv'd to go aboard, condemn my self to my lone Cabin, and the Thoughts of thee.

Hell. And cou'd you have left me behind? wou'd you have been so ill-natur'd?

Will. Why, 'twou'd have broke my Heart Child——but since we are met again, I defy foul Weather to part us.

Hell. And wou'd you be a faithful Friend now, if a Maid shou'd trust you Will. For a Friend I cannot promise, thou art of a Form so excellent, a Face and Humour too good for cold dull Friendship; I am parlously afraid of being in love Child, and you have not forgot how severely you have us'd me.

Hell. That's all one, such Usage you must still look for, to find out all your Haunts, to rail at you to all that love you, till I have made you love only me in your own Defence, because no body else will love.

Will. But hast thou no better Quality to recommend thy self by?

Hell. Faith none Captain——Why, 'twill be the greater Charity to take me for thy Mistress, I am a lone Child, a kind of Orphan Lover; and why I shou'd die a Maid, and in a Captain's Hands too, I do not understand.

Will. Egad, I was never claw'd away with Broad Sides from any Female before, thou hast one Virtue I adore, good Nature; I hate a coy demure Mistress, she's as troublesome as a Colt, I'll break none; no, give me a mad Mistress when mew'd, and in flying on I dare trust upon upon the Wing, that whilst she's kind will come to the Lure.

Hell. Nay as kind as you will good Captain, whilst it lasts, but let's lose no time.

Will. My time's as precious to me, as thine can be; therefore dear Creature, since we are so well agreed, let's retire to my Chamber, and if ever thou wert treated with such savory Love — Come — My Bed's prepar'd for such a Guest, all clean and sweet as thy fair self; I love to steal a Dish and a Bottle with a Friend, and hate long Graces — Come let's retire and fall to.

Hell. 'Tis but getting my Consent, and the Business is soon done; let but old Gaffer Hymen and his Priest say Amen to't, and I dare lay my Mother's Daughter by as proper a Fellow as your Father's Son, without fear or blushing.

Will. Hold, hold, no Bugg Words Child, Priest and Hymen: prithee add Hangman to 'em to make up the Comfort — No, no, we'll have no Vows but Love, Child, nor Witnesses but the Lover; the kind Deity enjoins naught but love and enjoy. Hymen and Priest wait still upon Portion, and Joynture; Love and Beauty have their own Ceremonies. Marriage is as certain a Bane to Love, as lending Money is to Friendship: I'll neither ask nor give a Vow, tho I could be content to turn Gipsy, and become a Left-hand Bridegroom, to have the Pleasure of working that great Miracle of making a Maid a Mother, if you durst venture; 'tis upse Gipsy that; and if I miss, I'll lose my Labour.

Hell. And if you do not lose, what shall I get? A Cradle full of Noise and Mischief, with a Pack of Repentance at my Back? Can you teach me to weave Inkle to pass my time with? 'Tis upse Gipsy that too.

Will. I can teach thee to weave a true Love's Knot better.

Hell. So can my Dog.

Will. Well, I see we are both upon our Guard, and I see there's no way to conquer good Nature, but by yielding — here — give me thy Hand — one Kiss and I am thine —

Hell. One Kiss! How like my Page he speaks; I am resolv'd you shall have none, for asking such a sneaking

Sum — He that will be satisfied with one Kiss, will never die of that Longing ; good Friend single-Kiss, is all your talking come to this ? ——— A Kiss, a Caudle ! farewell Captain single-Kiss. [Going out he stays her.]

Will. Nay if we part so, let me die like a Bird upon a Bough, at the Sheriff's Charge. By Heaven, both the Indies shall not buy thee from me. I adore thy Humour and will marry thee, and we are so of one Humour, it must be a Bargain——give me thy Hand——

[Kisses her Hand.]

And now let the blind ones (Love and Fortune) do their worst.

Hell. Why, God-a-mercy Captain !

Will. But harkye—The Bargain is now made ; but is it not fit we shou'd know each other's Names ? That when we have Reason to curse one another hereafter, and People ask me who 'tis I give to the Devil, I may at least be able to tell what Family you came of.

Hell. Good reason, Captain ; and where I have cause, (as I doubt not but I shall have plentiful) that I may know at whom to throw my—— Blessings—— I beseech ye your Name.

Will. I am call'd Robert the Constant.

Hell. A very fine Name ! pray was it your Faulkner or Butler that christen'd you ? Do they not use to whistle when they call you ?

Will. I hope you have a better, that a Man may name without crossing himself, you are so merry with mine.

Hell. I am call'd Hellena the Inconstant.

Enter Pedro, Belvile, Florinda, Fred. Valeria.

Ped. Hah ! Hellena !

Florin. Hellena !

Hell. The very same—hah my Brother ! now Captain shew your Love and Courage ; stand to your Arms, and defend me bravely, or I am lost for ever.

Ped. What's this I hear ? false Girl, how came you hither, and what's your Business ? Speak.

[Goes roughly to her.]

Will. Hold off Sir, you have leave to parly only.

[Puts himself between.]

Hell.

Hell. I had e'en as good tell it, as you guess it. Faith Brother, my Business is the same with all living Creatures of my Age, to love, and be loved, and here's the Man.

Ped. Perfidious Maid, hast thou deceiv'd me too, deceiv'd thy self and Heaven?

Hell. 'Tis time enough to make my Peace with that: Be you but kind, let me alone with Heaven.

Ped. Belvile, I did not expect this false Play from you; was't not enough you'd gain Florinda (which I pardon'd) but your leud Friends too must be enrich'd with the Spoils of a noble Family?

Belv. Faith Sir, I am as much surpriz'd at this as you can be: Yet, Sir, my Friends are Gentlemen, and ought to be esteem'd for their Misfortunes, since they have the Glory to suffer with the best of Men and Kings; 'tis true, he's a Rover of Fortune, yet a Prince aboard his little wooden World.

Ped. What's this to the maintenance of a Woman of her Birth and Quality?

Will. Faith Sir, I can boast of nothing but a Sword which does me Right where-e'er I come, and has defended a worse Cause than a Woman's: and since I lov'd her before I either knew her-Birth or Name, I must pursue my Resolution, and marry her.

Ped. And is all your holy Intent of becoming a Nun debauch'd into a Desire of Man?

Hell. Why——I have consider'd the matter Brother, and find the Three hundred thousand Crowns my Uncle left me (and you cannot keep from me) will be better laid out in Love than in Religion, and turn to as good an Account——let most Voices carry it, for Heaven or the Captain?

All cry, A Captain, a Captain.

Hell. Look ye Sir, 'tis a clear Case.

Ped. Oh I am mad——if I refuse, my Life's in Danger—— —Come—There's one motive induces me—take her—I shall now be free from the fear of her Honour; guard it you now, if you can, I have been a Slave to't long enough.

[Aside.

[Gives her to him.

Will. Faith Sir, I am of a Nation, that are of opinion a Woman's Honour is not worth guarding when she has a mind to part with it.

Hell. Well said, Captain.

Ped. This was your Plot Mistress, but I hope you have married one that will revenge my Quarrel to you——

[To Valeria.]

Val. There's no altering Destiny, Sir.

Ped. Sooner than a Woman's Will, therefore I forgive you all——and wish you may get my Father's Pardon as easily; which I fear.

Enter Blunt dress'd in a Spanish Habit, looking very ridiculously; his Man adjusting his Band.

Man. 'Tis very well Sir.

Blunt. Well Sir, 'dsheartlikins I tell you 'tis damnable ill Sir——a Spanish Habit, good Lord! Cou'd the Devil and my Taylor devise no other Punishment for me, but the Mode of a Nation I abominate?

Bell. What's the matter, Ned?

Blunt. Pray view me round, and judge—[Turns round.]

Bell. I must confess thou art a kind of an odd Figure.

Blunt. In a Spanish Habit with a Vengeance! I had rather be in the Inquisition for Judaism, than in this Doublet and Breeches; a Pillory were an easy Collar to this, three Handfuls high; and these Shoes too are worse than the Stocks, with the Sole an Inch shorter than my Foot: In fine, Gentlemen, methinks I look altogether like a Bag of Bays stuff'd full of Fools Flesh.

Bell. Methinks 'tis well, and makes thee look en Cavalier:

Come, Sir, settle your Face, and salute our Friends, Lady——

Blunt. Hah! Say'st thou so, my little Rover?

[To Hell.]

Lady—(if you be one) give me leave to kiss your Hand, and tell you, adsheartlikins, for all I look so, I am your humble Servant——A Pox of my Spanish Habit.

Will. Hark——what's this? [Musick is heard to play.]

Enter Boy.

Boy. Sir as the Custom is, the gay People in Masquerade, who make every Man's House their own, are coming up.

Enter

Enter several Men and Women in masquing Habits, with Musick, they put themselves in order and dance.

Blunt. Adsheartlikins, wou'd 'twere lawful to pull off their false Faces, that I might see if my Doxy were not amongst 'em.

Belv. Ladies and Gentlemen, since you are come so a propos, you must take a small Collation with us.

Will. Whilst we'll to the Good Man within, who stays to give us a Cast of his Office. [To the Masquers.]

—Have you no trembling at the near approach? [To Hell.]

Hell. No more than you have in an Engagement or a Tempest.

Will. Egad thou'rt a brave Girl, and I admire thy Love and Courage.

Lead on, no other Dangers they can dread,
Who venture in the Storms o'th' Marriage-Bed.

[Exeunt.]

EPILOGUE.

THE banisht Cavaliers! a Roving Blade!

A popish Carnival! a Masquerade!

The Devil's in't if this will please the Nation,

In these our blessed Times of Reformation,

When Conventicling is so much in Fashion.

And yet——

That mutinous Tribe less Factions do b-get,

Than your continual differing in Wit;

Your Judgment's (as your Passions) a Disease:

~~Nor Muse nor Miss your Appetite can please;~~

You're grown as nice as queasy Consciences,

Whose each Convulsion, when the Spirit moves,

Damns every thing that Maggot disapproves.

With canting Rule you wou'd the Stage refine,

And to dull Method all our Sense confine.

With

*With th' Insolence of Common-wealths you rule,
Where each gay Fop, and politick brave Fool
On Monarch Wit impose without controul.*

*As for the last who seldom sees a Play,
Unless it be the old Black-Fryers way,
Shaking his empty Noddle o'er Bamboo,
He crys—Good Faith, these Plays will never do.
—Ah, Sir, in my young days, what lofty Wit,
What high-strain'd Scenes of Fighting there were writ :
These are slight airy Toys. But tell me, pray,
What has the House of Commons done to day ?
Then shews his Politicks, to let you see
Of State Affairs he'll judge as notably,
As he can do of Wit and Poetry.*

*The younger Sparks, who hither do resort,
Cry——*

*Pox o' your gentle things, give us more Sport ;
—Damn me, I'm sure 'twill never please the Court.*

*Such Fops are never pleas'd, unless the Play
Be stuff'd with Fools, as brisk and dull as they :
Such might the Half-Crown spare, and in a Glass
At home behold a more accomplisht Ass,
Where they may set their Cravats, Wigs and Faces,
And practise all their Buffoonry Grimaces ;
See how this — Huff becomes—this Dammy—stare—
Which they at home may act, because they dare,
But—must with prudent Caution do elsewhere.
Oh that our Nokes, or Tony Lee cou'd show
A Fop but half so much to th' Life as you.*

T H E
R O V E R.

P A R T II.

P R O L O G U E,

Spoken by Mr. Smith.

*N vain we labour to reform the Stage,
Poets have caught too the Disease o' th' Age,
That Pest, of not being quiet when they're well,*

*That restless Fever, in the Brethren, Zeal ;
In publick Spirits call'd, Good o' th' Commonweal.
Some for this Faction cry, others for that,
The pious Mobile for they know not what :
So tho by different ways the Fever seize,
In all 'tis one and the same mad Disease.
Our Author too, as all new Zealots do,
Full of Conceit and Contradiction too,
'Cause the first Project took, is now so vain,
T'attempt to play the old Game o'er again :*

The Scene is only chang'd ; for who wou'd lay
 A Plot, so hopeful, just the same dull way ?
 Poets, like Statesmen, with a little change,
 Pass off old Politicks for new and strange ;
 Tho' the few Men of Sense decry't aloud,
 The Cheat will pass with the unthinking Croud :
 The Rabble 'tis we court, those powerful things,
 Whose Voices can impose even Laws on Kings.
 A Pox of Sense and Reason, or dull Rules,
 Give us an Audience that declares for Fools ;
 Our Play will stand fair : we've Monsters too,
 Which far exceed your City-Pope for Show.

Almighty Rabble, 'tis to you this Day
 Our humble Author dedicates the Play,
 From those who in our lofty Tire sit,
 Down to the dull-Stage-Gullies of the Pit,
 Who have much Money, and but little Wit :
 Whose useful Purses, and whose empty Skulls
 To private Int'rest make ye Publick Tools ;
 To work on Projects which the wiser frame,
 And of fine Men of Business get the Name.
 You who have left caballing here of late,
 Employ'd in matters of a mightier weight ;
 To you we make our humble Application,
 You'd spare some time from your dear new Vocation,
 Of drinking deep, then settling the Nation,
 To countenance us, whom Commonwealths of old
 Did the most politick Diversion hold.
 Plays were so useful thought to Government,
 That Laws were made for their Establishment ;
 Howe'er in Schools differing Opinions jar,
 Yet all agree i' th' crowded Theatre,
 Which none forsook in any Change or War.
 That, like their Gods, unviolated stood,
 Equally needful to the publick Good.
 Throw then, Great Sirs, some vacant hours away,
 And your Petitioners shall humbly pray, &c.

ACT I. SCENE I.

Enter Willmore, Blunt, Fetherfool, and Hunt, two more in Campaign Dresses, Rag the Captain's Boy.

Will.  T A Y, this is the English Ambassador's. I'll inquire if Beaumont be return'd from Paris.

Feth. Prithee, dear Captain, no more Delays, unless thou thinkest he will invite us to Dinner; for this fine thin sharp Air of Madrid has a most notable Faculty of provoking an Appetite: Prithee let's to the Ordinary.

Will. I will not stay—— [Knocks, enter a Porter.
——Friend, is the Ambassador's Nephew, Mr. Beaumont, return'd to Madrid yet? If he be, I would speak with him.

Port. I'll let him know so much.

[Goes in, shuts the Door.

Blunt. Why, how now, what's the Door shut upon us?

Feth. And reason, Ned, 'tis Dinner-time in the Ambassador's Kitchen, and should they let the savory-Steam out, what a world of Castilians would there be at the Door feeding upon't.——Oh there's no living in Spain when the Pot's uncover'd.

Blunt. Nay, 'tis a Nation of the finest clean Teeth——

Feth. Teeth! Gad an they use their Swords no ofner, a Scabbard will last an Age.

Enter Shift from the House.

Will. Honest Lieutenant——

Shift. My noble Captain——Welcome to Madrid. What Mr. Blunt, and my honoured Friend Nicholas Fetherfool Esq;

Feth. Thy Hand, honest Shift—— [They embrace him.

Will. And how Lieutenant, how stand Affairs in this un sanctify'd Town?—How does Love's great Artillery, the fair La Nuche, from whose bright Eyes the little wanton God throws Darts to wound Mankind?

Shift. Faith, she carries all before her still; undoes her Fellow-traders in Love's Art: and amongst the Number, old Carlo de Minalta Segosa pays high for two Nights in a Week.

Will. Hah——Carlo! Death, what a greeting's here! Carlo the happy Man! a Dog! a Rascal, gain the bright La Nuche! Oh Fortune! Cursed blind mistaken Fortune! eternal Friend to Fools! Fortune! that takes the noble Rate from Man, to place it on her Idol Interest.

Shift. Why Faith Captain, I should think her Heart might stand as fair for you as any, could you be less satirical—but by this Light, Captain, you return her Raillery a little too roughly.

Will. Her Raillery! By this Hand I had rather be handsomly abus'd than dully flatter'd; but when she touches on my Poverty, my honourable Poverty, she presses me too sensibly——for nothing is so nice as Poverty——But damn her, I'll think of her no more: for she's a Devil, tho' her Form be Angel. Is Beaumont come from Paris yet?

Shift. He is, I came with him; he's impatient of your Return: I'll let him know you're here. [Exit Shift.]

Feth. Why, what a Pox ails the Captain o'th' sudden? He looks as sullenly as a routed General, or a Lover after hard Service.

Blunt. Oh——something the Lieutenant has told him about a Wench; and when Cupid's in his Breeches, the Devil's ever in's Head——how now——What a pox is the matter with you, you look so scurvily now?—What, is the Gentlewoman otherwise provided? has she cashier'd ye for want of Pay? or what other dire Mischance?——hah——

Will. Do not trouble me——

Blunt. Adsheartlikins, but I will, and beat thee too, but I'll know the Cause. I heard Shift tell thee something about about La Nuche, a Damsel I have often heard thee Fool enough to sigh for.

Will. Confound the mercenary Jilt!

Blunt. Nay, adshheartlikins they are all so; tho I thought you had been Whore-proof; 'tis enough for us Fools, Country Gentlemen, Esquires, and Cullies, to miscarry in their amorous Adventures, you Men of Wit weather all Storms you.

Will. Oh Sir, you're become a new Man, wise and wary, and can no more be cozen'd.

Blunt. Not by Woman-kind; and for Man I think my Sword will secure me. Pox I thought a two Months absence and a Siege would have put such Trifles out of thy Head: You do not use to be such a Miracle of Constancy.

Will. That Absence makes me think of her so much; and all the Passions thou find'st about me are to the Sex alone. Give me a Woman, Ned, a fine young amorous Wanton, who would allay this Fire that makes me rave thus, and thou shouldst find me no longer particular, and cold as Winter-Nights to this La Nuche: Yet since I lost my little charming Gipsy, nothing has gone so near my Heart as this.

Blunt. Ay there was a Girl, the only she thing that could reconcile me to the Petticoats again after my Naples Adventure, when the Quean rob'd and stript me.

Will. Oh name not Hellena! She was a Saint to be ador'd on Holy-days.

Enter Beaumont.

Beau. Willmore! my careles wild inconstant—how is't, my lucky Rover?

Will. My Life! my Soul! how glad am I to find thee in my Arms again—and well—When left you Paris? Paris; that City of Pottage and Crab-Wine, swarming with Lacquies and Philies, whose Government is carried on by most Hands, not most Voices—And prithee how does Belvile and his Lady?

Beau. I left 'em both in Health at St. Germains.

Will. Faith I have wisht my self with ye at the old Temple of Bacchus, at St. Clou, to sacrifice a Bottle and a Damsel to his Deity.

Beau.

Beau. My constant Place of Worship whilst there, tho for want of new Saints my Zeal grew something cold, which I was ever fain to supply with a Bottle, the old Remedy when Phillis is sullen and absent.

Will. Now thou talk'st of Phillis, prithee dear Harry what Women hast in store ?

Beau. I'll tell thee; but first inform me whom these two Sparks are.

Will. Egad and so they are Child : Salute 'em——They are my Friends——True Blades Hal. highly guilty of the royal Crime, poor and brave, loyal Fugitives.

Beau. I love and honour 'em, Sir, as such— [Bowing to Blunt. Sir, there's neither Love nor Honour lost. [Blunt.

Feth. Sir, I scorn to be behind-hand in Civilities.

Beau. At first sight I find I am much yours, Sir. [To Feth.

Feth. Sir, I love and honour any Man that's a Friend to Captain Willmore——and therefore I am yours——

Enter Shift.

—Well honest Lieutenant, how does thy Body ?—When shall Ned, and thou and I, crack a Bisket o'er a Glass of Wine, have a Slice of Treason and settle the Nation, hab ?

Shift. You know, Squire, I am devotedly yours.

[They talk aside.

Beau. Prithee who are these ?

Will. Why, the first you saluted is the same Ned Blunt you have often heard Belville and I speak of : the other is a Rarity of another Nature, one Squire Fetherfool of Croydon, a tame Justice of Peace, who liv'd as innocently as Ale and Food could keep him, till for a mistaken Kindness to one of the Royal Party, he lost his Commission, and got the Reputation of a Sufferer : He's rich, but covetous as an Alderman.

Beau. What a Pox do'st keep 'em Company for, who have neither Wit enough to divert thee, nor Good-nature enough to serve thee ?

Will. Faith Harry 'tis true, and if there were no more Charity than Profit in't, a Man would sooner keep a Cough o'th' Lungs than be troubled with 'em : but the Rascals have a blind side as all conceited Coxcombs have, which when I've nothing else to do, I shall expose to advance our Mirth; the Rogues must be cozen'd, because they're so positive they never can be so: but I am now for softer Joys, for Woman, for Woman in abundance—— dear Hall, inform me where I may safely unlade my Heart.

Beau. The same Man still, wild and wanton!

Will. And would not change to be the Catholick King.

Beau. I perceive Marriage has not tam'd you, nor a Wife who had all the Charms of her Sex.

Will. Ay——she was too good for Mortals.

[With a sham Sadness.]

Belv. I think thou hadst her but a Month, prithee how dy'd she?

Will. Faith, e'en with a fit of Kindness poor Soul—— she would to Sea with me, and in a Storm——far from Land, she gave up the Ghost——'twas a Loss, but I must bear it with a christian Fortitude.

Beau. Short Happineffes vanish like to Dreams.

Will. Ay faith, and nothing remains with me but the sad Remembrance——not so much as the least Part of her hundred thousand Crowns; Brussels that enchanted Cour has eas'd me of that Grief, where our Heroes act Tantalus better than ever Ovid describ'd him, condemn'd daily to see an Apparition of Meat, Food in Vision only. Faith I had Bowels, was good-natur'd, and lent upon the publick Faith as far as 'twill go——But come, let's leave this mortifying Discourse, and tell me how the price of Pleasure goes.

Beau. At the old Rates still; he that gives most is happiest, some few there are for Love!

Will. Ah, one of the last, dear Beaumont; and if a Heart or Sword can purchase her, I'll bid as fair as the best. Damn it, I hate a Whore that asks me Mony.

Beau. Yet I have known thee venture all thy Stock for a new Woman.

Will. Ay, such a Fool I was in my dull Days of Constancy, but I am now for Change, (and should I pay as often, 'twould undo me)——for Change, my Dear, of Place, Clothes, Wine, and Women. Variety is the Soul of Pleasure, a Good unknown; and we want Faith to find it.

Beau. Thou wouldst renounce that fond Opinion, Willmore, didst thou see a Beauty here in Town, whose Charms have Power to fix inconstant Nature or Fortune were she tottering on her Wheel.

Will. Her Name, my Dear, her Name?

Beau. I would not breathe it even in my Complaints, lest amorous Winds should bear it o'er the World, and make Mankind her Slaves; but that it is a Name too cheaply known, and she that owns it may be as cheaply purchas'd.

Will. Hah! cheaply purchas'd too! I languish for her.

Beau. Ay, there's the Devil on't, she is—a Whore.

Will. Ah, what a charming Sound that mighty Word bears!

Beau. Damn her, she'll be thine or any body's.

Will. I die for her——

Beau. Then for her Qualities——

Will. No more——ye Gods, I ask no more, Be she but fair and much a Whore——Come let's to her.

Beau. Perhaps to morrow you may see this Woman.

Will. Death, 'tis an Age.

Feth. Oh, Captain, the strangest News, Captain.

Will. Prithee what?

Feth. Why, Lieutenant Shift here tells us of two Monsters arriv'd from Mexico, Jews of vast Fortunes, with an old Jew Uncle their Guardian; they are worth a hundred thousand Pounds a piece——Mercy upon's, why, 'tis a Sum able to purchase all Flanders again from his most christian Majesty.

Will. Ha, ha, ha, Monsters!

Beau. He tells you Truth, Willmore.

Blunt. But hark ye, Lieutenant, are you sure they are not married?

Beau. Who the Devil would venture on such formidable Ladies?

Feth. How, venture on 'em! by the Lord Harry, and that would I, tho' I'm a Justice of the Peace, and they be Jews, (which to a Christian is a thousand Reasons.)

Blunt. Is the Devil in you to declare our Designs? [Aside.

Feth. Mum, as close as a Jesuit.

Beau. I admire your Courage, Sir, but one of them is so little, and so deform'd, 'tis thought she is not capable of Marriage; and the other is so huge an overgrown Giant, no Man dares venture on her.

Will. Prithee let's go see 'em; what do they pay for going in?

Feth. Pay——I'd have you to know they are Monsters of Quality.

Shift. And not to be seen but by particular Favour of their Guardian, whom I am got acquainted with, from the Friendship I have with the Merchant where they lay. The Giant, Sir, is in love with me, the Dwarf with Ensign Hunt, and as we manage Matters we may prove lucky.

Beau. And didst thou see the Show? the Elephant and the Mouse.

Shift. Yes, and pleas'd them wondrously with News I brought 'em of a famous Mountebank who is coming to Madrid, here are his Bills——who amongst other his marvellous Cures, pretends to restore Mistakes in Nature, to new-mould a Face and Body tho never so misshapen, to exact Proportion and Beauty. This News has made me gracious to the Ladies, and I am to bring 'em word of the Arrival of this famous Empirick, and to negotiate the Business of their Reformation.

Will. And do they think to be restor'd to moderate sizes?

Shift. Much pleas'd with the Hope, and are resolv'd to try at any Rate.

Feth. Mum, Lieutenant——not too much of their Transformation; we shall have the Captain put in for a Share, and the Devil would not have him his Rival: Ned and I are resolv'd to venture a Cast for 'em as they are—— Hah, Ned.

[Will. and Beau. read the Bill.]

Blunt. Yes, if there were any Hopes of your keeping a Secret.

Feth. Nay, nay, Ned, the World knows I am a plaguy Fellow at your Secrets; that, and my Share of the Charge shall be my Part, for Shift says the Guardian must be brib'd for Consent: Now the other Moiety of the Money and the Speeches shall be thy part, for thou hast a pretty Knack that that way. Now Shift shall bring Matters neatly about, and we'll pay him by the Day, or in gross, when we are married——hah Shift.

Shift. Sir, I shall be reasonable.

Will. I am sure Fetherfool and Blunt have some wise Design upon these two Monsters——it must be so——and this Bill has put an extravagant Thought into my Head——hark ye Shift. [Whispers to him.]

Blunt. The Devil's in't if this will not redeem my Reputation with the Captain, and give him to understand that all the Wit does not lie in the Family of the Willmores, but that this Noddle of mine can be fruitful too upon Occasion.

Feth. Ay, and Lord how we'll domineer, Ned, hah——over Willmore and the rest of the Renegado Officers, when we have married these Lady Monsters, hah, Ned.

Blunt.——Then to return back to Essex worth a Million.

Feth. And I to Croyden——

Blunt.——Lolling in Coach and Six——

Feth.——Be dub'd Right Worshipful——

Blunt. And stand for Knight of the Shire.

Will. Enough——I must have my Share of this Jest, and for divers and sundry Reasons thereunto belonging, must be this very Mountebank expected.

Shift. Faith, Sir, and that were no hard matter, for a day or two the Town will believe it, the same they look for: and the Bank, Operators and Musick are all ready.

Will. Well enough, add but a Harlequin and Scaramouch, and I shall mount in querpo.

Shift. Take no care for that, Sir, your Man, and Ensign Hunt, are excellent at those two; I saw 'em act 'em the other day to a Wonder, they'll be glad of the Employment, my self will be an Operator.

Will. No more, get it ready, and give it out, the Man of Art's arriv'd: Be diligent and secret, for these two politick Asses must be cozen'd.

Shift. I will about the Business instantly. [Ex. Shift.]

Beau. This Fellow will do Feats if he keeps his Word.

Will. I'll give you mine he shall——But, dear Beau-mond, where shall we meet anon?

Beau. I thank ye for that—'Gad, ye shall dine with me.

Feth. A good Motion——

Will. I beg your Pardon now, dear Beaumont—I having lately nothing else to do, took a Command of Horse from the General at the last Siege, from which I am just arriv'd, and my Baggage is behind, which I must take order for.

Feth. Pox on't now there's a Dinner lost, 'twas ever an unlucky Rascal.

Beau. To tempt thee more, thou shalt see my Wife that is to be.

Will. Pox on't, I am the leudest Company in Christendom with your honest Women ——but——What art thou to be noos'd then?

Beau. 'Tis so design'd by my Uncle, if an old Grandee my Rival prevent it not; the Wench is very pretty, young, and rich, and lives in the same House with me, for 'tis my Aunt's Daughter.

Will. Much good may it d'ye Harry, I pity you, but 'tis the common Grievance of you happy Men of Fortune.

[Goes towards the House-door with Beau.]

Enter La Nuche, Aurelia, Petronella, Sancho, Women veil'd a little.

Aur. Heavens, Madam, is not that the English Captain?
[Looking on Will.]

La Nu. 'Tis, and with him Don Henrick the Ambassador's Nephew——how my Heart pants and heaves at sight of him! some Fire of the old Flames remaining, which I must strive to extinguish. For I'll not bate a Ducat of this Price I've set upon my self, for all the Pleasures Youth or Love can bring me——for see Aurelia——the sad Memento of a decay'd poor old forsaken Whore in Petronella; consider her, and then commend my Prudence.

Will. Hah, Women!——

Feth. Egad and fine ones too, I'll tell you that.

Will. No matter, Kindness is better Sauce to Woman than Beauty! By this Hand she looks at me——Why dost hold me?
[Feth. holds him.]

Feth. Why, what a Devil art mad?

Will.

Will. Raging, as vigorous Youth kept long from Beauty; wild for the charming Sex, eager for Woman, I long to give a Loose to Love and Pleasure.

Blunt. These are not Women, Sir, for you to ruffle -- ill. Have a care of your Persons of Quality, Ned.

[Goes to La Nuche.

————— Those lovely Eyes were never made to throw their Darts in vain.

La Nu. The Conquest would be hardly worth the Pain.

Will. Hah, La Nuche! with what a proud Dildain she flung away — stay, I will not part so with you — [Holds her.

Enter Ariadne and Lucia with Footmen.

Aria. Who are these before us, Lucia?

Luc. I know not, Madam; but if you make not haste home, you'll be troubled with Carlo your importunate Lover, who is just behind us.

Aria. Hang me, a lovely Man! what Lady's that? stay.

Pe. What Insolence is this! This Villain will spoil all —

Feth. Why, Captain, are you quite distracted? — do you know where thou art? Prithee be civil —

Will. Go proud and cruel! [Turns her from him.

Enter Carlo, and two or three Spanish Servants following: Petronella goes to him.

Car. Hah, affronted by a drunken Islander, a saucy Tramontane! — Draw — [To his Servants whilst he takes La Nuche.

whilst I lead her off — fear not, Lady, you have the Honour of my Sword to guard ye.

Will. Hah Carlo — ye lye — it cannot guard the boasting Fool that wears it — be gone — and look not back upon this Woman. (Snatches her from him) One single Glance destroys thee —

[They draw and fight; Carlo getting hindmost of his Spaniards, the English beat 'em off: The Ladies run away, all but Ariadne and Lucia.

Luc. Heav'ns, Madam, why do ye stay?

Aria. To pray for that dear Stranger — And see, my Prayers are heard, and he's return'd in safety — this Door shall shelter me to o'er-hear the Quarrel. [Steps aside.

Enter Will. Blunt, Feth. looking big, and putting up his Sword.

Feth. The noble Captain be affronted by a starch'd Ruff and Beard, a Coward in querpo, a walking Bunch of Garlick, a pickle Pilchard! abuse the noble Captain, and bear it off in State, like a Christmas Sweet-heart; these things must not be whilst Nicholas Fetherfool wears a Sword.

Blunt. Pox o' these Women, I thought no good would come on't: besides, where's the Jest in affronting honest Women, if there be such a thing in the Nation?

Feth. Hang't, 'twas the Devil and all——

Will. Ha, ha, ha! Why good honest homespun Country Gentleman, who do you think those were?

Feth. Were! why, Ladies of Quality going to their Devotion; who should they be?

Blunt. Why, faith, and so I thought too.

Will. Why, that very one Woman I spoke to is ten Whores in Surrey.

Feth. Prithee speak softly Man: 'Slife, we shall be poniarded for keeping thee company.

Will. Wise Mr. Justice, give me your Warrant, and if I do not prove 'em Whores, whip me.

Feth. Prithee hold thy scandalous blasphemous Tongue, as if I did not know Whores from Persons of Quality.

Will. Will you believe me when you lie with her? for thou'rt a rich Ass, and may'st do it.

Feth. Whores——ha, ha——

Will. 'Tis strange Logick now, because your Band is better than mine, I must not know a Whore better than you.

Blunt. If this be a Whore, as thou say'st, I understand nothing——by this Light such a Wench would pass for a Person of Quality in London.

Feth. Few Ladies I have seen at a Sheriff's Feast have better Faces, or worn so good Clothes; and by the Lord Harry, if these be of the gentle Craft, I'd not give a Real for an honest Woman for my use.

Will. Come follow me into the Church, for thither I am am sure they're gone : And I will let you see what a wretched thing you had been had you liv'd seven Years longer in Surrey, stew'd in Ale and Beef-broth.

Feth. O dear Willmore, name not those savory things, there's no jesting with my Stomach ; it sleeps now, but if it wakes, wo be to your Shares at the Ordinary.

Blunt. I'll say that for Fetherfool, if his Heart were but half so good as his Stomach, he were a brave Fellow.

[Aside, Exeunt.]

Aria. I am resolv'd to follow——and learn, if possible, who 'tis has made this sudden Conquest o'er me.

[All go off.]

(Scene draws, and discovers a Church, a great many People at Devotion, soft Musick playing. Enter La Nuche, Aurelia, Petron. and Sancho : To them Willmore, Feth. Blunt ; then Ariadne, Lucia ; Feth. bows to La Nuche and Petronella.)

Feth. Now as I hope to be sav'd, Blunt, she's a most melodious Lady. Would I were worthy to purchase a Sin or so with her. Would not such a Beauty reconcile thy Quarrel to the Sex ?

Blunt. No, were she an Angel in that Shape.

Feth. Why, what a pox couldst not lie with her if she'd let thee ? By the Lord Harry, as errant a Dog as I am, I'd fain see any of Cupid's Cook-maids put me out of countenance with such a Shoulder of Mutton.

Aria. See how he gazes on her———Lucia go nearer, and o'er-hear 'em.

[Lucia listens.]

Will. Death, how the charming Hypocrite looks to day, with such a soft Devotion in her Eyes, as if even now she were praising Heav'n for all the Advantages it has blest her with.

Blunt. Look how Willmore eyes her, the Rogue's smitten heart-deep——Whores——

Feth. On'y a Trick to keep her to himself——he thought the Name of a Spanish Harlot would fright us from attempting——I must divert him——how is't Captain——Prithee mind this Musick——Is it not most Seraphical ?

Will. Pox, let the Fidlers mind and tune their Pipes I've I've higher Pleasures now.

Feth. Oh have ye so ; what with Whores, Captain ?—
'Tis a most delicious Gentlewoman. [Aside.

Pet. Pray, Madam, mind that Cavalier, who takes such pains to recommend himself to you.

La Nu. Yes, for a fine conceited Fool————

Pet. Catso, a Fool, what else ?

La Nu. Right, they are our noblest Chapmen ; a Fool, and a rich Fool, and an English rich Fool————

Feth. 'Sbud she eyes me, Ned, I'll set my self in order, it may take————hah———— [Sets himself.

Pet. Let me alone to manage him, I'll to him——

La Nu. Or to the Devil, so I had one Minute's time to speak to Willmore.

Pet. And accosting him thus——tell him——

La Nu. in a hasty Tone.]——I am desperately in love with him, and am Daughter, Wife, or Mistress to some Grandee——bemoan the Condition of Women of Quality in Spain, who by too much Constraint are oblig'd to speak first——but were we blest like other Nations where Men and Women meet—— [Speaking so fast, she offering to put in her word, is still prevented by i'other's running on.

Pet. What Herds of Cuckolds would Spain breed——
'Slife, I could find in my Heart to forswear your Service : Have I taught ye your Trade, to become my Instructor, how to cozen a dull phlegmatick greasy-brain'd Englishman ?—go and expect your Wishes.

Will. So, she has sent her Matron to our Coxcomb ; she saw he was a Cully fit for Game——who would not be a Rascal to be rich, a Dog, an Ass, a beaten, harden'd Coward——by Heaven, I will possess this gay insensible, to make me hate her——most extremely curse her——
See if she be not fallen to Pray'r again, from thence to Flattery, Jilting and Purse-taking, to make the Proverb good——My fair false Sybil, what Inspirations are you waiting for from Heaven, new Arts to cheat Mankind !—
Tell me, with what Face canst thou be devout, or ask any thing from thence, who hast made so leud a use of what it has already lavish'd on thee ?

La Nu.

La Nu. Oh my careless Rover ! I perceive all your Shot is not yet spent in Battel, you have a Volley in reserve for me still—Faith, Officer, the Town has wanted Mirth in your Absence.

Will. And so might all the wiser part for thee, who hast no Mirth, no Gaiety about thee, but when thou wouldst design some Coxcomb's ruin ; to all the rest, a Soul thou hast so dull, that neither Love nor Mirth, nor Wit or Wine can wake it to good Nature——thou'rt one who lazily work'st in thy Trade, and sell'st for ready Mony so much Kindness ; a tame cold Sufferer only, and no more.

La Nu. What, you would have a Mistress like a Squirrel in a Cage, always in Action —— one who is as free of her Favours as I am sparing of mine——Well, Captain, I have known the time when La Nuche was such a Wit, such a Humour, such a Shape, and such a Voice, (tho to say Truth I sing but scurvily) 'twas Comedy to see and hear me.

Will. Why, yes Faith for once thou wert, and for once mayst be again, till thou know'st thy Man, and knowest him to be poor. At first you lik'd me too, you saw me gay, no marks of Poverty dwelt in my Face or Dress, and then I was the dearest loveliest Man——all this was to my out-side ; Death, you made love to my Breeches, caress'd my Garniture and Feather, an English Fool of Quality you thought me——'Sheart, I have known a Woman doat on Quality, tho he has stunk thro all his Perfumes ; one who never went all to Bed to her, but left his Teeth, an Eye, false Back and Breast, sometimes his Palate too upon her Toiler, whilst her fair Arms hug'd the dismember'd Carcase, and swore him all Perfection, because of Quality.

La Nu. But he was rich, good Captain, was he not ?

Will. Oh most damnably, and a confounded Blockhead, two certain Remedies against your Pride and Scorn.

La Nu. Have you done, Sir ?

Will. With thee and all thy Sex, of which I've try'd an hundred, and found none true or honest.

La Nu. Oh, I doubt not the number : for you are one of

of those healthy-stomach Lovers, that can digest a Mistress in a Night, and hunger again next Morning : a Pox of your whining consumptive Constitution, who are only constant for want of Appetite : you have a swinging Stomach to Variety, and Want having set an edge upon your Invention, (with which you cut thro' all Difficulties) you grow more impudent by Success.

Will. I am not always scorn'd then.

La Nu. I have known you as confidently put your Hands into your Pockets for Money in a Morning, as if the Devil had been your Banker, when you knew you put 'em off at Night as empty as your Gloves.

Will. And it may be found Mony there too.

La Nu. Then with this Poverty so proud you are, you will not give the Wall to the Catholick King, unless his Picture hung upon't. No Servants, no Mony, no Meat, always on foot, and yet undaunted still.

Will. Allow me that, Child.

La Nu. I wonder what the Devil makes you so termagant on our Sex, 'tis not your high feeding, for your Grandees only dine, and that but when Fortune pleases— For your parts, who are the poor dependent, brown Bread and old Adam's Ale is only current amongst ye ; yet if little Eve walk in the Garden, the starv'd lean Rogues neigh after her, as if they were in Paradise.

Will. Still true to Love you see—

La Nu. I heard an English Capuchin swear, that if the King's Followers could be brought to pray as well as fast, there would be more Saints among 'em than the Church has ever canoniz'd.

Will. All this with Pride I own, since 'tis a royal Cause I suffer for ; go pursue your Business your own way, insnare the Fool— I saw the Toils you set, and how that Face was ordered for the Conquest, your Eyes brimful of dying lying Love ; and now and then a wishing Glance or Sigh thrown as by chance ; which when the happy Coxcomb caught—you feign'd a Blush, as angry and asham'd of the Discovery : and all this Cunning's for a little mercenary Gain—fine Clothes, perhaps some Jewels too, whilst all the Finery cannot hide the Whore !

La Nu.

La Nu. There's your eternal Quarrel to our Sex, 'twere a fine Trade indeed to keep a Shop and give your Ware for Love: would it turn to account think ye, Captain, to trick and dress, to deceive all wou'd enter? faith Captain try the Trade.

Pet. What in Discourse with this Railer!—come away; Poverty's catching. [Returns from Discourse with Feth. speaks to San.]

Will. So is the Pox, good Matron, of which you can afford good Penniworths.

La Nu. He charms me even with his angry Looks, and will undo me yet.

Pet. Let's leave this Place, I'll tell you my Success as we go.

[Ex. all, some one way, some another, the Forepart of the Church shuts over, except Will, Blunt, Aria. and Lucia.]

Will. She's gone, and all the Plagues of Pride go with her.

Blunt. Heartlikins follow her——Pox on't, an I'd but as good a Hand at this Game as thou hast, I'll venture upon any Chance——

Will. Damn her, come let's to Dinner. Where's Fetherfool?

Blunt. Follow'd a good Woodman, who gave him the Sign: he'll lodge the Deer e'er night.

Will. Follow'd her——he durst not, the Fool wants Confidence enough to look on her.

Blunt. Oh you know not how a Country Justice may be improved by Travel; the Rogue was hedg'd in at home with the Fear of his Neighbours and the Penal Statutes, now he's broke loose, he runs neighing like a Stone-Horse upon the Common.

Will. However I'll not believe this——let's follow 'em.

[Ex. Will. and Blunt.]

Aria. He is in love, but with a Courtezian--some Comfort We'll after him——'Tis a faint-hearted Lover, (that. Who for the first Discouragement gives over.

[Ex. Ariadne and Lucia.]

ACT II. SCENE I.

Enter Fetherfool and Sancho, passing over the Stage; after them Willmore and Blunt, follow'd by Ariadne and Lucia.

Will. 'TIS so, by Heaven, he's chaffering with her Pimp. I'll spare my Curses on him for having her, he has a Plague beyond 'em.

—Harkye, I'll never love, nor lie with Women more, those Slaves to Lust, to Vanity and Interest.

Blunt. Ha, Captain! [Shaking his Head and smiling.

Will. Come, let's go drink Damnation to 'em all.

Blunt. Not all, good Captain.

Will. All, for I hate 'em all—

Aria. Heavens! if he should indeed! [Aside.

Blunt. But, Robert, I have found you most inclined to a Damsel when you had a Bottle in your Head.

Will. Give me thy Hand, Ned—Curse me, despise me, point me out for Cowardice if e'er thou see'st me court a Woman more: Nay, when thou knowest I ask any of the Sex a civil Question again—a Plague upon 'em, how they've handled me—come, let's go drink, I say—Confusion to the Race—A Woman!—no, I will be burnt with my own Fire to Cinders e'er any of the Brood shall lay my Flame—

Aria. He cannot be so wicked to keep this Resolution sure — [She passes by.

Faith I must be resolv'd—you've made a pious Resolution, Sir, had you the Grace to keep it—

[Passing on he pauses, and looks on her.

Will. Hum—What's that?

Blunt. That—O—nothing—but a Woman—come a-way.

Will. A Woman! Damn her, what Mischief made her cross my way just on the Point of Reformation!

Blunt. I find the Devil will not lose so hopeful a Sinner. Hold, hold, Captain, have you no Regard to your own Soul?

Soul? 'dsheartlikins 'tis a Woman, a very errant Woman.

Aria. Your Friend informs you right, Sir, I am a Woman.

Will. Ay Child, or I were a lost Man—therefore dear lovely Creature—

Aria. How can you tell, Sir?

Will. Oh, I have naturally a large Faith, Child, and thou'st a promising Form, a tempting Motion, clean Limbs, well drest, and a most damnable inviting Air.

Aria. I am not to be sold, nor fond of Praise I merit not.

Will. How, not to be sold too! By this light, Child, thou speakest like a Cherubim, I have not heard so obliging a Sound from the Mouth of Woman-kind this many a Day—I find we must be better acquainted, my Dear.

Aria. Your Reason, good familiar Sir, I see no such Necessity.

Will. Child, you are mistaken, I am in great Necessity; for first I love thee—desperately—have I not damn'd my Soul already for thee, and wouldst thou be so wicked to refuse a little Consolation to my Body? Then secondly, I see thou art frank and good-natur'd, and wilt do Reason gratis.

Aria. How prove ye that, good Mr. Philosopher?

Will. Thou say'st thou'rt not to be sold, and I'm sure thou'rt to be had—that lovely Body of so divine a Form, those soft smooth Arms and Hands, were made t'embrace as well as be embrac'd; that delicate white rising Bosom to be prest, and all thy other Charms to be enjoy'd.

Aria. By one that can esteem 'em to their worth, can set a Value and a Rate upon 'em.

Will. Name not those Words, they grate my Ears like Jointure, that dull conjugal Cant that frights the generous Lover. Rate—Death, let the old Dotards talk of Rates, and pay it t'atone for the Defects of Impotence. Let the sly Statesman, who jilts the Commonwealth with his grave Politicks, pay for the Sin, that he may doat in secret; let the brisk Fool inch out his scanted Sense with a large Purse

Purse more eloquent than he: But tell not me of Rates, who bring a Heart, Youth, Vigor, and a Tongue to sing the Praise of every single Pleasure thou shalt give me.

Aria. Then if I should be kind, I perceive you would not keep the Secret.

Will. Secresy is a damn'd ungrateful Sin, Child, known only where Religion and Small-beer are current, despis'd where Apollo and the Vine bless the Country: you find none of Jove's Mistresses hid in Roots and Plants, but fixt Stars in Heaven for all to gaze and wonder at—— and tho I am no God, my Dear, I'll do a Mortal's Parr, and generously tell the admiring World what hidden Charms thou hast: Come, lead me to some Place of Happiness——

Blunt. Prithee, honest Damsel, be not so full of Questions; will a Pistole or two do thee any hurt?

Luc. None at all, Sir——

Blunt. Thou speak'st like a hearty Wench—and I believe hast not been one of Venus's Hand-maids so long, but thou understandst thy Trade——In short, fair Damsel, this honest Fellow here who is so termagant upon thy Lady, is my Friend, my particular Friend, and therefore I would have him handsomly, and well-favour'dly abus'd——you conceive me.

Luc. Truly, Sir, a friendly Request——but in what Nature abus'd?

Blunt. Nature!——why any of your Tricks would serve——but if he could be conveniently strip'd and beaten, or tost in a Blanket, or any such trivial Business, thou wouldst do me a singular Kindness; as for Robbery he defies the Devil: an empty Pocket is an Antidote against that Ill.

Luc. Your Money, Sir: and if he be not cozen'd, say a Spanish Woman has neither Wit nor Invention upon Occasion.

Blunt. Sheartlikins, how I shall love and honour thee for't——here's earnest—— [Talks to her with Joy, and Grimace.

Aria. But who was that you entertain'd at Church but now?

Will.

Will. Faith one, who for her Beauty merits that glorious Title she wears, it was—a Whore, Child.

Aria. That's but a scurvy Name; yet, if I'm not mistaken, in those false Eyes of yours, they look with longing Love upon that—Whore, Child.

Will. Thou art i'th' right, and by this hand, my Soul was full as wishing as my Eyes: but a Pox on't, you Women have all a certain Jargon, or Gibberish, peculiar to your selves; of Value, Rate, Present, Interest, Settlement, Advantage, Price, Maintenance, and the Devil and all of Fopperies, which in plain Terms signify ready Money, by way of Fine before Entrance; so that an honest well-meaning Merchant of Love finds no Credit amongst ye, without his Bill of Lading.

Aria. We are not all so cruel—but the Devil on't is, your good-natur'd Heart is likely accompanied with an ill Face and worse Wit.

Will. Faith, Child, a ready Dish when a Man's Stomach is up, is better than a tedious Feast. I never saw any Man yet cut my piece; some are for Beauty, some are for Wit, and some for the Secret, but I for all, so it be in a kind Girl: and for Wit in Woman, so she say pretty fond things, we understand; tho' true or false, no matter.

Aria. Give the Devil his due, you are a very conscientious Lover: I love a Man that scorns to impose dull Truth and Constancy on a Mistress.

Will. Constancy, that current Coin with Fools! No Child, Heaven keep that Curse from our Doors.

Aria. Hang it, it loses Time and Profit, new Lovers have new Vows and new Presents, whilst the old feed upon dull repetition of what they did when they were Lovers; 'tis like eating the cold Meat ones felt, after having given a Friend a Feast.

Will. Yes, that's the thrifty Food for the Family when the Guests are gone. Faith, Child, thou hast made a neat and a hearty Speech: But prithee, my Dear, for the future, leave out that same Profit and Present, for I have a natural Aversion to hard words; and for matter of quick Dispatch in the Business—give me thy Hand, Child—let

let us but start fair, and if thou outstripst me, thou'rt a nimble Racer. [Lucia sees Shift.

Luc. Oh, Madam, let's be gone: yonder's Lieutenant Shift, who, if he sees us, will certainly give an Account of it to Mr. Beaumont. Let's get in thro the Garden, I have the Key.

Aria. Here's Company coming, and for several reasons I wou'd not be seen. [Offers to go.

Will. Gad, Child, nor I; Reputation is tender—therefore prithee let's retire. [Offers to go with her.

Aria. You must not stir a step.

Will. Not stir! no Magick Circle can detain me if you go.

Aria. Follow me then at a distance, and observe where I enter; and at night (if your Passion lasts so long) return, and you shall find Admittance into the Garden.

[Speaking hastily.

He runs out after her.

Enter Shift.

Shift. Well, Sir, the Mountebank's come, and just going to begin in the Piazza; I have order'd Matters, that you shall have a Sight of the Monsters, and leave to court 'em, and when won, to give the Guardian a fourth part of the Portions.

Blunt. Good: But Mum——here's the Captain, who must by no means know our good Fortune, till he see us in State.

Enter Willmore, Shift goes to him.

Shift. All things are ready, Sir, for our Design, the House prepar'd as you directed me, the Guardian wrought upon by the Persuasions of the two Monsters, to take a Lodging there, and try the Bath of Reformation: The Bank's preparing, and the Operators and Musick all ready, and the impatient Town flockt together to behold the Man of Wonders, and nothing wanting but your Donship and a proper Speech.

Will. 'Tis well, I'll go fit my self with a Dress, and think of a Speech the while: In the mean time, go you and amuse the gaping Fools that expect my coming.

[Goes out.

Enter

Enter Fetherfool singing and dancing.

Feth. Have you heard of a Spanish Lady,
How she woo'd an English Man?

Blunt. Why how now, Fetherfool?

Feth. Garments gay, and rich as may be,
Deckt with Jewels, had she on.

Blunt. Why how now, Justice, what run mad out of Dog-days?

Fether. Of a comely Countenance and Grace is she,
A sweeter Creature in the World there could not be.

Shift. Why what the Devil's the matter, Sir?

Blunt. Stark mad, 'dshartlikins.

Feth. Of a Comely Countenance — well, Lieuten-nant, the most heroick and illustrious Madona! Thou saw'st her, Ned: And of a comely Counte — The most Magnetick Face — well — I knew the Charms of these Eyes of mine were not made in vain: I was design'd for great things, that's certain — And a sweeter Creature in the World there could not be. [Singing.

Blunt. What then the two Lady Monsters are forgotten? the Design upon the Million of Money, the Coach and Six, and Patent for Right Worshipful, all drown'd in the Joy of this new Mistress? — But well, Lieuten-nant, since he is so well provided for, you may put in with me for a Monster; such a Jest, and such a Sum, is not to be lost.

Shift. Nor shall not, or I have lost my Aim. [Aside.

Feth. (Putting off his Hat) Your Pardons, good Gentlemen; and tho I perceive I shall have no great need for so trifling a Sum as a hundred thousand Pound, or so, yet a Bargain's a Bargain, Gentlemen.

Blunt. Nay, 'dshartlikins, the Lieutenant scorns to do a foul thing, d'ye see, but we would not have the Monsters slighted.

Feth. Slighted! no, Sir, I scorn your Words, I'd have ye to know, that I have as high a Respect for Madam Monster, as any Gentleman in Christendom, and so
I desire she should understand.

Blunt. Why, this is that that's handsom.

Shift.

Shift. Well, the Mountebank's come, Lodgings are taken at his House, and the Guardian prepar'd to receive you on the aforesaid Terms, and some fifty Pistoles to the Mountebank to stand your Friend, and the Business is done.

Feth. Which shall be perform'd accordingly, I have it ready about me.

Blunt. And here's mine, put 'em together, and let's be speedy, lest some should bribe higher, and put in before us. [Feth. takes the Money, and looks pitiful on't.]

Feth. 'Tis a plaguy round Sum, Ned, pray God it turn to Account.

Blunt. Account, 'dsheartlikins, 'tis not in the Power of mortal Man to cozen 'me.

Shift. Oh fie, Sir, cozen you, Sir!—well, you'll stay here and see the Mountebank, he's coming forth.

[A Hollowing. Enter from the Front a Bank, a Pageant, which they fix on the Stage at one side, a little Pavilion on't, Musick playing, and Operators round below, or Antickers.]

[Musick plays, and an Antick Dance.]

Enter Willmore like a Mountebank, with a Dagger in one Hand, and a Viol in the other; Carlo with other Spaniards below, and Rabble; Ariadne and Lucia above in the Balcony, others on the other side, Feinerfool and Blunt below.

Will. (bowing) Behold this little Viol, which contains in its narrow Bounds what the whole Universe cannot purchase, if sold to its true Value; this admirable, this miraculous Elixir, drawn from the Hearts of Mandrakes, Phenix Livers, and Tongues of Mairmaids, and distill'd by contracted Sun-Beams, has besides the unknown Virtue of curing all Distempers both of Mind and Body, that divine one of animating the Heart of Man to that Degree, that however remiss, cold and cowardly by Nature, he shall become vigorous and brave. Oh stupid and insensible Man, when Honour and secure Renown invites you, to treat it with Neglect, even when you need but passive Valour, to become the Heroes of the Age; receive a thousand Wounds, each of which wou'd let out fleeting Life:

Here's

Here's that can snatch the parting Soul in its full Career, and bring it back to its native Mansion; baffles grim
Death, and disappoints even Fate.

Feth. Oh Pox, an a Man were sure of that now——

Will. Behold, here's Demonstration——

Harlequin stabs himself, and falls as dead.

Feth. Hold, hold, why, what the Devil is the Fellow mad?

Blunt. Why, do'tt think he has hurt himself?

Feth. Hurt himself! why, he's murder'd, Man; 'tis flat Felo de se, in any ground in England, if I understand Law, and I have been a Justice o'th' Peace.

Will. See, Gen lemen, he's dead——

Feth. Look ye there now, I'll be gone lest I be taken as an Accessary.

[Gang out.]

Will. Coffin him, inter him, yet after four and twenty Hours, as many Drops of this divine Elixir give him new Life again; this will recover whole Fields of slain, and all the Dead shall rise and fight again—— 'twas this that made the Roman Legions numerous, and now makes France so formidable, and this alone—— may be the Occasion of the loss of Germany.

[Pours in Harlequin's Wound, he rises.]

Feth. Why this Fellow's the Devil, Ned, that's for certain.

Blunt. Oh plague, a damn'd Conjuror, this——

Will. Come, buy this Coward's Comfort, quickly buy; what Fop would be abus'd, mimick'd and scorn'd, for fear of Wounds can be so easily cured? Who is't wou'd bear the Insolence and Pride of domineering great Men, proud Officers or Magistrates? or who wou'd cringe to Statesmen out of Fear? What Cully wou'd be cuckolded?
What foolish Heir undone by cheating Gamesters? What Lord wou'd be lampoon'd? What Poet fear the Malice of his satirical Brother, or Atheist fear to fight for fear of Death? Come buy my Coward's Comfort, quickly buy.

Feth. Egad, Ned, a very excellent thing this; I'll lay out ten Reals upon this Commodity.

[They buy, whilst another Part of the Dance is danc'd.]

Will.

Will. Behold this little Paper, which contains a Pouders, whose Value surmounts that of Rocks of Diamonds and Hills of Gold ; 'twas this made Venus a Goddess, and was given her by Apollo, from her deriv'd to Helen, and in the Sack of Troy lost, till recover'd by me out of some Ruins of Asia. Come, buy it, Ladies, you that wou'd be fair and wear eternal Youth ; and you in whom the amorous Fire remains, when all the Charms are fled : You that dress young and gay, and would be thought so, that patch and paint, to fill up sometimes old Furrows on your Brows, and set your selves for Conquest, tho in vain ; here's that will give you auburn Hair, white Teeth, red Lips, and Dimples on your Cheeks : Come, buy it all you that are past bewitching, and wou'd have handsom, young and active Lovers.

Feth. Another good thing, Ned.

Car. I'll lay out a Pistole or two in this, if it have the same Effect on Men.

Will. Come, all you City Wives, that wou'd advance your Husbands to Lord Mayors, come, buy of me new Beauty ; this will give it tho now decay'd, as are your Shop Commodities ; this will retrieve your Customers, and vend your false and out of fashion'd Wares : cheat, lye, protest and cozen as you please, a handsom Wife makes all a lawful Gain. Come, City Wives, come, buy.

Feth. A most prodigious Fellow !

[They buy, he sits, the other Part is danc'd.]

Will. But here, behold the Life and Soul of Man ! this is the amorous Pouders, which Venus made and gave the God of Love, which made him first a Deity ; you talk of Arrows, Bow, and killing Darts ; Fables, poetical Fictions, and no more : 'tis this alone that wounds and fires the Heart, makes Women kind, and equals Men to Gods ; 'tis this that makes your great Lady doat on the ill-favour'd Fop ; your great Man be jilted by his little Mistress, the Judge cajol'd by his Semstress, and your Politician by his Comedian ; your young Lady doat on her decrepid Husband, your Chaplain on my Lady's Waiting-Woman, and the young Squire on the Landry-Maid——In fine Messieurs,

'Tis this that cures the Lover's Pain,
And Celia of her cold Disdain.

Feth. A most devilish Fellow this !

Blunt. Hold, shartlikins, Fetherfool, let's have a Dose or two of this Pouders for quick Dispatch with our Monsters.

Feth. Why Pox, Man, Jugg my Giant would swallow a whole Cart-Load before 'twould operate.

Blunt. No hurt in trying a Paper or two however.

Car. A most admirable Receipt, I shall have need on't.

Will. I need say nothing of my divine Baths of Reformation, nor the wonders of the old Oracle of the Box, which resolves all Questions, my Bilis sufficiently declare their Virtue.

[Sits down.

[They buy.

Enter Petronella Elenora carried in a Chair, dress'd like a Girl of Fifteen.

Shift. Room there, Gentlemen, room for a Patient.

Blunt. Pray, Seignior, who may this be thus muzzl'd by old Gaffer Time ?

Car. One Petronella Elenora, Sir, a famous outworn Curtezian.

Blunt. Elenora ! she may be that of Troy for her Antiquity, tho' fitter for God Priapus to ravish than Paris.

Shift. Hunt, a word ; dost thou see that same formal Politician yonder, on the Jennet, the nobler Animal of the two ?

Hunt. What of him ?

Shift. 'Tis the same drew on the Captain this Morning, and I must revenge the Affront.

Hunt. Have a care of Revenges in Spain, upon Persons of his Quality.

Shift. Nay, I'll only steal his Horse from under him.

Hunt. Steal it ! thou may'st take it by force perhaps ; but how safely is a Question.

Shift. I'll warrant thee——shoulder you up one side of his great Saddle, I'll do the like on t'other ; then heaving him gently up, Harlequin shall lead the Horse, from between his Worship's Legs: All this in the Croud will not be perceiv'd, where all Eyes are employ'd on the Mountebank.

Hunt. I apprehend you now——

[Whilst they are lifting Petronella on the Mountebank's Stage, they go into the Croud, shoulder up Carlo's Saddle. Harlequin leads the Horse forward, whilst Carlo is gazing, and turning up his Mustachios; they hold him up a little while, then let him drop: he rises and stares about for his Horse.]

Car. This is flat Conjuration.

Shift. What's your Worship on foot?

Hunt. I never saw his Worship on foot before.

Car. Sirrah, none of your Jest, this must be by diabolical Art, and shall cost the Seignior dear—Men of my Garb affronted—my Jenner vanish—most miraculous—by St. Jago I'll be revenged——hah, what's here——
La Nuche——

[Surveys her at a distance.]

Enter La Nuche, Aurelia, Sancho.

La Nu. We are pursu'd by Beaumont, who will certainly hinder our speaking to Willmore, should we have the good fortune to see him in this Croud——and yet there's no avoiding him.

Beau. 'Tis she, how carefully she shuns me!

Aur. I'm satisfied he knows us by the jealous Concern which appears in that prying Countenance of his.

Beau. Stay, Cruel, is it Love or Curiosity, that wings those nimble Feet? [Holds her.

[Lucia above and Ariadne.]

Aria. Beaumont with a Woman!

Beau. Have you forgot this is the glorious Day that ushers in the Night shall make you mine? the happiest Night that ever favour'd Love!

La Nu. Or if I have, I find you'll take care to remember me.

Beau. Sooner I could forget the Aids of Life, sooner forget how first that Beauty charm'd me.

La Nu. Well, since your Memory's so good, I need not doubt your coming.

Beau.

Beau. Still cold and unconcern'd ! How have I doated, and how sacrific'd, regardless of my Fame, lain idling here, when all the Youth of Spain were gaining Honour, valuing one Smile of thine above their Laurels !

La Nu. And in return, I do submit to yield, preferring you above those fighting Fools, who safe in Multitudes reap Honour cheaper.

Beau. Yet there is one—one of those fighting Fools which should'st thou see, I fear I were undone brave, handsome, gay, and all that Women doat on, unfortunate in every good of Life, but that one Blessing of obtaining Women : Be wise, for if thou see'st him thou art lost—Why dost thou blush ?

La Nu. Because you doubt my Heart—'tis Willmore that he means. [Aside.] We've Eyes upon us, Don Carlo may grow jealous, and he's a powerful Rival— at night I shall expect ye.

Beau. Whilst I prepare my self for such a Blessing.

[Ex. Beau.

Car. Hah ! a Cavalier in conference with La Nuche ! and entertain'd without my knowledge ! I must prevent this Lover, for he's young—and this Night will surprise her.

[Aside.

Will. And you would be restor'd ?

[To Petro.

Pet. Yes, if there be that Divinity in your Baths of Reformation.

Will. There are.

*New Flames shall sparkle in those Eyes ;
And these grey Hairs flowing and bright shall rise :
These Cheeks fresh Buds of Roses wear,
And all your wither'd Limbs so smooth and clear,
As shall a general Wonder move,
And wound a thousand Hearts with Love.*

Pet. A Blessing on you, Sir, there's fifty Pistoles for you, and as I earn't it you shall have more.

[They lift her down.

[Exit Willmore

bowing.

Shift. Messieurs, 'tis late, and the Seignior's Patients stay for him at his Laboratory, to morrow you shall see the conclusion of this Experiment, and so I humbly take my leave at this time.

Enter Willmore, below sees La Nuche, makes up to her, whilst the last part of the Dance is dancing.

La Nu. What makes you follow me, Sir?

[She goes from him, he pursues.]

Will. Madam, I see something in that lovely Face of yours, which if not timely prevented, will be your ruin: I'm now in haste, but I have more to say— [Goes off.]

La Nu. Stay, Sir—he's gone—and fill'd me with a curiosity that will not let me rest till it be satisfied: Follow me, Aurelia, for I must know my Destiny.

[Goes out.]

[The Dance ended, the Bank removes, the People go off.]

Feth. Come, Ned, now for our amorous Visit to the two Lady Monsters. [Ex.]

SCENE changes to a fine Chamber.

Enter Ariadne and Lucia.

Aria. I'm thoughtful: Prithee, Cousin, sing some foolish Song—

S O N G.

*Phillis, whose Heart was unconfin'd,
And free as Flowers on Meads and Plains,
None boasted of her being kind,
'Mongst all the languishing and amorous Swains:
No Sighs nor Tears the Nymph could move
To pity or return their Love.*

*Till on a time, the hapless Maid
Retir'd to shun the heat o'th' Day,
Into a Grove, beneath whose Shade
Strephon, the careless Shepherd, sleeping lay:
But oh such Charms the Youth adorn,
Love is reveng'd for all her Scorn.*

Her Cheeks with Blushes covered were,
 And tender Sighs her Bosom warm ;
 A softness in her Eyes appear,
 Unusual Pains she feels from every Charm :
 To Woods and Ecchoes now she cries,
 For Modesty to speak denies.

Aria. Come, help to undress me, for I'll to this Mountebank, to know what success I shall have with my Cavalier.

[Unpins her things before a great Glass that is fasten'd.

Luc. You are resolv'd then to give him admittance ?

Aria. Where's the danger of a handsom young Fellow ?

Luc. But you don't know him, Madam.

Aria. But I desire to do, and time may bring it about without Miracle.

Luc. Your Cousin Beaumont will forbid the Banes.

Aria. No, nor old Carlos neither, my Mother's precious Choice, who is as sollicitous for the old Gentleman, as my Father-in-Law is for his Nephew. Therefore, Lucia, like a good and gracious Child, I'll end the Dispute between my Father and Mother, and please my self in the choice of this Stranger, if he be to be had.

Luc. I should as soon be enamour'd on the North Wind, a Tempest, or a Clap of Thunder. Bless me from such a Blast.

Aria. I'd have a Lover rough as Seas in Storms, upon occasion ; I hate your dull temperate Lover, 'tis such a husbandly quality, like Beaumont's Addresses to me, whom neither Joy nor Anger puts in motion ; or if it do, 'tis visibly forc'd——I'm glad I saw him entertain a Woman to day, not that I care, but wou'd be fairly rid of him.

Luc. You'll hardly mend your self in this.

Aria. What, because he held Discourse with a Curtezan ?

Luc. Why is there no danger in her Eyes, do ye think ?

Aria. None that I fear, that Stranger's not such a fool to give his Heart to a common Woman ; and she that's concern'd where her Lover bestows his Body, were I the Man, I should think she had a mind to't her self.

Luc. And reason, Madam : in a lawful way 'tis your due.

Aria. What all? unconscionable Lucia ! I am more merciful but be he what he will, I'll to this cunning Man, to know whether ever any part of him shall be mine.

Luc. Lord, Madam, sure he's a Conjuror.

Aria. Let him be the Devil, I'll try his Skill, and to that end will put on a Suit of my Cousin Endymion's ; there are two or three very pretty ones of his in the Wardrobe, go carry 'em to my Chamber, and we'll fit our selves and away—Go haste whilst I undress. [Ex. Lucia.

[Ariadne undressing before the Glass.

Enter Beaumont tricking himself, and looks on himself.

Beau. Now for my charming Beauty, fair La Nuche—hah—Ariadne—damn the dull Property, how shall I free my self? [She turns, sees him, and walks from the Glass, he takes no notice of her, but tricks himself in the Glass, humming a Song.

Aria. Beaumont ! what Devil brought him hither to prevent me? I hate the formal matrimonial Fop.

[He walks about and sings.

*Somme nous pas trop heureux,
Belle Irise, que nous ensemble.*

A Devil on him, he may chance to plague me till night, and hinder my dear Assignment. [Sings again.

*La Nuit et le Sombre voiles
Coverie nos desires ardentes ;
Et l' Amour et les Etoiles
Sont nos secrets confidentes.*

Beau. Pox on't, how dull am I at an excuse?

[Sets his Wig in the Glass, and sings.

*A Pox of Love and Women-kind,
And all the Fops adore 'em.*

[Puts on his Hat, cocks it, and goes to her.

How is't Cuz?

Aria.

Aria. So, here's the saucy freedom of a Husband Lover—a blest Invention this of marrying, whoe'er first found it out.

Beau. Damn this English Dog of a Perriwig-maker, what an ungainly Air it gives the Face, and for a Wedding Perriwig too—how dost thou like it, Ariadne?

Uneasy.

Aria. As ill as the Man—I perceive you have taken more care for your Perriwig than your Bride.

Beau. And with reason, Ariadne, the Bride was never the care of the Lover, but the business of the Parents; 'tis a serious Affair, and ought to be manag'd by the grave and wise: Thy Mother and my Uncle have agreed the Matter, and would it not look very fillily in me now to whine a tedious Tale of Love in your Ear, when the business is at an end? 'tis like saying a Grace when a Man should give Thanks.

Aria. Why did you not begin sooner then?

Beau. Faith, Ariadne, because I know nothing of the Design in hand; had I had civil warning, thou shouldst have had as pretty smart Speeches from me, as any Coxcomb Lover of 'em all could have made thee.

Aria. I shall never marry like a Jew in my own Tribe; I'll rather be possess'd by honest old doating Age, than by saucy conceited Youth, whose Inconstancy never leaves a Woman safe or quiet.

Beau. You know the Proverb of the half Loaf, Ariadne; a Husband that will deal thee some Love is better than one who can give thee none: you would have a blessed time on't with old Father Carlo.

Aria. No matter, a Woman may with some lawful excuse cuckold him, and 'twould be scarce a Sin.

Beau. Not so much as lying with him, whose reverend Age wou'd make it look like Incest.

Aria. But to marry thee—would be a Tyranny from whence there's no Appeal: A drinking whoring Husband! 'tis the Devil——

Beau. You are deceiv'd, if you think Don Carlo more chaste than I; only duller, and more a Miser, one that fears his Flesh more, and loves his Money better.——

Then to be condemn'd to lie with him — oh, who would not rejoice to meet a Woollen-Waistcoat, and knit Night-Cap without a Lining, a Shirt so nasty, a cleanly Ghost would not appear in't at the latter Day? — then the compound of nasty Smells about him, stinking Breath, Mustachoes stuff with villainous Snuff, Tobacco, and hollow Teeth: thus prepar'd for Delight, you meet in Bed, where you may lie and sigh whole Nights away, he snores it out till Morning, and then rises to his fordid business.

Aria. All this frights me not: 'tis still much better than a keeping Husband, whom neither Beauty nor Honour in a Wife can oblige.

Beau. Oh, you know not the good-nature of a Man of Wit, at least I shall bear a Conscience, and do thee reason, which Heaven denies to old Carlo, were he willing.

Aria. Oh, he talks as high, and thinks as well of himself as any young Coxcomb of ye all.

Beau. He has reason, for if his Faith were no better than his Works, he'd be damn'd.

Aria. Death, who wou'd marry, who wou'd be chaffer'd thus, and sold to Slavery? I'd rather buy a Friend at any Price that I could love and trust.

Beau. Ay, could we but drive on such a Bargain.

Aria. You should not be the Man; you have a Mistress, Sir, that has your Heart, and all your softer Hours: I know't, and if I were so wretched as to marry thee, must see my Fortune lavisht out on her; her Coaches, Dress, and Equipage exceed mine by far: Possess she all the day thy Hours of Mirth, good Humour and Expence, thy Smiles, thy Kisses, and thy Charms of Wit. Oh how you talk and look when in her Presence! but when with me,

*A Pox of Love and Woman-kind,
And all the Fops adore 'em.*

[Sings.

How is't Cuz——then slap, on goes the Beaver, which being cock'd, you bear up briskly, with the second Part to the same Tune——Harkye, Sir, let me advise you to pack up your Trumpery and be gone, your honourable Love, your matrimonial Foppery, with your other Trinkets thereunto belonging; or I shall talk aloud, and let your Uncle hear you.

Beau. Sure she cannot know I love La Nuche. [Aside. The Devil take me, spoil'd! What Rascal has inveigled thee? What lying fawning Coward has abus'd thee? When fell you into this Leudness? Pox, thou art hardly worth the loving now, that canst be such a Fool, to wish me chaste, or love me for that Virtue; or that wouldst have me a ceremonious Whelp, one that makes handsom Legs to Knights without laughing, or with a sneaking modest Squirish Countenance; assure you, I have my Maiden-head. A Curse upon thee, the very thought of Wife has made thee formal.

Aria. I must dissemble, or he'll stay all day to make his peace again——why, have you ne'er——a Mistess then?

Beau. A hundred, by this day, as many as I like, they are my Mirth, the business of my loose and wanton Hours; but thou art my Devotion, the grave, the solemn Pleasure of my Soul——Pox, would I were handsomly rid of thee too. [Aside.

——Come, I have business——send me pleas'd away.

Aria. Would to Heaven thou wert gone; [Aside. You're going to some Woman now.

Beau. Oh damn the Sex, I hate 'em all——but thee——farewell my pretty jealous——sullen——Fool. [Goes out.

Aria. Farewel, believing Coxcomb. [Enter Lucia.

Lucia. Madam, the Clothes are ready in your Chamber.

Aria. Let's haste and put 'em on then. [Runs out.

A C T III. S C E N E I.

A House.

Enter Fetherfool and Blunt, staring about, after them Shift.

Shift. WELL, Gentlemen, this is the Doctor's House, and your fifty Pistoles has made him intirely yours; the Ladies too are here in safe Custody——Come draw Lots who shall have the Dwarf, and who the Giant. [They Draw.]

Feth. I have the Giant.

Blunt. And I the little tiny Gentlewoman.

Shift. Well, you shall first see the Ladies, and then prepare for your Uncle Moses, the old Jew Guardian, before whom you must be very grave and sententious: You know the old Law was full of Ceremony.

Feth. Well, I long to see the Ladies, and to have the first Onset over.

Shift. I'll cause 'em to walk forth immediately.

[Goes out.]

Feth. My Heart begins to fail me plaguily——would I could see 'em a little at a Distance before they come slap dash upon a Man.

[Peeping.]

Hah! ——Mercy upon us! ——What's yonder! ——Ah Ned, my Monster is as big as the Whore of Babylon—— Oh I'm in a cold Sweat——

[Blunt pulls him to peep, and both do so.]

Oh Lord! she's as tall as the St. Christopher in Notre-dame at Paris, and the little one looks like the Christo upon his Shoulders—— I shall ne'er be able to stand the first Brunt.

Blunt. 'Dsheartlikings whither art going?

[Pulls him back.]

Feth. Why only——to——say my Prayers a little—— I'll be with thee presently. [Offers to go, he pulls him.]

Blunt. What a Pox art thou afraid of a Woman——

Feth. Not of a Woman, Ned, but of a She Gari-gantua. I am of a Hercules in Petticoats.

Blunt. The less Resemblance the better. 'Shartlikins, I'd rather mine were a Centaur than a Woman: No, since my Naples Adventure, I am clearly for your Monster.

Feth. Prithee, Ned, there's Reason in all things——

Blunt. But villainous Woman——'Dshartlikins, stand your Ground, or I'll nail you to't: Why, what a Pox are you so quezy stomach'd, a Monster won't down with you, with a hundred thousand Pound to boot.

[Pulling him..

Feth. Nay, Ned, that mollifies something; and I scorn it should be said of Nich. Featherfool that he left his Friend in danger, or did an ill thing: therefore, as thou say'st, Ned, tho' she were a Centaur, I'll not budg an Inch.

Blunt. Why God a Mercy.

Enter the Giant and Dwarf, with them Shift as an Operator.

Feth. Oh——they come——Prithee, Ned, advance.

[Puts him forward..

Shift. Most beautiful Ladies.

Feth. Why, what a flattering Son of a Whore's this?

Shift. These are the illustrious Persons your Uncle designs your humble Servants, and who have so extraordinary a Passion for your Seigniorships.

Feth. Oh yes, a most damnable one: Wou'd I were cleanly off the Lay, and had my Money again.

Blunt. Think of a Million, Rogue, and do not hang an Arse thus.

Giant. What, does the Cavalier think I'll devour him?

[To Shift..

Feth. Something inclin'd to such a Fear.

Blunt. Go and salute her, or, Adshartlikins, I'll leave you to her Mercy.

Feth. Oh dear Ned, have pity on me——but as for saluting her, you speak of more than may be done, dear Heart, without a Scaling Ladder.

[Exit Shift.

Dwarf. Sure, Seignior Harlequin, these Gentlemen are dumb.

Blunt.

Blunt. No, my little diminutive Mistress, my small Epitomy of Woman-kind, we can prattle when our Hands are in, but we are raw and bashful, young Beginners; for this is the first time we ever were in love: we are something aukard, or so, but we shall come on in time, and mend upon Incouragement.

Feth. Pox on him, what a delicate Speech has he made now——'Gad, I'd give a thousand Pounds a Year for Ned's concise Wit, but not a Groat for his Judgment in Womankind.

Enter Shift with a Ladder, sets it against the Giant, and bows to Fetherfool.

Shift. Here Seignior, Don, approach, mount, and salute the Lady.

Feth. Mount! why, 'twou'd turn my Brains to look down from her Shoulders——But hang't, 'Gad, I will be brave and venture. [Runs up the Ladder, salutes her, and runs down again.]

And Egad this was an Adventure and a bold one——but since I am come off with a whole Skin, I am fleszt for the next onser——Madam——has your Greatness any mind to marry? [Goes to her, speaks, and runs back; Blunt claps him on the Back.]

Giant. What if I have?

Feth. Why then, Madam, without enchanted Sword or Buckler, I am your Man.

Giant. My Man? my Mouse. I'll marry none whose Person and Courage shall not bear some Proportion to mine.

Feth. Your Mightiness I fear will die a Maid then.

Giant. I doubt you'll scarce secure me from that Fear, who court my Fortune, not my Beauty.

Feth. How scornful she is, I'll warrant you——why I must confess, your Person is something heroical and masculine, but I protest to your Highness, I love and honour ye.

Dwarf. Prithee, Sister, be not so coy, I like my Lover well enough; and if Seignior Mountebank keep his Word in making us of reasonable Proportions, I think the Gentlemen may serve for Husbands.

Shift.

Shift. Dissemble, or you betray your Love for us.

[Aside to the Giant.

Giant. And if he do keep his Word, I should make a better Choice, not that I would change this noble Frame of mine, cou'd I but meet my Match, and keep up the first Race of Man intire: But since this scanty World affords none such, I to be happy, must be new created, and then shall expect a wiser Lover.

Feth. Why, what a peevish Titt's this; nay, look ye, Madam, as for that matter, your Extraordinariness may do what you please—but 'tis not done like a Monster of Honour, when a Man has set his Heart upon you, to cast him off—Therefore I hope you'll pity a despairing Lover, and cast down an Eye of Consolation upon me; for I vow, most Amazonian Princess, I love ye as if Heaven and Earth wou'd come together.

Dwarf. My Sister will do much, I'm sure, to save the Man that loves her so passionately—she has a Heart.

Feth. And a swinger 'tis—'sbud—she moves like the Royal Sovereign, and is as long a tacking about.

[Aside.

Giant. Then your Religion, Sir.

Feth. Nay, as for that, Madam, we are English, a Nation I thank God, that stand as little upon Religion as any Nation under the Sun, unless it be in Contradiction; and at this time, have so many amongst us, a Man knows not which to turn his Hand to—neither will I stand with your Hugeness for a small matter of Faith or so—Religion shall break no squares.

Dwarf. I hope, Sir, you are of your Friend's Opinion.

Blunt. My little Spark of a Diamond, I am, I was born a Jew, with an Aversion to Swines Flesh.

Dwarf. Well, Sir, I shall hasten Seignior Doctor to compleat my Beauty, by some small Addition, to appear the more grateful to you.

Blunt. Lady, do not trouble your self with transitory Parts, 'Dhartlikins thou'rt as handsom as needs be for a Wife.

Dwarf. A little taller, Seignior, would not do amiss, my younger Sister has got so much the Start of me.

Blunt.

Blunt. In troth she has, and now I think on't, a little taller wou'd do well for Propagation; I should be loth the Posterity of the anient Family of the Blunts of Essex should dwindle into Pigmies or Fairies.

Giant. Well, Seigniors, since you come with our Uncle's liking, we give ye leave to hope, hope——and be happy——
[They go out.]

Feth. Egad, and that's great and gracious——

Enter Willmore and an Operator.

Will. Well, Gentlemen, and how like you the Ladies?

Blunt. Faith well enough for the first Course, Sir.

Will. The Uncle, by my indeavour, is intirely yours——but whilst the Baths are preparing, 'twould be well if you would think of what Age, Shape, and Complexion you would have your Ladies form'd in.

Feth. Why, may we chuse, Mr. Doctor?

Will. What Beauties you please.

Feth. Then will I have my Giant, Ned, just such another Gentlewoman as I saw at Church to day—— and about some fifteen.

Blunt. Hum, fifteen—I begin to have a plaguy Itch about me too, towards a hansom Damsel of fifteen; but first let's marry, lest they should be boiled away in these Baths of Reformation.

Feth. But, Doctor, can you do all this without the help of the Devil?

Will. Hum, some small Hand he has in the Business: we make an Exchange with him, give him the clippings of the Giant for so much of his Store as will serve to build the Dwarf.

Blunt. Why, then mine will be more than three Parts Devil, Mr. Doctor.

Will. Not so, the Stock is only Devil, the Graft is your own little Wife inoculated.

Blunt. Well, let the Devil and you agree about this matter as soon as you please.

Enter Shift as an Operator.

Shift. Sir, there is without a Person of an extraordinary Size wou'd speak with you.

Will. Admit him.

Enter

Enter Harlequin, ushers in Hunt as a Giant.

Feth. Hah ——— some o'ergrown Rival on my Life.
[Feth. gets from it.]

Will. What the Devil have we here? [Aside.]

Hunt. Bezolos mano's, Seignior, I understand there is a Lady whose Beauty and Proportion can only merit me : I'll say no more ——— but shall be grateful to you for your Assistance.

Feth. 'Tis so.

Hunt. The Devil's in't if this does not fright 'em from a farther Courtship. [Aside.]

Will. Fear nothing, Seignior ——— Seignior, you may try your Chance, and visit the Ladies. [Talks to Hunt.]

Feth. Why, where the Devil could this Monster conceal himself all this while, that we should neither see nor hear of him?

Blunt. Oh ——— he lay disguis'd ; I have heard of an Army that has done so.

Feth. Pox, no single House cou'd hold him.

Blunt. No ——— he dispos'd himself in several parcels up and down the Town, here a Leg, and there an Arm ; and hearing of this proper Match for him, put himself together to court his fellow Monster.

Feth. Good Lord ! I wonder what Religion he's of.

Blunt. Some heathen Papist, by his notable Plots and Contrivances.

Will. 'Tis Hunt, that Rogue ——— [Aside.]

Sir, I confess there is great Power in Sympathy ——— Conduct him to the Ladies ——— [He tries to go in at the Door, — I am sorry you cannot enter at that low Door, Seignior, I'll have it broken down ———]

Hunt. No Seignior, I can go in at twice.

Feth. How, at twice ! what a Pox can he mean ?

Will. Oh, Sir, 'tis a frequent thing by way of Incantment. [Hunt being all Doublet, leaps off from another Man who is all Breeches, and goes out ; Breeches follows stalking.]

Feth. Oh Pox, Mr. Doctor, this must be the Devil.

Will. Oh fie, Sir, the Devil ! no 'tis all done by an enchanted Circle ——— These damn'd Rascals will spoil all by by too gross an Imposition on the Fools. [Aside.

Feth. This is the Devil, Ned, that's certain — But hark ye, Mr. Doctor, I hope I shall not have my Mistress enchanted from me by this enchanted Rival, hah?

Will. Oh, no, Sir, the Inquisition will never let 'em marry, for fear of a Race of Giants, 'twill be worse than the Invasion of the Moors, or the French: but go — think of your Mistresses Names and Ages, here's Company, and you would not be seen. [Ex. Blunt and Feth.

Enter La Nuche, and Aurelia; Will. bows to her.

La Nu. Sir, the Fame of your excellent Knowledge, and what you said to me this day, has given me a Curiosity to learn my Fate, at least that Fate you threatened.

Will. Madam, from the Oracle in the Box you may be resolved any Question — [Leads her to the Table, where stands a Box full of Balls; he stares on her.

—How lovely every absent minute makes her—Madam, be pleas'd to draw from out this Box what Ball you will.

[She draws, he takes it, and gazes on her and on it.
Madam, upon this little Globe is character'd your Fate and Fortune; the History of your Life to come and past—first, Madam— you're—a Whore.

La Nu. A very plain beginning.

Will. My Art speaks simple Truth; the Moon is your Ascendent, that covetous Planet that borrows all her Light, and is in opposition still to Venus; and Interest more prevails with you than Love: yet here I find a cross—intruding Line—that does inform me—you have an Itch that way, but Interest still opposes: you are a slavish mercenary Prostitute.

La Nu. Your Art is so, tho' call'd divine, and all the Universe is sway'd by Interest: and would you wish this Beauty which adorns me, should be dispos'd about for Charity? Proceed and speak more Reason.

Will. But Venus here gets the Ascent again, and spite of—Interest, spite of all Aversion, will make you doat upon a Man— [Still looking on, and turning the Ball.
Wild, fickle, restless, faithless as the Wind!—a Man of Arms he is—and by this Line—a Captain—[Looking on her.
for Mars and Venus were in conjunction at his Birth—and Love and War's his business. La Nu.

La Nu. There thou hast toucht my Heart, and spoke so true, that all thou say'st I shall receive as Oracle. Well, grant I love, that shall not make me yield.

Will. I must confess you're ruin'd if you yield, and yet not all your Pride, not all your Vows, your Wit, your Resolution, or your Cunning, can hinder him from conquering absolutely : your Stars are fixt, and Fate irrevocable.

La Nu. No,——I will controul my Stars and Inclinations ; and tho I love him more than Power or Interest, I will be Mistress of my fixt Resolve.——One Question more——Does this same Captain, this wild happy Man love me ?

Will. I do not—find—it here—only a possibility incourag'd by your Love—Oh that you cou'd resist—but you are destin'd his, and to be ruin'd.

[Sighs, and looks on her, she grows in a Rage.

La Nu. Why do you tell me this ? I am betray'd, and every caution blows my kindling Flame——hold——tell me no more——I might have guess'd my Fate, from my own Soul have guess't it——but yet I will be brave, I will resist in spite of Inclinations, Stars, or Devils.

Will. Strive not, fair Creature, with the Net that holds you, you'll but intangle more. Alas ! you must submit and be undone.

La Nu. Damn your false Art——had he but lov'd me too, it had excus'd the Malice of my Stars.

Will. Indeed, his Love is doubtful ; for here——I trace him in a new pursuit——which if you can this Night prevent, perhaps you fix him.

La Nu. Hah, pursuing a new Mistress ! there thou hast met the little Resolution I had left, and dash't it into nothing——but I have vow'd Allegiance to my Interest——Curse on my Stars, they cou'd not give me Love where that might be advanc'd——I'll hear no more.

[Gives him Money.

Enter Shift.

Shift. Sir, there are several Strangers arriv'd, who talk of the old Oracle. How will you receive 'em ?

Will.

Will. I've business now, and must be excus'd a while. — Thus far— I'm well; but I may tell my Tale so often o'er, till, like the Trick of Love, I spoil the pleasure by the repetition. — Now I'll uncase, and see what Effects my Art has wrought on La Nuche, for she's the promis'd Good, the Philosophick Treasure that terminates my Toil and Industry. Wait you here. [Ex. Will.

Enter Ariadne in Mens Clothes, with Lucia so dress'd, and other Strangers.

Aria. How now, Seignior Operator, where's this renowned Man of Arts and Sciences, this Don of Wonders? — ha! may a Man have a Pistole's Worth or two of his Tricks? will he shew, Seignior?

Shift. Whatever you dare see, Sir.

Aria. And I dare see the greatest Bug-bear he can conjure up, my Mistress's Face in a Glass excepted.

Shift. That he can shew, Sir, but is now busied in weighty Affairs with a Grandee.

Aria. Pox, must we wait the Leisure of formal Grandees and Statesmen— ha, who's this?— the lovely Conqueress of my Heart, La Nuche. [Goes to her, she is talking with Aurel.

La Nu. What foolish thing art thou?

Aria. Nay, do not frown, nor fly; for if you do, I must arrest you, fair one.

La Nu. At whose Suit, pray?

Aria. At Love's— you have stoln a Heart of mine, and us'd it scurvily.

La Nu. By what marks do you know the Toy, that I may be no longer troubled with it?

Aria. By a fresh Wound, which toucht by her that gave it bleeds anew, a Heart all over kind and amorous.

La Nu. When was this pretty Robbery committed?

Aria. To day, most sacrilegiously, at Church, where you debauch'd my Zeal; and when I wou'd have pray'd, your Eyes had put the Change upon my Tongue, and made it utter Railings: Heav'n forgive ye!

La Nu. You are the gayest thing without a Heart, I ever saw.

Aria. I scorn to flinch for a bare Wound or two;
nor nor is he routed that has lost the day, he may again rally, renew the Fight, and vanquish.

La Nu. You have a good Opinion of that Beauty, which I find not so forcible, nor that fond Prattle uttered with such Confidence.

Aria. But I have Quality and Fortune too.

La Nu. So had you need. I should have guesst the first by your pertness; for your saucy thing of Quality acts the Man as impudently at fourteen, as another at thirty: nor is there any thing so hateful as to hear it talk of Love, Women and Drinking; nay, to see it marry too at that Age, and get it self a Play-fellow in its Son and Heir.

Aria. This Satir on my Youth shall never put me out of countenance, or make me think you wish me one day older; and egad I'll warrant them that tire me, shall find me ne'er an hour too young.

La Nu. You mistake my Humour, I hate the Person of a fair conceited Boy.

Enter Willmore dress'd, singing.

Will. Vole, vole dans cette Cage, Petite Oyseau dans cet bocage.

— How now, Fool, where's the Doctor?

Shift. A little busy, Sir.

Will. Call him, I am in haste, and come to cheapen the Price of Monster.

Shift. As how, Sir?

Will. In an honourable way; I will lawfully marry one of 'em, and have pitcht upon the Giant; I'll bid as fair as any Man.

Shift. No doubt but you will speed, Sir: please you, Sir, to walk in.

Will. I'll follow— Vole, vole dans cette Cage, &c.

Luc. Why 'tis the Captain, Madam—

[Aside to Aria.

La Nu. Hah—marry—harkye, Sir,—a word pray.

[As he is going out she pulls him.

Will. Your Servant, Madam, your Servant— Vole, vole, &c.

[Puts his Hat off carelessly, and walks by, going out.

Luc. And to be marry'd, mark that.

Aria.

Aria. Then there's one doubt over, I'm glad he is not married.

La Nu. Come back ——— Death, I shall burst with Anger—this Coldness blows my Flame, which if once visible, makes him a Tyrant ———

Will. Fool, what's a Clock, fool? this noise hinders me from hearing it strike.

[Shakes his Pockets, and walks up and down.]

La Nu. A blessed sound, if no Hue and Cry pursue it. —what—you are resolv'd then upon this notable Exploit?

Will. What Exploit, good Madam?

La Nu. Why, marrying of a Monster, and an ugly Monster.

Will. Yes faith, Child, here stands the bold Knight, that singly, and unarm'd, designs to enter the List with Thogandiga the Giant; a good Sword will defend a worse cause than an ugly Wife. I know no danger worse than fighting for my Living, and I have don't this dozen years for Bread.

La Nu. This is the common trick of all Rogues, when they have done an ill thing to face it out.

Will. An ill thing—your Pardon, Sweet-heart, compare it but to Banishment, a frozen Sentry with brown George and Spanish Pay; and if it be not better to be Master of a Monster, than Slave to a damn'd Commonwealth ——— I submit ——— and since my Fortune has thrown this good in my way——

La Nu. You'll not be so ungrateful to refuse it; besides then you may hope to sleep again, without dreaming of Famine, or the Sword, two Plagues a Soldier of Fortune is subject to.

Will. Besides Cashiering, a third Plague.

La Nu. Still unconcern'd! — you call me mercenary, but I would starve e'er suffer my self to be possess'd by a thing of Horror.

Will. You lye, you would by any thing of Horror: yet these things of Horror have Beauties too, Beauties thou canst not boast of, Beauties that will not fade; Diamonds to supply the lustre of their Eyes, and Gold the brightness of their Hair, a well-got Million to atone for Shape,

Shape, and Orient Pearls, more white, more plump and smooth, than that fair Body Men so languish for, and thou hast set a Price on,

Aria. I like not this so well, 'tis a trick to make her jealous.

Will. Their Hands too have their Beauties, whose very mark finds credit and respect, their Bills are current o'er the Universe; besides these, you shall see waiting at my Door, four Footmen, a Velvet Coach, with Six Flanders Beauties more: And are not these most comely Virtues in a Soldier's Wife, in this most wicked peaceable Age?

Inc. He's poor too, there's another comfort. [Aside.]

Aria. The most encouraging one I have met with yet.

Will. Pox on't, I grow weary of this virtuous Poverty. There goes a gallant Fellow, says one, but gives him not an Onion; the Women too, faith, 'tis a handsome Gentleman, but the Devil a Kiss he gets gratis.

Aria. Oh, how I long to undeceive him of that Error.

La Nu. He speaks not of me; sure knows me not.

[Aside.]

Will. ——— No, Child, Money speaks sense in a Language all Nations understand, 'tis Beauty, Wit, Courage, Honour, and undisputable Reason ——— see the virtue of a Wager, that new philosophical way lately found out of deciding all hard Questions ——— Socrates, without ready Money to lay down, must yield.

Aria. Well, I must have this gallant Fellow. [Aside.]

La Nu. Sure he has forgot this trivial thing.

Will. ——— Even thou—who seest me dying unregarded, wou'd then be fond and kind, and flatter me. [Soft tone.]
By Heaven, I'll hate thee then; nay, I will marry to be rich to hate thee: the worst of that, is but to suffer nine Days Wonderment. Is not that better from Age of Scorn than a proud faithless Beauty?

La Nu. Oh, there's Resentment left ——— why, yes faith, such a Wedding would give the Town diversion: we should have a lamentable Ditty made on it, entitled, The Captain's Wedding, with the doleful Relation of his being over-laid by an o'er-grown Monster.

Will. I'll warrant ye I escape that as sure as cuckolding; for I would fain see that hardy Wight that dares attempt my Lady Bright, either by Force or Flattery.

La

La Nu. So, then you intend to bed her?

Will. Yes faith, and beget a Race of Heroes, the Mother's Form with all the Father's Qualities.

La Nu. Faith such a Brood may prove a pretty Livelihood for a poor decay'd Officer; you may chance to get a Patent to shew 'em in England, that Nation of Change and Novelty.

Will. A provision old Carlo cannot make for you against the abandon'd day.

La Nu. He can supply the want of Issue a better way; and tho he be not so fine a Fellow as your self, he's a better Friend, he can keep a Mistress: give me a Man can feed and clothe me, as well as hug and kiss me, and tho his Sword be not so good as yours, his Bond's worth a thousand Captains. This will not do, I'll try what Jealousy will do. [Aside.

Your Servant Captain——your Hand, Sir.

[Takes Ariadne by the Hand.

Will. Hah, what new Coxcomb's that——hold Sir——

Aria. What would you, Sir, ought with this Lady?

Will. Yes, that which thy Youth will only let thee guess at——this —— Child, is Man's Meat; there are other Toys for Children. [Offers to lead her off.

La Nu. Oh insolent! and whither would'st thou lead me?

Will. Only out of harm's way, Child, here are pretty near Conveniencies within: the Doctor will be civil——'tis part of his Calling——Your Servant, Sir——

Aria. I must huff now, tho I may chance to be beaten——come back——or I have something here that will oblige ye to't. [Laying his hand on his Sword.

Will. Yes faith, thou'rt a pretty Youth; but at this time I've more occasion for a thing in Petticoats——go home, and do not walk the Streets so much: that tempting Face of thine will debauch the grave men of business, and make the Magistrates lust after Wickedness.

Aria. You are a scurvy Fellow, Sir. [Going to draw.

Will. Keep in your Sword, for fear it cut your Fingers, Child.

Aria.

Aria. So 'twill your Throat, Sir——here's Company coming that will part us, and I'll venture to draw.

[Draws, Will. draws.

Enter Beaumont.

Beau. Hold, hold——hah, Willmore! thou Man of constant mischief, what's the matter?

La Nu. Beaumont! undone!

Aria.——Beaumont!——

Will. Why, here's a young Spark will take my Lady Bright from me; the unmanner'd Hot-spur would not have patience till I had finish'd my small Affair with her.

[Puts up his Sword.

Aria. Death, he'll know me——Sir, you see we are prevented.

[Draws him aside.

——or——[Seems to talk to him, Beau. gazes on La Nuche, who has pull'd down her Veil.

Beau. 'Tis she! Madam, this Veil's too thin to hide the perjurd Beauty underneath. Oh, have I been searching thee, with all the diligence of impatient Love, and am I thus rewarded, to find thee here incompass'd round with Strangers, fighting, who first should take my right away?——Gods! take your Reason back, take all your Love; for easy Man's unworthy of the Blessings.

Will. Harkye, Harry——the——Woman——the almighty Whore——thou told'st me of to day.

Beau. Death, do'st thou mock my Grief——unhand me strait, for tho I cannot blame thee, I must hate thee.——

[Goes out.

Will. What the Devil ails ye?

Aria. You will be sure to come.

Will. At night in the Piazza; I have an Affignation with a Woman, that once dispatch'd, I will not fail ye, Sir.

Luc. And will you leave him with her?

Aria. Oh, yes, he'll be ne'er the worse for my use when he has done with her. [Ex. Luc. and Aria. Will.

looks with scorn on La Nuche.

Will. Now you may go o'ertake him, lie with him——and ruin him: the Fool was made for such a Destiny——if he escapes my Sword.

[He offers to go.

La Nu.

La Nu. I must prevent his visit to this Woman—but dare not tell him so. [Aside.]

—I would not have ye meet this angry Youth.

Will. Oh, you would preserve him for a farther use.

La Nu. Stay—you must not fight—by Heaven, I cannot see—that Bosom—wounded. [Turns and weeps.]

Will. Hah! weep'st thou? curse me when I refuse a faith to that obliging Language of thy Eyes — Oh give me one proof more, and after that, thou conquerest all my Soul; Thy Eyes speak Love — come, let us in my Dear, e'er the bright Fire allays that warms my Heart. [Goes to lead her out.]

La Nu. Your Love gows rude, and saucily demands it. [Flings away.]

Will. Love knows no Ceremony, no respect when once approacht so near the happy minute.

La Nu. What desperate easiness have you seen in me, or what mistaken merit in your self, should make you so ridiculously vain, to think I'd give my self to such a Wretch, one fal'n even to the last degree of Poverty, whilst all the World is prostrate at my Feet, whence I might chuse the Brave, the Great, the Rich?

[He stands spitefully gazing at her.]

—Still as he fires, I find my Pride augment, and when he cools I burn. [Aside.]

Will. Death, thou'rt a — vain, conceited, taudry Jilt, wou'lt draw me in as Rooks their Cullies do, to make me venture all my stock of Love, and then you turn me out so despis'd and poor— [Offers to go.]

La Nu. You think you're gone now —

Will. Not all thy Arts nor Charms shall hold me longer.

La Nu. I must submit — and can you part thus from me? — [Pulls him.]

Will. I can — nay by Heaven, I will not turn, nor look at thee. No, when I do, or trust that faithless Tongue again — may I be —

La Nu. Oh do not swear —

Will. Ever curst — [Breaks from her, she holds.]

La Nu. You shall not go——Plague of this needless Pride.

——stay——and I'll follow all the dictates of my Love. [Aside.]

Will. Oh never hope to flatter me to faith again.

[His back to her, she holding him.]

La Nu. I must, I will; what wou'd you have me do?

[Will. turning softly to her.] Never—deceive me more, it may be fatal to wind me up to an impatient height, then dash my eager Hopes.

Forgive my roughness—and be kind, La Nuche, I know thou wo't—— [Sighing.]

La Nu. Will you then be ever kind and true?

Will. Ask thy own Charms, and to confirm thee more, yield and disarm me quite.

La Nu. Will you not marry then? for tho you never can be mine that way, I cannot think that you should be another's.

Will. No more delays, by Heaven, 'twas but a trick.

La Nu. And will you never see that Woman neither, whom you're this Night to visit?

Will. Damn all the rest of thy weak Sex, when thou look'st thus, and art so soft and charming.

[Offers to lead her out.]

La Nu. Sancho——my Coach. [Turns in scorn.]

Will. Take heed, what mean ye?

La Nu. Not to be pointed at by all the envying Women of the Town, who'l laugh and cry, Is this the highpriz'd Lady, now fall'n so low, to doat upon a Captain?
a poor disbanded Captain? defend me from that Infamy.

Will. Now all the Plagues —— but yet I will not curse thee, 'tis lost on thee, for thou art destin'd damn'd.

[Going out.]

La Nu. Whither so fast?

Will. Why, —I am so indifferent grown, that I can tell thee now——to a Woman, young, fair and honest;
she'll be kind and thankful—farewel Jilt—now should'st thou die for one sight more of me, thou should'st not ha't; nay, should'st thou sacrifice all thou hast couzen'd other Coxcombs of, to buy one single visit, I am so proud, by Heaven, thou shouldst not have it—To grieve thee more, see here, insatiate Woman [Shows her a Purse of Gold] the Charm that makes me lovely in thine Eyes: it had all been thine hadst thou not basely bargain'd with me, now 'tis the Prize of some well-meaning Whore, whose Modesty will trust my Generosity.

[Goes out.]

La Nu. Now I cou'd rave, t'have lost an opportunity which industry nor chance can give again—when on the yielding point, a cursed fit of Pride comes cross my Soul, and stops the kind Career—I'll follow him, yes I'll follow him, even to the Arms of her to whom he's gone.

Aur. Madam, 'tis dark, and we may meet with Infelence.

La Nu. No matter: Sancho, let the Coach go home, and do you follow me——

*Women may boast their Honour and their Pride,
But Love soon lays those feebl' Pow'rs aside.* [Exeunt.]

ACT IV. SCENE I. The Street, or Backside of the Piazza dark.

Enter Willmore alone.

Will. A POX upon this Woman that has jilted me, and I for being a fond believing Puppy to be in earnest with so great a Devil. Where be these Coxcombs too? this Blunt and Fetherfool? when a Man needs 'em not, they are plaguing him with their unseasonable Jests——could I but light on them, I would be very drunk to night——but first I'll try my Fortune with this Woman—let me see—hereabouts is the Door.

[Gropes about for the Door.]

Enter Beaumont, follow'd by La Nuche, and Sancho.

La Nu. 'Tis he, I know it by his often and uneasy Pauses——

Beau.

Beau. — And shall I home and sleep upon my injury, whilst this more happy Rover takes my right away? — no, damn me then for a cold senseless Coward.

[Pauses and pulls out a Key.

Will. This Damsel, by the part o'th' Town she lives in, shou'd be of Quality, and therefore can have no dishonest design on me, it must be right down substantial Love, that's certain.

Beau. Yet I'll in and arm my self for the Encounter, for 'twill be rough between us, tho we're Friends.

[Groping about, finds the Door.

Will. Oh, 'tis this I'm sure, because the Door is open.

Beau. Hah—who's there? — [Beau. advances to unlock the Door, runs against Will. draws.

Will. That Voice is of Authority, some Husband, Lover, or a Brother, on my Life——this is a Nation of a word and a blow, therefore I'll betake me to Toledo——

[Draws.

[Willmore in drawing hits his Sword against that of Beaumont, who turns and fights, La Nuche runs into the Garden frighted.

Beau. Hah, are you there?

Sanc. I'll draw in defence of the Captain——

[Sancho fights for Beau. and beats out Will.

Will. Hah, two to one? [Turns and goes in.

Beau. The Garden Door clapt to; sure he's got in; nay, then I have him sure.

The SCENE changes to a Garden, La Nuche in it; to her Beau. who takes hold of her Sleeve.

La Nu. Heavens, where am I?

Beau. Hah——a Woman! and by these Jewels —— should be Ariadne. 'Tis so! Death, are all Women false?

[She struggles to get away, he holds her.

——Oh, 'tis in vain thou fly'st, thy Infamy will stay behind thee still.

La Nu. Hah, 'tis Beaumont's Voice! ——

Now for an Art to turn the trick upon him; I must not lose his Friendship.

[Aside.

Enter Willmore softly, peeping behind.

Will. ——— What a Devil have we here, more Mischief yet; ——— hah ——— my Woman with a Man ——— I shall spoil all ——— I ne'er had an excellent knack of doing so.

Beau. Oh Modesty, where art thou? Is this the effect of all your put on Jealousy, that Mask to hide your own new falshood in? New! — by Heaven, I believe thou'rt old in cunning, that couldst contrive, so near thy Wedding-night, this, to deprive me of the Rites of Love.

La Nu. Hah, what says he? [Aside.]

Will. How, a Maid, and young, and to be marry'd too! a rare Wench this to contrive Matters so conveniently: Oh, for some Mischief now to send him neatly off. [Aside.]

Beau. Now you are silent; but you could talk to day loudly of Virtue, and upbraid my Vice: oh how you hated a young keeping Husband, whom neither Beauty nor Honour in a Wife cou'd oblige to reason — oh, damn your Honour, 'tis that's the sly pretence of all your domineering insolent Wives — Death ——— what didst thou see in me, should make thee think that I would be a tame contented Cuckold? [Going, she holds him.]

La Nu. I must not lose this lavish loving Fool — [Aside.]

Will. So, I hope he will be civil and withdraw, and leave me in possession ———

Beau. No, tho my Fortune should depend on thee; nay, all my hope of future happiness ——— by Heaven, I scorn to marry thee, unless thou couldst convince me thou wer't honest ——— a Whore! ——— Death how it cools my Blood ———

Will. And fires mine extremely ———

La Nu. Nay, then I am provok'd tho I spoil all ——— [Aside.]

And is a Whore a thing so much despis'd?
Turn back thou false forsworn ——— turn back, and blush at thy mistaken folly. [He stands amaz'd.]

Beau. La Nuche!

Enter Aria. peeping, advancing cautiously undrest, Luc. following.

Aria. Oh, he is here ——— Lucia, attend me in the Orange-

Orange-Garden——

[Ex. Lucia]

Hah, a Woman with him !

Will. Hum—what have we here ? another Damsel ?—she's gay too, and seems young and handsom——sure one of these will fall to my share ; no matter which, so I am sure of one.

La Nu. Who's silent now ? are you struck dumb with Guilt ? thou shame to noble Love ; thou scandal to all brave Debauchery, thou Fop of Fortune ; thou slavish Heir to Estate and Wife, born rich and damn'd to Matrimony.

Will. Egad a noble Wench——I am divided yet.

La Nu. Thou formal Ass disguis'd in generous Leudness, see——when the Vizer's off, how sneakingly that empty form appears——Nay 'tis thy own——Make much on't, marry with it, and be damn'd. [Offers to go.]

Will. I hope she'll beat him for suspecting her.

[He holds her, she turns.]

Aria. Hah——who the Devil can these be ?

La Nu. What silly honest Fool did you mistake me for ? what senseless modest thing ? Death, am I grown so despicable ? have I deserv'd no better from thy Love than to be taken for a virtuous Changeling ?

Will. Egad 'twas an Affront.

[Aside.]

La Nu. I'm glad I've found thee out to be an errant Coxcomb, one that esteems a Woman for being chaste forsooth ! 'Sheart, I shall have thee call me pious shortly, a most—religious Matron !

Will. Egad she has reason——

[Aside.]

Beau. Forgive me—for I took ye—for another.

[Sighing.]

La Nu. Oh did you so ? it seems you keep fine Company the while—Death, that I should e'er be seen with such a vile Dissembler, with one so vain, so dull and so impertinent, as can be entertain'd by honest Women !

Will. A Heavenly Soul, and to my Wish, were I but sure of her.

Beau. Oh you do wondrous well t'accuse me first ! yes, I am a Coxcomb—a confounded one, to doat upon so false a Prostitute ; nay to love seriously, and tell it too :

Yet such an amorous Coxcomb I was born, to hate the Enjoyment of the loveliest Woman, without I have the Heart: the fond soft Prattle, and the lolling Dalliance, the Frowns, the little Quarrels, and the kind Degrees of making Peace again, are Joys which I prefer to all the sensual, whilst I endeavour to forget the Whore, and pay my Vows to Wit, to Youth and Beauty.

Aria. Now hang me, if it be not Beaumont.

Beau. Would any Devil less than common Woman have serv'd me as thou didst? say, was not this my Night? my paid for Night? my own by right of Bargain, and by Love? and hast not thou deceiv'd me for a Stranger?

Will. So—make me thankful, then she will be kind.

[Hugs himself.]

Beau. — Was not this done like a Whore of Honour think ye? and would not such an Injury make me forswear all Joys of Womankind, and marry in mere spite?

La Nu. Why where had been the Crime had I been kind?

Beau. Thou do'st confess it then.

La Nu. Why not?

Beau. Those Bills of Love the oftner paid and drawn, make Women better Merchants than Lovers.

La Nu. And 'tis the better Trade.

Will. Oh Pox, there she dasht all again. I find they calm upon't, and will agree, therefore I'll bear up to this small Frigate and lay her aboard.

[Goes to Ariadne.]

La Nu. However I'm glad the Vizer's off; you might have fool'd me on, and sworn I was the only Conqueror of your Heart, had not Good-nature made me follow you, to undeceive your false Suspicions of me: How have you sworn never to marry? how rail'd at Wives, and satir'd Fools oblig'd to Wedlock? And now at last, to thy eternal Shame, thou hast betray'd thy self to be a most pernicious honourable Lover, a perjur'd—honest—nay, a very Husband.

[Turns away, he holds her.]

Aria. Hah, sure 'tis the Captain.

Will. Prithee, Child, let's leave 'em to themselves, they'l agree matters I'll warrant them when they are alone; and let us try how Love and Good-nature will provide for us.

Aria. Sure he cannot know me!—Us!—pray who are you, and who am I?

Will. Why look ye Child, I am a very honest civil Fellow; for my part, and thou'rt a Woman for thine; and I desire to know no more at present.

Aria. 'Tis he, and knows not me to be the same he appointed to day——Sir, pursue that Path on your right Hand, that Grove of Orange-Trees, and I'll follow you immediately.

Will. Kind and civil——prithee make haste, dear Child. [Exit Will.]

Beau. And did you come to call me back again? [Lovingly.]

La Nu. No matter, you are to be marry'd Sir——

Beau. No more, 'tis true, to please my Uncle, I have talk'd of some such thing; but I'll pursue it no farther, so thou wilt yet be mine, and mine intirely——I hate this Ariadne——for a Wife——by Heaven I do.

Aria. A very plain Confession. [Claps him on the back.]

Beau. Ariadne!

La Nu. I'm glad of this, now I shall be rid of him.

[Aside.]

——How is't, Sir? I see you struggle hard 'twixt Love and Honour, and I'll resign my Place——

[Offers to go, Ariadne pulls her back.]

Aria. Hold, if she take him not away, I shall disappoint my Man——faith I'll not be out-done in Generosity.

[Gives him to La Nuche.]

Here——Love deserves him best——and I resign him——Pox on't I'm honest, tho that's no fault of mine; 'twas Fortune who has made a worse Exchange, and you and I should suit most damnably together.

[To Beau:]

Beau. I am sure there's something in the Wind, she being in the Garden, and the Door left open. [Aside.]

—Yes, I believe you are willing enough to part with me, when you expect another you like better.

Aria. I'm glad I was before-hand with you then.

Beau. Very good, and the Door was left open to give admittance to a Lover.

Aria. 'Tis visible it was to let one in to you, false as you are.

La Nu. Faith, Madam, you mistake my Constitution, my Beauty and my Business is only to be belov'd not to love; I leave that Slavery for you Women of Quality, who must invite, or die without the Blessing; for likely the Fool you make choice of wants Wit or Confidence to ask first; you are fain to whistle before the Dogs will fetch and carry, and then too they approach by stealth; and having done the Drudgery, the submissive Curs are turn'd out for fear of dirtying your Apartment, or that the Mungrils should scandalize ye; whilst all my Lovers of the noble kind throng to adore and fill my Presence daily, gay as if each were triumphing for Victory.

Aria. Ay this is something; what a poor sneaking thing an honest Woman is!

La Nu. And if we chance to love still, there's a difference, your Hours of Love are like the Deeds of Darkness, and mine like cheerful Birds in open Day.

Aria. You may, you have no Honour to lose.

La Nu. Or if I had, why should I double the Sin by Hypocrisy. [Lucia squeaks within, crying, help, help.]

Aria. Heavens, that's Lucia's Voice.

Beau. Hab, more caterwauling?

Enter Lucia in haste.

Luc. Oh, Madam, we're undone; and, Sir, for Heaven's sake do you retire.

Beau. What's the matter?

Luc. Oh you have brought the most villainous mad Friend with you——he found me sitting on a Bank——and did so ruffle me.

Aria. Death, she takes Beaumont for the Stranger, and will ruin me.

Luc. Nay, made love so loud, that my Lord your Father-in-law, who was in his Cabinet, heard us from the Orange-

Orange-Grove, and has sent to search the Garden—and should he find a Stranger with you—do but you retire, Sir, and all's well yet. [To Beaumont.

Aria. The Devil's in her Tongue. [Aside.

Luc. For if Mr. Beaumont be in the House, we shall have the Devil to do with his Jealousy.

Aria. So, there 'tis out.

Beau. She takes me for another—I am jilted every where—what Friend?—I brought none with me.

—Madam, do you retire— [To La Nuche.

La Nu. Glad of my Freedom too— [Goes out.

[A clashing of Swords within. Enter Willm. fighting, prest back by three or four Men, and Abeville, Aria. and Luc. run out.

Beau. Hab, set on by odds; hold, tho thou be'st my Rival, I will free thee, on condition thou wilt meet me to morrow morning in the Piazza by day break.

[Puts himself between their Swords, and speaks to Will. aside.

Will. By Heaven I'll do it.

Beau. Retire in safety then, you have your pass.

Abev. Fall, fall on, the number is increas'd.

[Fall on Beau.

Beau. Rascals do you not know me?

[Falls in with 'em and beats them back, and goes out with them.

Will. Nay, and you be so well acquainted, I'll leave you—unfortunate still I am; my own well meaning, but ill Management, is my eternal Foe: Plague on 'em, they have wounded me—yet not one drop of Blood's departed from me that warm'd my Heart for Woman, and I'm not willing to quit this Fairy-ground till some kind Devil have been civil to me.

Enter Ariadne and Lucia.

Aria. I say, 'tis he: thou'lt made so many dull Mistakes to Night, thou dar'st not trust thy Senses when they're true—How do you, Sir?

Will. That Voice has Comfort in't, for 'tis a Woman's; hab, more Interruption?

Aria. A little this way, Sir.

[Ex. Aria. and Will. into the Garden.

Enter Beaumont, Abevile in a submissive Posture.

Beau. No more excuses—By all these Circumstances, I know this Ariadne is a Gipsy. What difference then between a money-taking Mistress and her that gives her Love? only perhaps this sins the closer by't, and talks of Honour more: What Fool wou'd be a Slave to empty Name, or value Woman for dissembling well?—I'll to La Nuche—the honestest o'th' two——Abevile—— get me my Musick ready, and attend me at La Nuche's.

Luc. He's gone, and to his Mistress too.

Enter Ariadne pursu'd by Willmore.

Will. My little Daphne, 'tis in vain to fly, unless like her, you cou'd be chang'd into a Tree: Apollo's self pursu'd not with more eager Fire than I. [Holds her.

Aria. Will you not grant a Parly e'er I yield?

Will. I'm better at a Storm.

Aria. Besides, you're wounded too.

Will. Oh leave those Wounds of Honour to my Surgeon, thy Business is to cure those of Love. Your true bred Soldier ever fights with the more heat for a Wound or two.

Aria. Hardly in Venus' Wars.

Will. Her self ne'er thought so when she snatcht her Joys between the rough Encounters of the God of War. Come, let's pursue the Business we came for: See the kind Night invites, and all the ruffling Winds are hush'd and still, only the Zephirs spread their tender Wings, courting in gentle Murmurs the gay Boughs; 'twas in a Night like this, Diana taught the Mysteries of Love to the fair Boy Endymion. I am plaguy full of History and Simile to night.

Aria. You see how well he far'd for being modest.

Will. He might be modest, but 'twas not over-civil to put her Goddessship to asking first; thou see'st I'm better bred—Come let's haste to silent Grots that attend us, dark Groves where none can see, and murmuring Fountains.

Aria.

Aria. Stay, let me consider first, you are a Stranger, inconstant too as Island Winds, and every day are fighting for your Mistresses, of which you've had at least four since I saw you first, which is not a whole day.

Will. I grant ye, before I was a Lover I ran at random, but I'll take up now, be a patient Man, and keep to one Woman a Month.

Aria. A Month!

Will. And a fair Reason, Child; time was, I wou'd have worn one Shirt, or one pair of Shoos so long as have let the Sun set twice upon the same Sin: but see the Power of Love; thou hast bewitch'd me, that's certain.

Aria. Have a care of giving me the ascendent over ye, for fear I make ye marry me.

Will. Hold, I bar that cast, Child; no, I'm none of those Spirits that can be conjur'd into a Wedding-ring, and dance in the dull matrimonial Circle all my Days.

Aria. But what think you of a hundred thousand Crowns, and a Beauty of sixteen?

Will. As of most admirable Blessings: but harkye, Child, I am plaguily afraid thou'rt some scurvy honest thing of Quality by these odd Questions of thine, and hast some wicked Design upon my Body.

Aria. What, to have and to hold I'll warrant:—No Faith, Sir, Maids of my Quality expect better Jointures than a Buff-coat, Scarf and Feather: such Portions as mine are better Ornaments in a Family than a Captain and his Commission.

Will. Why well said, now thou hast explain'd thy self like a Woman of Honour.—Come, come, let's away.

Aria. Explain my self!—How mean ye?

Will. —Thou say'st I am not fit to marry thee—and I believe this Assignment was not made to tell me so, nor yet to hear me whistle to Birds.

Aria. Faith no, I saw you, lik'd ye, and had a mind to ye.

Will. Ay Child.—

Aria. In short, I took ye for a Man of Honour.

Will. Nay, if I tell the Devil take me.

Aria. I am a Virgin in Distress.

Will. Poor Heart.

Aria. To be marry'd within a Day or two to one I like not.

Will. Hum——and therefore wouldst dispose of a small Virgin Treasure (too good for silly Husbands) in a Friend's Hands: faith, Child—I was ever a good religious charitable Christian, and shall acquit my self as honestly and piously in this Affair as becomes a Gentleman.

Enter Abevile with Musick.

Abev. Come away, are ye all arm'd for the Business?

Aria. Hab, arm'd! we are surpriz'd again.

Will. Fear not.

[Draws.

Aria. Oh God, Sir, haste away, you are already wounded: but I conjure you, as a Man of Honour, be here at the Garden-Gate to night again, and bring a Friend, in case of Danger, with you; and if possible I'll put my self into your Hands, for this Night's Work has ruin'd me— [Speaking quick, and pushing him forwards runs off.

Abev. My Master sure not gone yet—

Will. Rascals, tho you are odds, you'll find hot Work in vanquishing.

[Falls on 'em.

Abev. Hold, Sir, I am your Page. Do you not know me? and these the Musick you commanded—shall I carry 'em where you order'd, Sir?

Will. They take me for some other, this was lucky.

[Aside.

O, aye—'tis well—I'll follow—but whither?—Plague of my dull Mistakes, the Woman's gone—yet stay—[Calls 'em. For now I think on't, this Mistake may help me to another—stay—I must dispose of this mad Fire about me, which all these Disappointments cannot lay—Oh for some young kind Sinner in the nick—How I cou'd souse upon her like a Bird of Prey, and worry her with Kindness. [Aside.—Go on, I follow. [Exeunt.

S C E N E Changes to La Nuche's House.

Enter Petronella and Aurelia with Light.

Ant. Well, the Stranger is in Bed, and most impatiently expects our Patrona, who is not yet returned.

Pet. Curse of this Love! I know she's in pursuit of this Rover, this English Piece of Impudence; Pox on 'em, I know nothing good in the whole Race of 'em, but giving all to their Shirts when they're drunk. What shall we do, Aurelia? This Stranger must not be put off, nor Carlo neither, who has fin'd again as if for a new Maiden-head.

Aur. You are so covetous, you might have put 'em off, but now 'tis too late.

Pet. Put off! Are these Fools to be put off think ye? a fine Fop Englishman, and an old doating Grandee?—No, I cou'd put the old trick on 'em still, had she been here but to have entertain'd 'em: but hark, one knocks, 'tis Carlo on my Life—

Enter Carlo, gives Petronella Gold.

Car. Let this plead for me.

Pet. Sweet Don, you are the most eloquent Person.

Car. I would regale to night——I know it is not mine, but I've sent five hundred Crowns to purchase it, because I saw another bargaining for't; and Persons of my Quality must not be refus'd: you apprehend me.

Pet. Most rightly——that was the Reason she came so out of Humour home——and is gone to Bed in such a fullen Fit.

Carl. To Bed, and all alone! I would surprize her there. Oh how it pleases me to think of stealing into her Arms like a fine Dream, Wench, hah.

Aur. 'Twill be a pleasant one, no doubt.

Pet. He lays the way out how he'll be cozen'd. [Aside].——The Seignior perhaps may be angry, Sir, but I'll venture that to accommodate you; and that you may surprize her the more readily, be pleas'd to stay in my Chamber, till you think she may be asleep.

Car. Thou art a perfect Mistress of thy Trade,

Pet.

Pet. So, now will I to the Seigniora's Bed my self, drest and perfum'd, and finish two good Works at once; earn five hundred Crowns, and keep up the Honour of the House. [Aside.]—Softly sweet Don. [Lights him out.]

Aur. And I will do two more good things, and disappoint your Expectations; jilt the young English Fool, and have old Carlo well bang'd, if t'other have any Courage.

Enter La Nuche in Rage, and Sancho.

La Nu. Aurelia, help, help me to be reveng'd upon this wretched unconsidering Heart.

Aur. Heavens, have you made the Rover happy, Madam?

La Nu. Oh wou'd I had! or that or any Sin wou'd change this Rage into some easier Passion: Sickness and Poverty, Disgrace and Pity, all met in one, were kinder than this Love, this raging Fire of a proud amorous Heart.

Enter Petronella.

Pet. Heavens, what's the matter?

Aur. Here's Petronella, dissemble but your Rage a little.

La Nu. Damn all dissembling now, it is too late—the Tyrant Love reigns absolute within, and I am lost, Aurelia.

Pet. How, Love! forbid it Heaven! will Love maintain ye?

La Nu. Curse on your Maxims, will they ease my Heart? Can your wise Counsel fetch me back my Rover?

Pet. Hah, your Rover, a Pox upon him.

La Nu. He's gone——gone to the Arms of some gay generous Maid, who nobly follows Love's divine Dictates, whilst I 'gainst Nature studying thy dull Precepts, and to be base and infamously rich, have barter'd all the Joys of human Life——Oh give me Love: I will be poor and love.

Pet. She's lost —— but hear me——

La Nu. I won't, from Childhood thou hast trained me up in Cunning, read Lectures to me of the use of Man, but kept me from the knowledge of the Right; taught me to jilt, to flatter and deceive: and hard it was to learn th' ungrateful Lessons. But oh how soon plain —— taught me Love, and shew'd me all the cheat of thy thy false Tenements ——— No ——— give me Love with any other Curse.

Pet. But who will give you that when you are poor? when you are wretchedly despis'd and poor?

La Nu. Hah!

Pet. Do you not daily see fine Clothes, rich Furniture, Jewels and Plate are more inviting than Beauty unadorn'd? be old, diseas'd, deform'd, be any thing, so you be rich and splendidly attended, you'll find your self lov'd and ador'd by all—But I'm an old fool still—Well, Petronella, had'st thou been half as industrious in thy Youth as in thy Age——thou hadst not come to this.

[Weeps.]

La Nu. She's in the right.

Pet. What can this mad poor Captain do for you, love you whilst you can buy him Breeches, and then leave you? A Woman has a sweet time on't with any Soldier-Lover of 'em all, with their Iron Minds, and Buff Hearts; feather'd Inamorato's have nothing that belongs to Love but his Wings, the Devil clip 'em for Petronella.

La Nu. True—he can ne'er be constant. [Pausing.]

Pet. Heaven forbid he should! No, if you are so unhappy as that you must have him, give him a Night or two and pay him for't, and send him to feed again: But for your Heart, 'Sdeath, I would as soon part with my Beauty, or Youth, and as necessary a Tool 'tis for your Trade——A Curtezan and love! but all my Counsel's thrown away upon ye.

[Weeps.]

La Nu. No more, I will be rul'd——I will be wife, be rich; and since I must yield somewhere, and some time, Beaumont shall be the Man, and this the Night; he's handsom, young, and lavishly profuse: This Night he comes, and I'll submit to Interest. Let the gilded Apartment be made ready, and strew it o'er with Flowers, adorn my Bed of State; let all be fine; perfume my Chamber like the Phoenix's Nest, I'll be luxurious in my Pride to Night, and make the amorous prodigal Youth my Slave.

Pet. Nobly resolv'd! and for these other two who wait your coming, let me alone to manage. [Goes out.]

SCENE changes to a Chamber, discovers Fetherfool in Bed.

Feth. This Gentlewoman is plaguy long in coming : —some Nicety now, some perfum'd Smock, or Point Night-Clothes to make her more lovely in my Eyes : Well, these Women are right City Cooks, they stay so long to garnish the Dish, till the Meat be cold——but hark, the Door opens.

Enter Carlo softly, half undrest.

Car. This Wench stays long, and Love's impatient ; this is the Chamber of La Nuche, I take it : If she be awake, I'll let her know who I am ; if not, I'll steal a Joy before she thinks of it.

Feth. Sure 'tis she, pretty modest Rogue, she comes i'th' dark to hide her Blushes——hum, I'm plaguy eloquent o'th' sudden——Who's there? [Whispering.]

Car. 'Tis I, my Love.

Feth. Hah, sweet Soul, make haste.—There 'twas again.

Car. So kind, sure she takes me for some other, or has some inkling of my Design—— [To himself.]
Where are you, Sweetest?

Feth. Here my Love, give me your Hand——

[Puts out his Hand ; Carlo kneels and kisses it.]

Car. Here let me worship the fair Shrine before I dare approach so fair a Saint. [Kisses the Hand.]

Feth. Hah, what a Pox have we here? — wou'd I were well out o' t'other side——perhaps 'tis her Husband, and then I'm a dead Man, if I'm discover'd.

[Removes to t'other side, Carlo holds his Hand,

Car. Nay, do not fly — I know you took me for some happier Person. [Feth. struggles, Car. rises and takes him in his Arms, and kisses him.]

Feth. What, will you ravish me? [In a shrill Voice.]

Car. Hah, that Voice is not La Nuche's —— Lights there, Lights.

Feth. Nay, I can hold a bearded Venus, Sir, as well as any Man. [Holds Carlo.]

Car.

Car. What art thou, Rogue, Villain, Slave?

(They fall to Cuffs, and fight till they are bloody;
fall from the Bed, and fight on the Floor,

Enter Petronella, Sancho, and Aurelia.

Pet. Heaven, what noise is this? — we are undone, part 'em Sancho. [They part 'em.

Feth. Give me my Sword; nay, give me but a Knife, that I may cut yon Fellow's Throat —

Car. Sirrah, I'm a Grandee, and a Spaniard, and will be reveng'd.

Feth. And I'm an English-man, and a Justice, and will have Law, Sir.

Pet. Say 'tis her Husband, or any thing to get him hence. [Aside to Sancho, who whispers him.

These English, Sir, are Devils, and on my Life 'tis unknown to the Signiora that he's i'th' House.

[To Carlo aside.

Car. Come, I'm abus'd, but I must put it up for fear of my Honour; a Statesman's Reputation is a tender thing: Convey me out the back way. I'll be reveng'd.

[Goes out.

Feth. (Aurelia whispers to him aside) How, her Husband! Prithce convey me out; my Clothes, my Clothes, quickly —

Aur. Out, Sir! he has lock'd the Door, and designs to have ye murder'd.

Feth. Oh gentle Soul — take pity on me — where, oh what shall I do? — my Clothes, my Sword and Money.

Aur. Quickly, Sancho, tie a Sheet to the Window, and let him slide down by that — Be speedy, and we'll throw your Clothes out after ye. Here, follow me to the Window.

Feth. Oh, any where, any where. That I could not be warn'd from whoring in a strange Country, by my Friend Ned Blunt's Example — if I can but keep it secret now, I care not. [Exeunt.

SCENE, the Street, a Sheet ty'd to the Balcony, and Feth. sitting cross to slide down.

Feth. So — now your Neck, or your Throat, chuse ye ye either, wife Mr. Nicholas Fetherfool——But stay, I hear Company. Now dare not I budg an Inch.

Enter Beaumont alone.

Beau. Where can this Rascal, my Page, be all this while? I waited in the Piazza so long, that I believe he has mistook my Order, and gone directly to La Nuche's House—but here's no sign of him——

Feth. Hah——I hear no noise, I'll venture down.
[Goes half way down and stops.]

Enter Abevile, Musick and Willmore.

Will. Whither will this Boy conduct me?—but since to a Woman, no matter which 'tis.

Feth. Hah, more Company; now dare not I stir up nor down, they may be Bravoes to cut my Throat.

Beau. Oh sure these are they——

Will. Come, my Heart, lose no time, but tune your Pipes. [Harlequin plays on his Guittar, and sings.]

Beau. How, sure this is some Rival.

[Goes near and listens.]

Will. Harkye, Child, hast thou ne'er an amorous Ditty, short and sweet, hah——

Abev. Shall I not sing that you gave me, Sir?

Will. I shall spoil all with hard Questions—Ay, Child—that that. [The Boy sings, Beau. listens, and seems angry the while.]

S O N G.

A Pox upon this needless Scorn,
 Silvia for shame the Cheat give o'er;
 The end to which the fair are born,
 Is not to keep their Charms in store,
 But lavishly dispose in haste,
 Of Joys which none but Youth improve;
 Joys which decay when Beauty's past:
 And who when Beauty's past will love?

When Age those Glories shall deface,
 Revenging all your cold Disdain,
 And Silvia shall neglected pass,
 By every once admiring Swain;

And

And we can only Pity pay,
 When you in vain too late shall burn :
 If Love increase, and Youth delay,
 Ah, Silvia, who will make return ?

Then haste, my Silvia, to the Grove,
 Where all the Sweets of May conspire,
 To teach us every Art of Love,
 And raise our Charms of Pleasure higher ;
 Where, whilst imbracing, we should lie
 Loosely in Shades, on Banks of Flowers :
 The duller World whilst we defy,
 Years will be Minutes, Ages Hours.

Beau. 'Sdeath, that's my Page's Voice : Who the Devil is't that ploughs with my Heifer !

Aur. Don Henrick, Don Henrick——

[The Door opens, Beau. goes up to't ; Will. puts him by, and offers to go in, he pulls him back.

Will. How now, what intruding Slave art thou ?

Beau. What Thief art thou that basely, and by dark, rob'st me of all my Rights ?

[Strikes him, they fight, and Blows light on Fetherfool who hangs down.

[Sancho throws Fetherfool's Clothes out, Harlequin takes 'em up in confusion ; they fight out Beaumond, all go off, but Will. gets into the House :
 Harlequin and Feth. remain. Feth. gets down, runs against Harlequin in the dark, both seem frighted.

Harl. Que questo.

Feth. Ay, un pover dead Home, murder'd, kill'd.

Harl. (In Italian) You are the first dead Man I ever saw walk.

Feth. Hah, Seignior Harlequin !

Harl. Seignior Nicholas !

Feth. A Pox Nicholas ye, I have been maul'd and beaten within doors, and hang'd and bastinado'd without doors, lost my Clothes, my Money, and all my Movea-bles ;

bles; but this is nothing to the Secret taking Air. Ah dear Seignior, convey me to the Mountebanks, there I may have Recruit and Cure under one.

ACT V. SCENE I.

A Chamber, La Nuche on a Couch in an Undress, Willmore at her Feet, on his Knees, all untrac'd : his Hat, Sword, &c. on the Table, at which she is dressing her Head.

Will. O H Gods ! no more !

I see a yielding in thy charming Eyes;
The Blushes on thy Face, thy trembling Arms,
Thy panting Breast, and short-breath'd Sighs confess,
Thou wo't be mine, in spite of all thy Art.

La Nu. What need you urge my Tongue then to repeat what from my Eyes you can so well interpret?

[Bowing down her Head to him, and sighing.
—or if it must—dispose me as you please—

Will. Heaven, I thank thee ! [Rises with Joy.
Who wou'd not plough an Age in Winter Seas,
Or wade full seven long Years in ruder Camps,
To find this Rest at last?—[Leans on, and kisses her Bosom.
Upon thy tender Bosom to repose;
To gaze upon thy Eyes, and taste thy Balmy Kisses, [Kisses her.

—Sweeter than everlasting Groves of Spices,
When the soft Winds display the opening Buds :
—Come, haste, my Soul, to Bed—

La Nu. You can be soft I find, when you wou'd conquer absolutely.

Will. Not infant Angels, not young sighing Cupids
Can be more ; this ravishing Joy that thou hast promis'd
Has form'd my Soul to such a Calm of Love, (me,
It melts e'en at my Eyes.

La Nu. What have I done ? that Promise will undo me.
—This Chamber was prepar'd, and I was dress,

To

To give Admittance to another Lover.

Will. But Love and Fortune both were on my side—
Come, come to Bed——consider nought but Love——

[They going out, one knocks.]

La Nu. Hark !

(Beau. without.) By Heav'n I will have entrance.

La Nu. 'Tis he whom I expect ; as thou lov'st Life and me, retire a little into this Closet.

Will. Hah, retire !

La Nu. He's the most fiercely jealous of his Sex,
And Disappointment will intrage him more.

Will. Death : let him rage whoe'er he be ; dost think I'll hide me from him, and leave thee to his Love ?

Shall I, pent up, thro the thin Wainscot hear
Your Sighs, your amorous Words, and found of Kiffes ?
No, if thou canst cozen me, do't, but discreetly,
And I shall think thee true :

I have thee now, and when I tamely part with thee, may Cowards huff and bully me. [Knocks again.]

La Nu. And must I be undone because I love ye ?
This is the Mine from whence I fetch my Gold.

Will. Damn the base Trash : I'll have thee poor, and 'Tis nobler far, to starve with him thou lov'st (mine ;
Than gay without, and pining all within. [Knocking, breaking the Door, Will. snatches up his Sword.]

La Nu. Heavens, here will be murder done—he must not see him. [As Beau. breaks open the Door, she runs away with the Candle, Beau. enters with his Sword drawn.]

Will. What art thou ?

Beau. A Man.

[They fight.]

Enter Petron. with Light, La Nuche following, Beau. runs to her.

Oh thou false Woman, falser than thy Smiles,
Which serve but to delude good-natur'd Man,
And when thou hast him fast, betray'st his Heart !

Will. Beaumont !

Beau. Willmore ! Is it with thee that I must tug for Empire ? For I lay claim to all this World of Beauty.

[Takes La Nuche, looking with scorn on Willmore.]

La Nu.

La Nu. Heavens, how got this Ruffian in ?

Will. Hold, hold, dear Harry, lay no Hands on her till thou canst make thy Claim good.

Beau. She's mine, by Bargain mine, and that's sufficient.

Will. In Law perhaps, it may for ought I know, but 'tis not so in Love : but thou'rt my Friend, and I'll therefore give thee fair Play—if thou canst win her take her : But a Sword and a Mistress are not to be lost, if a Man can keep 'em.

Beau. I cannot blame thee, thou but acts thy self—
But thou fair Hypocrite, to whom I gave my Heart,
And this exception made of all Mankind,
Why would'st thou, as in Malice to my Love,
Give it the only Wound that cou'd destroy it ?

Will. Nay, if thou didst forbid her loving me, I have her sure.

Beau. I yield him many Charms ; he's nobly born,
Has Wit, Youth, Courage, all that takes the Heart,
And only wants what pleases Women's Vanity,
Estate, the only good that I can boast :
And that I sacrifice to buy thy Smiles.

La Nu. See, Sir——here's a much fairer Chapman——you may be gone—— [To Will.

Will. Faith, and so there is, Child, for me, I carry all about me, and that by Heaven is thine : I'll settle all upon thee, but my Sword, and that will buy us Bread.
I've two led Horses too, one thou shalt manage, and follow me thro Dangers.

La Nu. A very hopeful comfortable Life ;
No, I was made for better Exercises.

Will. Why, every thing in its turn, Child, yet a Man's but a Man.

Beau. No more, but if thou valuest her, leave her to Ease and Plenty.

Will. Leave her to Love, my Dear ; one hour of right-down Love, is worth an Age of living dully on :
What 'tis to be adorn'd and shine with Gold,
Drest like a God, but never know the Pleasure ?

——No, no, I have much finer things in store for thee.

[Hugs her.

La Nu.

La Nu. What shall I do? here's powerful Interest proftrate at my Feet, [Pointing to Beau.

Glory, and all that Vanity can boast;

—But there—Love unadorn'd, no covering but his Wings,
[To Will.

No Wealth, but a full Quiver to do mischiefs,
Laughs at those meaner Trifles——

Beau. Mute as thou art, are not these Minutes mine?

But thou——ah false——hast dealt 'em out already,

With all thy Charms of Love, to this unknown——

Silence and guilty Blushes say thou hast:

He all disorder'd too, loose and undrest,

With Love and Pleasure dancing in his Eyes,

Tell me too plainly how thou hast deceiv'd me.

La Nu. Or if I have not, 'tis a Trick soon done,
And this ungrateful Jealousy wou'd put it in my Head.

[Angrily.

Beau. Wou'd! by Heaven, thou hast—he is not to be fool'd, or sooth'd into belief of distant Joys, as easy as I have been: I've lost so kind an Opportunity, where Night and Silence both conspire with Love, had made him rage like Waves blown up by Storms: ——no more—I know he has—oh what, La Nuche! robb'd me of all that I have languish'd for——

La Nu. If it were so, you should not dare believe it—

[Angrily turns away, he kneels and holds her.

Beau. Forgive me; oh so very well I love,

Did I not know that thou hadst been a Whore,

I'd give thee the last proof of Love—and marry thee.

Will. The last indeed——for there's an end of Loving;
do, marry him, and be curst by all his Family: marry him, and ruin him, that he may curse thee too. —— But hark ye, Friend, this is not fair; 'tis drawing Sharps on a Man that's only arm'd with the defensive Cudgel, I'm for no such dead doing Arguments; if thou art for me, Child, it must be without the folly, for better for worse;
there's a kind of Nonsense in that Vow Fools only swallow.

La Nu. But when I've worn out all my Youth and Beauty, and suffer'd every ill of Poverty, I shall be compell'd to begin the World again without a Stock to set up with—No faith, I'm for a substantial Merchant in Love, who can repay the loss of Time and Beauty; with whom to make one thriving Voyage sets me up for ever, and I need never put to Sea again. [Comes to Beau.

Beau. Nor be expos'd to Storms of Poverty, the Indies shall come to thee.—See here—this is the Merchandize my Love affords. [Gives her a Pearl, and Pendants of Diamond.

La Nu. Look ye, Sir, will not these Pearls do better round my Neck, than those kind Arms of yours? these Pendants in my Ears, than all the Tales of Love you can whisper there?

Will. So——I am deceiv'd——deal on for Trash——and barter all thy Joys of Life for Baubles—— this Night presents me one Adventure more—I'll try thee once again, inconstant Fortune; and if thou fail'st me then —I will forswear thee [Aside.] Death, hadst thou lov'd my Friend for his own Value, I had esteem'd thee; but when his Youth and Beauty cou'd not plead, to be the mercenary Conquest of his Presents, was poor, below thy Wit: I cou'd have conquer'd so, but I scorn thee at that rate——my Purse shall never be my Pimp——Farewel, Harry.

Beau. Thou'st sham'd me out of Folly——stay——

Will. Faith—I have an Affignation with a Woman—a Woman Friend! young as the infant-day, and sweet as Roses e'er the Morning Sun have kiss'd their Dew away.
She will not ask me Money neither.

La Nu. Hah! stay—— [Holds him, and looks on him.

Beau. She loves him, and her Eyes betray her Heart.

Will. I am not for your turn, Child——Death, I shall lose my Mistress fooling here——I must be gone.

[She holds him, he shakes his Head and sings.

No, no, I will not hire your Bed,
Nor Tenant to your Favours be;
I will not farm your White and Red,
You shall not let your Love to me:
I court a Mistress——not a Landlady.

Beau.

Beau. He's in the right ; and shall I waste my Youth and powerful Fortune on one who all this while has jilted me, seeing I was a lavish loving Fool ? — No — this Soul and Body shall not be divided — [Gives her to Will.

Will. I am so much thy Friend, another time I might be drawn to take a bad Bargain off thy Hands — but I have other Business at present : wo't do a kind thing, Harry, — lend me thy Aid to carry off my Woman to night ? 'tis hard by in the Piazza, perhaps we may find Resistance.

Beau. My self and Sword are yours. I have a Chair waits below too, may do you Service.

Will. I thank ye — Madam — your Servant.

La Nu. Left by both !

Beau. You see our Affairs are pressing.

[Bows, and smiles carelessly. Ex. Will. singing.

La Nu. Gone ! where's all your Power, ye poor deluded Eyes ? Curse on your feeble Fires, that cannot warm a Heart which every common Beauty kindles. Oh — he is gone for ever.

Enter Petronella.

Pet. Yes, he is gone, to your eternal Ruin ; not all the Race of Men cou'd have produc'd so bountiful and credulous a Fool.

La Nu. No, never ; fetch him back, my Petronella : Bring me my wild Inconstant, or I die — [Puts her out.

Pet. The Devil fetch him back for Petronella, is't he you mean ? you've had too much of him ; a Curse upon him, he's ruin'd you.

La Nu. He has, he shall, he must compleat my ruin.

Pet. She raves, the Rogue has given her a Spanish Phil-tre.

La Nu. My Coach, my Veil — or let 'em all alone ; undrest thus loosely to the Winds commit me to darkness, and no Guide but pitying Cupid. [Going out, Pet. holds her.

Pet. What, are you mad ?

La Nu. As Winds let loose, or Storms when they rage high.

[Goes out.

Pet. She's lost, and I'll shift for my self, seize all her Money and Jewels, of which I have the Keys ; and if Seignior Mountebank keeps his Word, be transform'd to Youth and Beauty again, and undo this La Nuche at her own Trade—— [Goes in.]

Enter Willmore, Beaumont, Chair following.

Will. Set down the Chair; you're now within call, I'll go to the Garden-Door, and see if any Lady Bright appear— Dear Beaumont, stay here a minute, and if I find occasion, I'll give you the Word.

Beau. 'Tis hard by my Lodgings; if you want Conveniences, I have the Key of the Back-way through the Garden, whither you may carry your Mistress.

Will. I thank thee—let me first secure my Woman.

[Goes out.]

Beau. I thought I'd lov'd this false, this jilting Fair, even above my Friendship; but I find I can forgive this Rogue, tho I am sure he has rob'd me of my Joys.

Enter Ariadne with a Casket of Jewels.

Aria. Not yet! a Devil on him, he's Dear-hearting it with some other kind Damsel—— Faith, 'tis most wickedly done of me to venture my Body with a mad unknown Fellow. Thus a little more Delay will put me into a serious Consideration, and I shall e'en go home again, sleep and be sober.

[She walks about.]

Beau. Hah, a Woman! Perhaps the same he looks for——I'll counterfeit his Voice and try my Chance—— Fortune may set us even.

Aria. Hah, is not that a Man? Yes——and a Chair waiting.

[She peeps.]

Beau. Who's there?

Aria. A Maid.

Beau. A Miracle——Oh art thou come, Child?

Aria. 'Tis he, you are a civil Captain, are you not, to make a longing Maid expect thus? What Woman has detain'd you?

Beau. Faith, my Dear, tho Flesh and Blood be frail, yet the dear Hopes of thee has made me hold out with a Herculean Courage——Stay, where shall I carry her?

not not to my own Apartment; Ariadne may surprize me: I'll to the Mountebank here i'th' Piazza, he has a Cure for all things, even for longing Love, and for a Pistole or two will do Reason.

—Hab, Company: Here step into this Chair.

[She goes in, they go off just as Will. enters.]

Will. Hum, a Woman of Quality and jilt me—Egad that's strange now—Well, who shall a Man trust in this wicked World?

Enter La Nuche as before.

La Nu. This should be he, he saunters about like an expecting Lover.

[Will. peeping and approaching.]

Will. By this Light a Woman, if she be the right—but right or wrong so she be Feminine: harkye, Child, I fancy thee some kind thing that belongs to me.

La Nu. Who are you? [In a low tone.]

Will. A wandering Lover that has lost his Heart, and I have a shreud Guess 'tis in thy dear Bosom, Child.

La Nu. Oh you're a pretty Lover, a Woman's like to have a sweet time on't, if you're always so tedious.

Will. By yon bright Star-light, Child, I walk'd here in short turns like a Centinel, all this live-long Evening, and was just going (Gad forgive me) to kill my self.

La Nu. I rather think some Beauty has detain'd you: Have you not seen La Nuche?

Will. La Nuche!—Why, she's a Whore—I hope you take me for a civiller Person, than to throw my self away on Whores—No, Child, I lie with none but honest Women I: but no disputing now, come—to my Lodging, my dear—here's a Chair waits hard by.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE Willmore's Lodging.

Enter Harlequin with Fetherfool's Clothes on his Shoulder, leading him halting by one Hand, Blunt (drunk) by the other in the dark; Fetherfool bloody, his Coat put over his Shoulders.

Feth. Peano, Peano, Seignior, gently good Edward— for I'll not halt before a Cripple; I have lost a great part of my agil Faculties.

Blunt. Ah, see the Inconstancy of fickle Fortune, Nicholas— A Man to day, and beaten to-morrow: but take comfort, there's many a proper fellow has been robb'd and beaten on this Highway of whoring.

Feth. Ay Ned, thou speak'st by woful Experience— but that I should miscarry after thy wholesome Documents——but we are all mortal, as thou say'st, Ned— Would I had never cross the Ferry from Croydon; a few such Nights as these wou'd learn a Man Experience enough to be a Wizard, if he have but the ill luck to escape hanging.

Blunt. 'Dsheartlikins, I wonder in what Country our kinder Stars rule: In England plunder'd, sequester'd, imprison'd and banish'd; in France, starv'd, walking like the Sign of the naked Boy, with Plymouth Cloaks in our Hands; in Italy and Spain robb'd, beaten, and thrown out at Windows.

Feth. Well, how happy am I, in having so true a Friend to condole me in Affliction— [Weeps.] I am oblig'd to Seignior Harlequin too, for bringing me hither to the Mountebank's, where I shall not only conceal this Catastrophe from those fortunate Rogues our Comrades, but procure a little Album Græcum for my Backside. Come Seignior, my Clothes——but Seignior——un Portavera Poco palanea. [Dresses himself.]

Harl. Seignior.

Feth. Entende vos Signoria Englesa?

Harl. Em Poco, em Poco, Seignior.

Feth. Per quelq arts, did your Seigniorship escape Cudgeling?

Harl. La art de transformatio.

Feth. Transformatio —— Why, wert thou not born a Man?

Harl. No, Seignior, un vieule Femme.

Feth. How, born an old Woman?

Blunt. Good Lord! born an old Woman! And so by transformation became invulnerable.

Feth

Feth. Ay—in—invulnerable—what would I give to be invulnerable? and egad I am almost weary of being a Man, and subject to beating: wou'd I were a Woman, a Man has but an ill time on't: if he has a mind to a Wench, the making Love is so plaguy tedious—then paying is to my Soul insupportable. But to be a Woman, to be courted with Presents, and have both the Pleasure and the Profit—to be without a Beard, and sing a fine Treble—and squeak if the Men but kiss me—'twere fine—and what's better, I am sure never to be beaten again.

Blunt. Pox on't, do not use an old Friend so scurvily; consider the Misery thou'lt indure to have the Heart and Mind of a jilting Whore possess thee: What a Fit of the Devil must he suffer who acts her Part from fourteen to fourscore! No, 'tis resolv'd thou remain Nicholas Fether-fool still, shalt marry the Monster, and laugh at Fortune.

Feth. 'Tis true, should I turn Whore to the Disgrace of my Family—what would the World say? who wou'd have thought it, cries one? I cou'd never have believ'd it, cries another. No, as thou say'st, I'll remain as I am—marry and live honestly.

Blunt. Well resolv'd, I'll leave you, for I was just going to serenade my Fairy Queen, when I met thee at the Door——some Deeds of Gallantry must be perform'd, Seignior Bonus Nochus. [Ex. Blunt.

Enter Shift with Light.

Feth. Hah, a Light, undone!

Harl. Patientia, Patientia, Seignior.

Shift. Where the Devil can this Rogue Hunt be? Just now all things are ready for marrying these two Monsters; they wait, the House is husht, and in the lucky Minute to have him out of the way: sure the Devil owes me a spite. [Runs against Harlequin, puts out his Candle.

Harl. Qui est là?

Shift. 'Tis Harlequin: Pox on't, is't you?

Harl. Peace, here's Fetherfool, I'll secure him, whilst you go about your Affair. [Ex. Shift.

Feth. Oh, I hear a Noise, dear Harlequin secure me; if I am discover'd I am undone——hold, hold—— here's a Door—— [They both go in.

SCENE changes to a Chamber, discovers the She-Giant asleep in a great Chair.

Enter Fetherfool and Harlequin.

Feth. Hah—my Lady Monster! have I to avoid Scylla run upon Carybdis?—hah she sleeps; now wou'd some magnanimous Lover make good Use of this Opportunity, take Fortune by the Fore-lock, put her to't, and make sure Work——but Egad he must have a better Heart, or a better Mistress than I.

Harl. Try your Strength, I'll be civil and leave you.

[In Italian he still speaks.]

Feth. Excuse me Seignior, I should crackle like a wicker Bottle in her Arms——no, Seignior, there's no venturing without a Grate between us: the Devil wou'd not give her due Benevolence——No, when I'm marry'd, I'll e'en show her a fair pair of Heels, her Portion will pay Postage—But what if the Giant should carry her? that's to be fear'd, then I have cock'd and drest, and fed, and ventur'd all this while for nothing.

Harl. Faith, Seignior, if I were you, I wou'd make sure of something, see how rich she is in Gems.

Feth. Right, as thou say'st, I ought to make sure of something, and she is rich in Gems: How amiable looks that Neck with that delicious row of Pearls about it.

Harl. She sleeps.

Feth. Ay, she sleeps as 'twere her last. What if I made bold to unrig her? So if I miss the Lady, I have at least my Charges paid: what vigorous Lover can resist her Charms?——

[Looks on her.]

But shou'd she wake and miss it, and find it about me, I shou'd be hang'd——

[Turns away.]

——So then, I lose my Lady too—but Flesh and Blood cannot resist—What if I left the Town? then I lose my Lady still; and who wou'd lose a Hog for the rest of the Proverb?—And yet a Bird in Hand, Friend Nicholas—Yet sweet Meat may have sour Sauce—And yet refuse when Fortune offers—Yet Honesty's a Jewel—But a Pox upon Pride, when Folks go naked——

Har.

Har. Well said. [Incouraging him by Signs.]

Feth. Ay—I'll do't—but what Remedy now against Discovery and Restitution?

Har. Oh, Sir, take no care; you shall—swallow 'em.

Feth. How, swallow 'em! I shall ne'er be able to do't.

Har. I'll shew you, Seignior, 'tis easy.

Feth. 'Gad that may be, 'twere excellent if I cou'd do't; but first—by your leave.

[Unties the Necklace, breaks the String, and

Har. swallows one to shew him.

Har. Look ye, that's all—

Feth. Hold, hold, Seignior, an you be so nimble, I shall pay dear for my Learning—let me see—Friend Nicholas, thou hast swallow'd many a Pill for the Disease of the Body, let's see what thou canst perform for that of the Purse. [Swallows 'em.]

—so—a comfortable business this—three or four thousand pound in Cordial-Pearl: 'Sbud, Mark Anthony was never so treated by his Egyptian Crocodile—hah, what noise is that?

Har. Operator, Operator, Seignior.

Feth. How, an Operator! why, what the Devil makes he here? some Plot upon my Lady's Chastity; were I given to be jealous now, Danger wou'd ensue—Oh, he's entring, I wou'd not be seen for all the World. Oh, some place of Refuge— [Looking about.]

Har. I know of none.

Feth. Hah, what's this—a Clock Case?

Har. Good, good—look you, Sir, do you do thus, and 'tis impossible to discover ye.

Enter Shift and Hunt.

Feth. Oh Heaven, he's here.

Shift. See where she sleeps; get you about your business, see your own little Marmoset and the Priest be ready, that we may marry and consummate before Day; and in the Morning our Friends shall see us abed together, give us the good morrow, and the Work's done.

Feth. Oh Traytor to my Bed, what a Hellish Plot's here discover'd! [Ex. Hunt.]
[Shift wakes the Giant.]

Giant. Oh, are you come, my Sweetest?

Feth. Hah, the Mistress of my Bosom false too! ah, who wou'd trust faithless Beauty——oh that I durst speak.

Shift. Come let's away, your Uncle and the rest of the House are fast asleep, let's away e'er the two Fools, Blunt and Fetherfool, arrive.

Giant. Hang 'em, Pigeon-hearted Slaves——

Shift. A Clock——let's see what hour 'tis——

[Lifts up the Light to see, Feth. blows it out.]
 ——How betray'd——I'll kill the Villain. [Draws.]

Feth. Say you so, then 'tis time for me to uncase.

Shift. Have you your Lovers hid? [Gets out, all groping in the dark, Feth. gets the Giant by the Hand.]

Giant. Softly, or we're undone; give me your Hand, and be undeceiv'd.

Feth. 'Tis she, now shall I be reveng'd.

[Leads her out.]

Shift. What gone! Death, has this Monster got the Arts of Woman? [Harl. meets him in the dark, and plays tricks with him.]

[Ex.]

Enter Willmore and La Nuche by dark.

Will. Now we are safe and free, let's in my Soul, and gratefully first sacrifice to Love, then to the Gods of Mirth and Wine, my Dear. [Ex. passing over the Stage.]

Enter Blunt with Petronella, embracing her, his Sword in his Hand, and a Box of Jewels.

Pet. I was damnably afraid I was pursu'd. [Aside.]

Blunt. Something in the Fray I've got, pray Heaven it prove a Prize, after my cursed ill luck of losing my Lady Dwarf: Why do you tremble, fair one?——you're in the Hands of an honest Gentleman, Adhartlikins.

Pet. Alas, Sir, just as I approacht Seignior Doctor's Door, to have my self surrounded with naked Weapons, then to drop with the fear my Casket of Jewels, which had had not you by chance stumbled on and taken up, I had lost a hundred thousand Crowns with it.

Blunt. Ha um—a hundred thousand Crowns—a pretty trifling Sum—I'll marry her out of hand. [Aside.]

Pet. This is an Englishman, of a dull honest Nation, and might be manag'd to advantage, were but I transform'd now. [Aside.]

I hope you are a Man of Honour; Sir, I am a Virgin, fled from the rage of an incens'd Brother; cou'd you but secure me with my Treasure, I wou'd be devoted yours.

Blunt. Secure thee! by this Light, sweet Soul, I'll marry thee;——Belvile's Lady ran just so away with him——this must be a Prize—— [Aside.]

But hark—prithee, my Dear, step in a little, I'll keep my good Fortune to my self.

Pet. See what trust I repose in your Hands, those Jewels, Sir.

Blunt. So—there can be no jilting here, I am secur'd from being cozen'd however. [Ex. Pet.]

Enter Fetherfool.

Feth. A Pox on all Fools, I say, and a double Pox on all fighting Fools; just when I had miraculously got my Monster by a mistake in the dark, convey'd her out, and within a moment of marrying her, to have my Friend set upon me, and occasion my losing her, was a Catastrophe which none but thy termagant Courage (which never did any Man good) cou'd have procur'd.

Blunt. 'Dshartlikins, I cou'd kill my self:

Feth. To fight away a couple of such hopeful Monsters, and two Millions——'owns, was ever Valour so improvident?

Blunt. Your fighting made me mistake: for who the Pox wou'd have look'd for Nicholas Fetherfool in the person of a Hero?

Feth. Fight, 'Sbud a Million of Money wou'd have provok'd a Bully; besides, I took you for the damn'd Rogue my Rival.

Blunt. Just as I had finish'd my Serenade, and had put up my Pipes to be gone, out-stalk'd me your two-handed Lady, with a Man at her Girdle like a bunch of Keys, whom I taking for nothing less than some one who had some foul design upon the Gentlewoman, like a true Knight-Errant, did my best to rescue her.

Feth. Yes, yes, I feel you did, a Pox of your heavy hand.

Blunt. So whilst we two were lovingly cuffing each other, comes the Rival, I suppose, and carries off the Prize.

Feth. Who must be Seignior Lucifer himself, he cou'd never have vanisht with that Celerity else with such a Carriage—But come, all we have to do is to raise the Mountebank and the Guardian, pursue the Rogues, have 'em hang'd by Law, for a Rape, and Theft, and then we stand fair again.

Blunt. Faith, you may, if you please, but Fortune has provided otherwise for me. [Aside.] [Ex. Blu. and Feth.

Enter Beaumont and Ariadne.

Beau. Sure none lives here, or Thieves are broken in, the Doors are all left open.

Aria. Pray Heaven this Stranger prove but honest now.

[Aside.

Beau. Now my dear Creature, every thing conspires to make us happy, let us not defer it.

Aria. Hold, dear Captain, I yield but on Conditions, which are these—I give you up a Maid of Youth and Beauty, ten thousand Pound in ready Jewels here—three times the value in Estate to come, of which here be the Writings, you delivering me a handsom proper fellow, Heart-whole and sound, that's all—your Name I ask not till the Priest declare it, who is to seal the Bargain. I cannot deceive, for I let you know I am Daughter-in-law to the English Ambassador.

Beau. Ariadne!—How vain is all Man's Industry and Care to make himself accomplish'd; when the gay fluttering Fool, or the half-witted rough unmanner'd Brute, who in plain terms comes right down to the business, out-rivals him in all his Love and Fortunes.

[Aside.

Aria. Methinks you cool upon't, Captain.

Beau. Yes, Ariadne.

Aria.

Aria. Beaumont!

Beau. Oh what a World of Time have I mispent for want of being a Blockhead——'sdeath and Hell, Wou'd I had been some brawny ruffling Fool, Some forward impudent unthinking Sloven, A Woman's Tool; for all besides unmanageable. Come, swear that all this while you thought 'twas I. The Devil has taught ye Tricks to bring your Falshood off.

Aria. Know 'twas you! no, Faith, I took you for as errant a right down Captain as ever Woman wish'd for; and 'twas uncivil egad, to undeceive me, I tell you that now.

Enter Willmore and La Nuche by dark.

Will. Thou art all Charms, a Heaven of Sweets all over, plump smooth round Limbs, small rising Breasts, a Bosom soft and panting—I long to wound each Sense. Lights there—who waits?—there yet remains a Pleasure unpossess'd, the sight of that dear Face—Lights there—where are my Vermin? [Ex. Will.]

Aria. My Captain with a Woman——and is it so——

Enter Will. with Lights, sees Aria, and goes to her.

Will. By Heaven, a glorious Beauty! now a Blessing on thee for shewing me so dear a Face——Come, Child, let's retire and begin where we left off.

La Nu. A Woman!

Aria. Where we left off! pray, where was that good Captain?

Will. Within upon the Bed, Child——come——I'll show thee.

Beau. Hold Sir.

Will. Beaumont! come fit to celebrate my Happiness; ah such a Woman-friend!

Beau. Do ye know her?

Will. All o'er, to be the softest sweetest Creature——

Beau. I mean, do ye know who she is?

Will. Nor care; 'tis the last Question I ever ask a fine Woman.

Beau. And you are sure you are thus well acquainted.

Will.

Will. I cannot boast of much acquaintance——but I have pluckt a Rose from her Bosom——or so——and given it her again——we've past the hour of the Berjere together, that's all——

Beau. And do you know——this Lady is my——Wife?

[Draw.

Will. Hah! hum, hum, hum, hum——

[Turns and sings, sees La Nuche, and returns quick with an uneasy Grimace.

Beau. Did you not hear me? Draw.

Will. Draw, Sir——what on my Friend?

Beau. On your Cuckold, Sir, for so you've doubly made me: Draw, or I'll kill thee—— [Passes at him, he fences with his Hat, La Nu. holds Beau.

Will. Hold, prithee hold.

La Nu. Put up your Sword, this Lady's innocent, at least in what concerns this Evening's business; I own——with Pride I own I am the Woman that pleas'd so well to Night.

Will. La Nuche! kind Soul to bring me off with so handsom a lye: How lucky 'twas she happen'd to be here!

Beau. False as thou art, why shou'd I credit thee?

La Nu. By Heaven, 'tis true, I will not lose the glory on'to.

Will. Oh the dear perjur'd Creature, how I love thee for this dear lying Virtue——Harkye, Child, hast thou nothing to say for thy self, to help us out withal?——

[To Aria. aside.

Aria. I! I renounce ye——false Man.

Beau. Yes, yes, I know she's innocent of this, for which I owe no thanks to either of you, but to my self who mistook her in the dark.

La Nu. And you it seems mistook me for this Lady; I favour'd your Design to gain your Heart, for I was told, that if this Night I lost you, I shou'd never regain you: now I am yours, and o'er the habitable World will follow you, and live and starve by turns, as Fortune pleases.

Will.

Will. Nay, by this Light, Child, I knew when once thou'dst try'd me, thou'dst ne'er part with me——give me thy Hand, no Poverty shall part us. [Kisses her.

——so——now here's a Bargain made without the formal Foppery of Marriage.

La Nu. Nay, faith Captain, she that will not take thy word as soon as the Parson's of the Parish, deserves not the Blessing.

Will. Thou art reform'd, and I adore the Change.

Enter the Guardian, Blunt, and Fetherfool.

Guar. My Nieces stol'n, and by a couple of the Seignior's Men! the Seignior fled too!—undone, undone!

Will. Hah, now's my Cue, I must finish this Jest.

[Goes out.

Enter Shift and Giant, Hunt and Dwarf.

Guar. Oh impudence, my Nieces, and the Villains with 'em! I charge ye Gentlemen to lay hold on 'em.

Dwarf. For what, good Uncle, for being so courageous to marry us?

Guar. How, married to Rogues, Rascals, Jean Potages!

Blunt. Who the Devil wou'd have look'd for jilting in such Hobgoblins?

Feth. And hast thou deceiv'd me, thou foul-filthy Synagogue?

Enter Willmore like a Mountebank as before.

Blunt. The Mountebank! oh thou cheating Quack, thou sophisticated adulterated Villain.

Feth. Thou cozening, lying, Fortune-telling, Fee-taking Rascal.

Blunt. Thou juggling, conjuring, canting Rogue!

Will. What's the matter, Gentlemen?

Blunt. Hast thou the Impudence to ask who took my Money to marry me to this ill-favour'd Baboon?

Feth. And me to this foul filthy o'ergrown Chronicle?

Blunt. And hast suffered Rogues, thy Servants, to marry 'em: Sirrah, I will beat thee past Cure of all thy hard-nam'd Drugs, thy Guzman Medicines.

Feth. Nay, I'll peach him in the Inquisition for a Wizard, and have him hang'd for a Witch.

Shift. Sir, we are Gentlemen, and you shall have the thirds of their Portion, what wou'd you more?

Look ye, Sir.

[Aside to the Guar.

[Pulls off their Disguise.

Blunt. Hunt!

Feth. Shift! We are betray'd: all will out to the Captain.

Will. He shall know no more of it than he does already for me, Gentlemen.

[Pulls off his Disguise.

Blunt. Willmore!

Feth. Ay, ay, 'tis he.

Blunt. Draw, Sir—you know me——

Will.——For one that 'tis impossible to cozen.

[All laugh.

Beau. Have a care, Sir, we are all for the Captain.

Feth. As for that, Sir, we fear ye not, d'ye see, were you Hercules and all his Myrmidons.

[Draws, but gets behind.

Will. Fools, put up your Swords, Fools, and do not publish the Jest; your Money you shall have again, on condition you never pretend to be wiser than other Men, but modestly believe you may be cozen'd as well as your Neighbours.

[The Guardian talking with Hunt and Shift and Giant this while.

Feth. La you, Ned, why shou'd Friends fall out?

Blunt. Cozen'd! it may be not, Sir; for look ye; Sir, the Essex Fool, the cozen'd dull Rogue can shew Moveables or so—nay, they are right too—— [Shews his Jewels.

This is no Naples Adventure, Gentlemen, no Copper Chains; all substantial Diamonds, Pearls and Rubies—— [Will. takes the Casket, and looks in it.

La Nu. Hah, do not I know that Casket, and those Jewels?

Feth. How the Pox came this Rogue by these?

Will. Hum, Edward, I confess you have redeem'd your Reputation, and shall hereafter pass for a Wit—by what good fortune came you by this Treasure?—what Lady—

Blunt.

Blunt. Lady, Sir! alas no, I'm a Fool, a Country Fop, an Ass, I; but that you may perceive your selves mistaken, Gentlemen, this is but an earnest of what's to come, a small token of remembrance, or so—and yet I have no Charms, I; the fine Captain has all the Wit and Beauty—but thou'rt my Friend, and I'll impart.

[Brings out Petronella veil'd.

Enter Aurelia and Sancho.

Aur. Hither we trac'd her, and see she's yonder.

San. Sir, in the King's Name lay hold of this old Cheat, she has this Night robb'd our Patrona of a hundred thousand Crowns in Money and Jewels.

Blunt. Hah!

La Nu. You are mistaken, Friend Sancho, she only seiz'd 'em for my use, and has deliver'd 'em in trust to my Friend the Captain.

Pet. Hah, La Nuche!

Blunt. How! cozen'd again!

Will. Look ye, Sir, she's so beautiful, you need no Portion, that alone's sufficient for Wit.

Feth. Much good may do you with your rich Lady, Edward.

Blunt. Death, this Fool laugh at me too — well, I am an errant right-down Loggerhead, a dull conceited cozen'd silly Fool; and he that ever takes me for any other, 'dshartlikins, I'll beat him. I forgive you all, and will henceforth be good-natur'd; wo't borrow any Money? Pox on't, I'll lend as far as e'er 'twill go, for I am now reclaim'd.

Guar. Here is a Necklace of Pearl lost, which, Sir, I lay to your Charge. [To Fetherfool.

Feth. Hum, I was bewicht I did not rub off with it when it was mine—who I? if e'er I saw a Necklace of Pearl, I wish 'twere in my Belly.

Blunt. How a Necklace! unconscionable Rogue, not to let me share: well, there is no Friendship in the World; I hope they'll hang him.

Shift. He'll ne'er confes without the Rack——come, we'll tofs him in a Blanket.

Feth. Hah, tofs me in a Blanket, that will turn my Stomach most villainously, and I shall difembogue and discover all.

Shift. Come, come, the Blanket [They lay hold on him.

Feth. Hold, hold, I do confess, I do confess——

Shift. Restore, and have your Pardon.

Feth. That is not in Nature at present, for Gentlemen, I have eat 'em.

Shift. 'Sdeath, I'll dissect ye. [Goes to draw.

Will. Let me redeem him; here Boy, take him to my Chamber, and let the Doctor glyster him soundly, and I'll warrant you your Pearl again.

Feth. If this be the end of travelling, I'll e'en to old England again, take the Covenant, get a Sequestrator's Place, grow rich, and defy all Cavaliering.

Beau. 'Tis Morning, let's home, Ariadne, and try, if possible, to love so well to be content to marry; if we find that amendment in our Hearts, to say we dare believe and trust each other, then let it be a Match.

Aria. With all my Heart.

Will. You have a hankering after Marriage still, but I am for Love and Gallantry.

So tho by several ways we gain our End,
Love still, like Death, does to one Center tend.

EPILOGUE,

Spoken by Mrs. BARRY.

POets are Kings of Wit, and you appear
 A Parliament, by Play-Bill, summon'd here ;
 When e'er in want, to you for aid they fly,
 And a new Play's the Speech that begs supply :
 But now——

The scanted Tribute is so slowly paid,
 Our Poets must find out another Trade ;
 They've try'd all ways th' insatiate Clan to please,
 Have parted with their old Prerogatives,
 Their Birth-right Satiring, and their just pretence
 Of judging even their own Wit and Sense ;
 And write against their Consciences, to show
 How dull they can be to comply with you.
 They've flatter'd all the Mutineer i'th' Nation,
 Grosser than e'er was done in Dedication ,
 Pleas'd your sick Palates with Fantastick Wit,
 Such as was ne'er a treat before to th' Pit ;
 Giants, fat Cardinals, Pope Joans and Fryers,
 To entertain Right Worshipfuls and Squires :
 Who laugh, and cry Ads Nigs, 'tis woundy good,
 When the fuger's all the Jest that's understood.
 And yet you'll come but once, unless by stealth,
 Except the Author be for Commonwealth ;
 Then half Crown more you nobly throw a Way,
 And tho my Lady seldom see a Play,
 She, with her eldest Daughter, shall be boxt that day. }
 Then Prologue comes, Ads-lightikins, crys Sir John,
 You shall hear notable Conceits anon :
 How neatly, Sir, he'll bob the Court and French King,
 And tickle away—you know who—for Wenching.

ACT I. SCENE I.

Enter Alonzo and Lovis in travelling Habits, attended by Pedro and Gload.

Lo.  E A R Alonzo ! I shall love a Church the better this Month for giving me a sight of thee, whom I so little expected in this part of the World, and less in so sanctify'd a Place. What Affair could be powerful enough to draw thee from the kind obliging Ladies of Brabant ?

Alon. First the sudden Orders of my Prince Don John, and next a fair Lady.

Lo. A Lady ! Can any of this Country relish with a Man that has been us'd to the Freedom of those of Bruxels, from whence I suppose you are now arriv'd ?

Alon. This morning I landed, from such a Storm, as set us all to making Vows of Conversion, (upon good Conditions) and that indeed brought me to Church.

Lo. In that very Storm I landed too, but with less Sense of Danger than you, being diverted with a pleasant Fellow that came along with me, and who is design'd to marry a Sister of mine against my Will.——And now I think of him, Gload, where hast thou left this Master of thine ?

Glo. At the Inn, Sir, in as lamentable a Pickle, as if he were still in the Storm ; recruiting his empyed Stomach with Brandy, and railing against all Women-kind for your Sister's sake, who has made him undertake this Voyage.

Lo. Well, I'll come to him, go home before.

[Ex. Gload.

Alon. Prithee what thing is this ?

Lo. Why, 'tis the Cashier to this Squire I spoke of, a Man of Business, and as wise as his Master, but the graver Coxcomb.

Coxcomb of the two. But this Lady, Alonzo, who is this Lady thou speak'st of? shall not I know her? We were wont to divide the Spoils of Beauty, as well as those of War between us.

Alon. O but this is no such Prize, thou wouldst hardly share this with the Danger, there's Matrimony in the Case.

Lo. Nay, then keep her to thy self, only let me know who 'tis that can debauch thee to that scandalous way of Life; is she fair? will she recompense the Folly?

Alon. Faith I know not, I never saw her yet, but 'tis the Sister of Marcel, whom we both knew last Summer in Flanders, and where he and I contracted such a Friendship, that without other Consideration he promis'd me Hippolyta, for that's his Sister's Name.

Lo. But wo't thou really marry her?

Alon. I consider my Advantage in being allied to so considerable a Man as Ambrosio, her Father; I being now so unhappy as not to know my Birth or Parents.

Lo. I have often heard of some such thing, but durst not ask the Truth of it.

Alon. 'Tis so, all that I know of my self is, that a Spanish Souldier, who brought me up in the Army, dying, confest I was not his Son, (which till then I believ'd) and at the Age of twelve left me to shift for my self: the Fortune he enrich'd me with, was his Horse and Arms, with a few Documents how to use them, as I had seen him do with good success: This Servant, (Points to Pedro) and a Crucifix of Value. And from one Degree to another, I arriv'd to what you knew me, Colonel of the Prince's Regiment, and the Glory of his Favour.

Lo. Honour is the Child of Virtue, and finds an Owner every where.

Alon. Oh, Sir, you are a Courtier, and have much the odds of a Souldier in Parleys of this nature: but hither I am come——

Lo. To be undone——Faith thou look'st ill upon't.

Alon. I confess I am not altogether so brisk as I should have been upon another Occasion; you know Louis, I have been us'd to christian Liberty, and hate this formal Courtship. Pox on't, wou'd 'twere over.

Lo.

Lo. Where all Parties are agreed, there's little need of that; and the Ladies of Spain, whatever Gravity they assume, are as ready as any you ever met withal.

Alon. But there's a damn'd Custom that does not at all agree with Men so frank and gay as thou and I; there's a deal of Danger in the Atchievement, which some say heightens the Pleasure, but I am of another Opinion.

Ped. Sir, there is a Female in a Veil has follow'd us ever since we came from Church.

Alon. Some amorous Adventure: See she [Enter Olinda. advances: Prithee retire, there may be danger in it.

[Puts Lovis back.

Lo. Oh then, I must by no means leave you.

[Lovis advances.

Olin. Which of these two shall I chuse? [She looks on both.

Sir, you appear a Stranger, [To Lovis.

Alon. We are both so, Lady.

Olin. I shall spoil all, and bring [She looks again on both. the wrong. Sir, you should be a Cavalier, that—— Alon. Would gladly obey your Orders.

Lo. Nay, I find 'tis all one to you which you chuse, so you have one of us: but would not both do better?

Olin. No, Sir, my Commission's but to one.

Alon. Fix and proceed then, let me be the Man.

Olin. What shall I do? they are both well: [Aside. but I'll e'en chuse, as 'twere, for my self; and hang me if I know which that shall be, (looks on both.) Sir, there is a Lady of Quality and Beauty, who guessing you to be Men of Honour, has sent me to one of you.

Alon. Me I am sure.

Lo. Me, me, he's engag'd already.

Alon. That's foul Play, Lovis.

Olin. Well, I must have but one, and therefore I'll wink and chuse.

Lo. I'll not trust blind Fortune.

Alon. Prithee, Lovis, let thee and I agree upon the matter, and I find the Lady will be reasonable; cross or pile who shall go.

Lo. Go, Sir, whither?

Alon.

Alon. To the Lady that——

Lo. Sent for neither of us that I can hear of yet.

Olin. You will not hear me out, but I'll end the Difference by chusing you, Sir; and if you'll follow me [To Alonzo.] at a Distance, I will conduct you where this Lady is.

Alon. Fair Guide march on, I'll follow thee. [Offers to go.

Lo. You are not mad, Sir, 'tis some abuse, and dangerous. [Pulls him back.

Alon. Be not envious of my Happiness; Forbear a Wench, for fear of Danger!

Lo. Have a care, 'tis some Plot. [Holds him.] Where did this Lady see us? we are both Strangers in the City.

Alon. No matter where.

Olin. At Church, Sir, just now.

Alon. Ay, ay, at Church, at Church, enough.

Lo. What's her Name?

Alon. Away, thou art fuller of Questions than a Fortune-teller: Come let's be gone.

Lo. Sure you do not mean to keep your Word, Sir?

Alon. Not keep my Word, Louis? What wicked Life hast thou known me lead, should make thee suspect I should not? When I have made an Interest in her, and find her worth communicating, I will be just upon Honour—— Go, go.

Lo. Well, go your ways; if Marriage do not tame you, you are past all Hopes: but pray, Sir, let me see you at my Lodgings, the Golden Fleete here at the Gate.

Alon. I'll attend thee here, and tell thee my Adventure: Farewel. (Exit Louis.) Pedro, go you and inquire for the House of Don Ambrosio, and tell him I will wait on him in the Evening, by that time I shall get my self in Order. [Ex. Alonzo and Olinda; Pedro the other way.

SCENE II. Ambrosio's House.

Enter Silvio, melancholy.

Silv. I Must remove Marcel, for his Honour

Will ne'er permit that I should court my Sister;
My Passion will admit of no Restraint,

'Tis

'Tis grown so violent ; and fair Cleonte's Charms
Each Day increase to such a killing Number,
That I must speak or die.

Enter Francisca.

Franc. What, still with folded Arms and down-cast Looks ?

My Brother's Presence now afflicts me more
Than all my Fears of Cruelty from Cleonte ;
She is the best, the sweetest, kindest Sister.

Franc. Ay, Sir, but she will never make the kindest Mistress.

Silv. At least she should permit me to adore her,
Were but Marcel away.

Hast thou no Stratagem to get him absent ?
For I can think of nothing but my Sister.

[Sighs.]

Franc. I know of one, nor other Remedy for you than loving less.

Silv. Oh 'tis impossible :

Thou know'st I've try'd all ways, made my Addresses
To all the fairest Virgins in Madrid ;
Nay, and at last fell to the worst Debauchery,
That of frequenting every common House ;
But Souls that feed so high on Love as mine,
Must nauseate coarser Diet.

No, I must love on, and tell her so,
Or I must live no longer.

Franc. That methinks you might do even in the Presence of Marcel, A Brother is allow'd to love a Sister.

Silv. But I shall do't in such a way, Francisca,
Be so transported, and so passionate,
I shall betray what he will ne'er endure.
And since our other Sister, loose Hippolyta. was lost,
He does so guard and watch the fair Cleonte——

Franc. Why, quarrel with him, Sir : you know you are so much dearer to my Lord your Father than he is, that should he perceive a Difference between ye, he would soon dismiss him the House ; and 'twere but Reason, Sir, for I am sure Don Marcel loves you not.

Silv. That I excuse, since he the lawful Heir to all my Father's

Father's Fortunes, sees it every Day ready to be sacrific'd to me, who can pretend no Title to't, but the unaccountable Love my Father bears me.

Franc. Can you dissemble, Sir?

Silv. The worst of any Man, but would endeavour it, if it could any ways advance my Love.

Franc. Which I must find some way to ruin. [Aside.]
Then court his Mistress.

Silv. The rich Flavia?

Franc. That would not incense him, for her he is to marry; but 'tis the fair Clarinda has his Heart.

Silv. To act a feigned Love, and hide a real one, Is what I have already try'd in vain.

Even fair Clarinda I have courted too,
In hope that way to banish from my Soul
The hopeless Flame Cleonte kindled there;
But 'twas a Shame to see how ill I did dissemble.

Franc. Stay, Sir, here comes Marcel. I'll leave you.
[Exit Francisca.]

Enter Marcel, with a Letter open in his Hand, which he kisses.

Mar. Kind Messenger of Love! Thus, thus a thousand I bid thee welcome from my fair Clarinda. (times
Thus joyful Bridegrooms, after long Despair,
Possess the yielding Treasure in their Arms:
Only thus much the happier Lover I,
Who gather all the Sweets of this fair Maid
Without the ceremonious Tie of Marriage;
That Tie that does but nauseate the Delight,
Beside happy Lovers; we'll embrace
As unconfin'd and free as whispering Air,
That mingles wantonly with spreading Flowers.

Silv. What's all this?

Mar. Silvio, the Victory's won.
The Heart that nicely stood it out so long,
Now yields upon Conditions.

Silv. What Victory? or what Heart?

Mar. I am all Rapture, cannot speak it out;
My Senses have carous'd too much of Joys;
And like young Drunkards, proud of their new try'd Strength,
Haye

Have made my Pleasure less by the excess.

Silv. This is wondrous.

Impart some of your over-charge to me,
The Burden lightned will be more supportable.

Mar. Read here, and change thy Wonder, when thou know'st how happy Man can be. [Gives him a Letter.]

[Silvio reads.]

Marcel,

Dormida will have me tell you what Effects your Vows have made, and how easily they have drawn from me a Consent to see you, as you desir'd, this Night in my Chamber: you have sworn to marry me, and Love will have me credit you, and then methinks I ought not to deny you any thing, nor question your Virtue. Dormida will wait to throw you down the Key, when all are in Bed, that will conduct you to

-Your Clarinda,

Silv. Damn her for a Dissembler!

Is this the chaste, the excellent Clarinda,
Who whilst I courted, was as cold and nice,
As a young Nun the day she is invested?

Mar. How now Brother! what displeas'd with it?

[Takes the Letter.]

Silv. A little, Sir, to see another's Happiness,
Whilst I, where e'er I pay my Vows and Sighs,
Get nothing but Disdain; and yet this Shape
And Face I never thought unhandfom.

Mar. These be the least approaches to a Heart;
'Tis not dull looking well will do the feat,
There is a Knack in Love, a critical Minute:
And Women must be watcht as Witches are,
E'er they confess, and then they yield apace.

Enter a Boy.

Boy. Sir, there's without a Servant of Don Alonzo's, who says his Master will be here to Night.

Mar. Alonzo! now I begin to wake
From Love, like one from some delightful Dream,

To reassume my wonted Cares and Shame.

—— I will not speak with him. [Exit Boy.]

Oh Hippolyta ! thou poor lost thing Hippolyta !
How art thou fallen from Honour, and from Virtue,
And liv'st in Whoredom with an impious Villain,
Who in revenge to me has thus betray'd thee.
Keep thy self closer than thou'st done thy Sin ;
For if I find thee out, by all that's good,
Thou hadst more Mercy on thy slaughter'd Honour,
Than I will have for thee.

And thou Antonio, thou that hast betray'd her,
Who till profan'd by thee, was chaste as Shrines,
And pure as are the Vows are offer'd there,
That Rape which thou'st committed on her Innocence,
I will revenge as shall become her Brother.

[Offers to go out in rage.]

Silv. Stay Marcel,

I can inform you where these Lovers are.

Mar. Oh tell me quickly then,
That I may take them in their soul Embraces,
And send their Souls to Hell.

Silv. Last Night I made a youthful Sally to one of those Houses where Love and Pleasure are sold at dearest Rates.

Mar. A Bordello ; forwards pray.

Silv. Yes, at the Corner of St. Jerom's ; where after seeing many Faces which pleas'd me not, I would have took my leave ; but the Matron of the House, a kind of obliging Lady, seeing me so nice, and of Quality, (tho' disguis'd) told me she had a Beauty, such an one as had Count d' Olivarez in his height of Power seen, he would have purchas'd at any rate. I grew impatient to see this fine thing, and promis'd largely : then leading me into a Room as gay, and as perfum'd as an Altar upon a Holy-day, I saw seated upon a Couch of State—

Mar. Hippolyta !

Silv. Hippolyta our Sister, dress'd like a Venice Curtezan,
With all the Charms of a loose Wanton,
Singing and playing to her ravish'd Lover,
Who I perceiv'd assist'd to expose her.

Mar.

Mar. Well, Sir, what follow'd ?

Silv. Surpriz'd at sight of this, I did withdraw,
And left them laughing at my little Confidence.

Mar. How ! left them ! and left them living too !

Silv. If a young Wench will be gadding,
Who can help it ?

Mar. 'Sdeath you should, were you that half her Brother,
Which my Father too doatingly believes you. [Inrag'd.]

Silv. How ! do you question his Belief, Marcel ?

Mar. I ne'er consider'd it ; be gone and leave me.

Silv. Am I a Dog that thus you bid me vanish ?

What mean you by this Language ? [Comes up to him.]

And how dare you upbraid me with my Birth,
Which know, Marcel, is more illustrious far
Than thine, being got when Love was in his reign,
With all his Youth and Heat about him ?

I, like the Birds of bravest kind, was hatcht

In the hot Sun-shine of Delight ; whilst

Thou, Marcel, wer't poorly brooded

In the cold Nest of Wedlock.

Mar. Thy Mother was some base notorious Strumpet,
And by her Witchcraft reduc'd my Father's Soul,
And in return she paid him with a Bastard,
Which was thou.

Silv. Marcel, thou ly'st. [Strikes him.]

Mar. Tho' were no point of Valour, but of Rashness to fight thee, yet I'll do't.

Silv. By Heaven, I will not put this Injury up.

[They fight, Silvio is wounded.]

[Fight again. Enter Ambrosio, and Cleonte between ; Silvio falls into the Arms of Cleonte.]

Amb. Hold ! I command you hold ;

Ah Traitor to my Blood, what hast thou done ?

[To Marcel, who kneels and lays his Sword at his Feet.]

Silv. In fair Cleonte's Arms !

O I could kiss the Hand that gives me Death,
So I might thus expire.

Mar. Pray hear me, Sir, before you do condemn me.

Amb. I will hear nothing but thy Death pronounc'd,
Since thou hast wounded him, if it be mortal.

196 The DUTCH LOVER.

Have I not charg'd thee on thy Life, Marcel,
Thou shouldst not hold Discourte with him of any kind?

Mar. I did foresee my Fate, but could not shun it.

[Takes his Sword and goes out.]

Amb. What ho! Biscay, a Surgeon; on your Lives a Surgeon; where be these Rascals? [Goes out.]

Silv. I would not have a Surgeon search my Wound
With rude and heavy Hands:

Yours, fair Cleonte, can apply the Balsam
Far more successfully,

For they are soft and white as Down of Swan,
And every Touch is sovereign.

Cleo. But I shou'd die with looking on your Wounds.

Silv. And I shall die unless you cure them, Sister.

Cleo. With the expence of mine to save your Life,
Is both my Wish and Duty.

Silv. I thank you, pretty Innocence. [Leads him in.]

Discovers Euphemia veil'd, walking alone.

Euph. Olinda stays long; I hope she has overtook the Cavalier. Lord, how I am concern'd; if this should be Love now, I were in a fine condition, at least if he be married, or a Lover: Oh that I fear: hang me, if it has not disorder'd me all over. But see, where she comes with him too.

Enter Olinda and Alonzo.

Olin. Here he is, Madam, I hope 'tis the right Man.

Alon. Madam, you see what haste I make to obey your kind Commands.

Euph. 'Twas as kindly done, Sir; but I fear when you know to what end 'tis, you'll repent your Haste.

Alon. 'Tis very likely; but if I do, you are not the first of your Sex that has put me to Repentance: But lift up your Veil, and if your Face be good—

[Offers to lift up her Veil.]

Euph. Stay, you're too hasty.

Alon. Nay, let's have fair Play on both sides, I'll hide nothing from you.

[Offers again.]

Euph.

Euph. I have a Question or two to ask you first.

Alon. I can promise nothing till I see my Reward. I am a base Barterer, here's one for t'other; you saw your Man and like him, and if I like you when I see you—

[Offers again.]

Euph. But if you do not, must all my liking be cast away?

Alon. As for that, trust to my good Nature; a frank Wench has hitherto taken me as much as Beauty. And one Proof you have already given of that, in this kind Invitation: come, come, do not lose my little new-gotten good Opinion of thee, by being coy and peevish.

[Offers again.]

Euph. You're strangely impatient, Sir.

Alon. O you should like me the better for that, 'tis a sign of Youth and Fire.

Euph. But, Sir, before I let you see my Face——

Alon. I hope I must not promise you to like it.

Euph. No, that were too unreasonable, but I must know whether you are a Lover.

Alon. What an idle Question's that to a brisk young Fellow? A Lover! yes, and that as often as I see a new Face.

Euph. That I'll allow.

Alon. That's kindly said; and now do I find I shall be in love with thine as soon as I see't, for I am half so with thy Humour already.

Euph. Are you not married, Sir?

Alon. Married!

Euph. Now I dread his Answer. [Aside.] Yes, married.

Alon. Why, I hope you make no Scruple of Conscience, to be kind to a married Man.

Euph. Now do I find, you hope I am a Curtezan that come to bargain for a Night or two; but if I possess you, it must be for ever.

Alon. For ever let it be then. Come let's begin on any Terms.

Euph. I cannot blame you, Sir, for this mistake, since what I've rashly done, has given you cause to think I am not virtuous.

Alon. Faith, Madam, Man is a strange ungovern'd thing; yet I in the whole course of my Life have taken the best care I could, to make as few Mistakes as possible: and treating all Women-kind alike, we seldom err; for where we find one as you profess to be, we happily light on a hundred of the sociable and reasonable sort.

Euph. But sure you are so much a Gentleman, that you may be convinc'd?

Alon. Faith, if I be mistaken, I cannot devise what other use you can make of me.

Euph. In short this; I must leave you instantly; and will only tell you I am the sole Daughter of a rich Parent, young, and as I am told not unhandsom; I am contracted to a Man I never saw, nor I am sure shall not like when I do see, he having more Vice and Folly than his Fortune will excuse, tho a great one; and I had rather die than marry him.

Alon. I understand you, and you would have me dispatch this Man.

Euph. I am not yet so wicked. The Church is the only place I am allowed to go to, and till now could never see the Man that was perfectly agreeable to me: Thus veil'd, I'll venture to tell you so.

Alon. What the Devil will this come to? her Mien and Shape are strangely graceful, and her Discourse is free and natural. What a damn'd Defeat is this, that she should be honest now! [Aside.

Euph. Well, Sir, what Answer? I see he is uneasy.

[Aside.

Alon. Why, as I was saying, Madam, I am a Stranger.

Euph. I like you the better for that.

Alon. But, Madam, I am a Man unknown, unown'd in the World; and much unworthy the Honour you do me.——Would I were well rid of her, and yet I find a damnable Inclination to stay too. [Aside.

Will nothing but Matrimony serve your turn, Madam? Pray use a young Lover as kindly as you can.

Euph. Nothing but that will do, and that must be done.

Alon. Must! 'slike this was the first of her Sex that ever ever was before-hand with me, and yet that I should be forc'd to deny her too. [Aside.

Euph. I fear his Answer, Olinda. [Aside.

Olin. At least 'tis but making a Discovery of your Beauty, and then you have him sure.

Alon. Madam, 'tis a matter of Moment, and requires Deliberation; besides I have made a kind of Promise—

Euph. Never to marry?

Alon. No, faith, 'tis not so well; But since now I find we are both in haste, I am to be marry'd.

Euph. This I am sure is an Excuse; but I'll fit him for't. [Aside.

To be marry'd said you? That Word has kill'd me, O! I feel it drill

Thro the deep Wound his Eyes have lately made:

'Twas much unkind to make me hope so long.

[She leans on Olinda, as if she swooned, who pulls off her Veil: he stands gazing at a Distance.

Olin. Sure she does but counterfeit, and now I'll play my Part. Madam, Madam!

Alon. What wondrous thing is that! I should no look upon't, it changes Nature in me.

Olin. Have you no pity, Sir? Come nearer pray.

Alon. Sure there's Witchcraft in that Face, it neve could have seiz'd me thus else, I have lov'd a thousand times, yet never felt such joyful Pains before.

Olin. She does it rarely. What mean you, Sir?

Alon. I never was a Captive to this Hour.

If in her Death such certain Wounds she give,
What Mischiefs she would do, if she should live!

Yet she must live, and live that I may prove Whether this strange Disorder here be Love.

Divine, divinest Maid. [Kneels

Olind. Come nearer, Sir, you'll do a Lady no good at that Distance. Speak to her, Sir.

[He rises and comes to her, gazing still

Alon. I know not what to say,

I am unus'd to this soft kind of Language:

But if there be a Charm in Words, and such

As may conjure her to return again;

Prithee instruct me in them, I'll say any thing, do any thing, and suffer all the Wounds her Eyes can give.

Euph. Sure he is real.

[Aside.

Alas! I am discover'd; how came my Veil off?

[She pretends to recover, and wonder that her Veil is off.

Alon. That you have let me see that lovely Face,
May move your Pity, not your Anger, Madam;
Pity the Wounds it has made, pity the Slave,
Who till this Moment boasted of his Freedom.

Euph. May I believe all this? for that we easily do in things we wish.

Alon. Command me things impossible to all Sense but a Lover's, I will do't: to shew the Truth of this, I could even give you the last Proof of it, and take you at your Word, to marry you.

Euph. O wondrous Reformation! marry me!

[Laughs.

Alon. How, do you mock my Grief?

Euph. What a strange dissembling thing is Man! To put me off too, you were to be married.

Alon. Hah, I had forgot Hippolyta.

[He starts.

Euph. See Olinda, the Miracle increases, he can be serious too. How do you, Sir?

Alon. 'Tis you have robb'd me of my native Humour, I ne'er could think till now.

Euph. And to what purpose was it now?

Alon. Why, Love and Honour were at odds within me,

And I was making Peace between them.

Euph. How fell that out, Sir?

Alon. About a Pair of Beauties; Women,
That set the whole World at odds.

She that is Honour's Choice I never saw,

And Love has taught me new Obedience here.

Euph. What means he? I fear he is in earnest. [Aside.

Olin. 'Tis nothing but his Aversion to Marriage, which most young Men dread now-a-days.

Euph. I must have this Stranger, or I must die; for whatever Face I put upon't, I am far gone in Love, but I must hide it.

[Aside.

Well,

Well, since I have mist my Aim, you shall never boast me Death; I'll cast my self away upon the next handsome young Fellow I meet, tho I die for't; and so farewell to you, loving Sir. [Offers to go.]

Alon. Stay, do not marry, as you esteem the Life of him that shall possess you.

Euph. Sure you will not kill him.

Alon. By Heaven I will.

Euph. O I'll trust you, Sir: Farewel, farewell.

Alon. You shall not go in triumph thus, Unless you take me with you.

Euph. Well, since you are so resolv'd (and so in love) I'll give you leave to see me once more at a House at the Corner of St. Jerom's, where this Maid shall give you Entrance.

Alon. Why, that's generously said.

Euph. As soon as 'tis dark you may venture.

Alon. Till then will be an Age, farewell fair Saint, To thee and all my quiet till we meet. [Exeunt.]

A C T II. S C E N E I.

The Street.

Enter Marcel in a Cloak alone.

Mar. THE Night comes on, and offers me two Pleasures,

The least of which would make another blest;
Love and Revenge: but I, whilst I dispute
Which Happiness to chuse, neglect them both:
The greatest Bliss that Mankind can possess,
Persuades me this way, to my fair Clarinda:
But tyrannick Honour
Presents the Credit of my House before me,
And bids me first redeem its fading Glory,
By sacrificing that false Woman's Heart
That has undone his Fame.

But stay, Oh Conscience, when I look within,

And lay my Anger by, I find that Sin
 Which I would punish in Antonio's Soul,
 Lie nourish'd up in mine without Controul.
 To fair Clarinda such a Siege I lay,
 As did that Traitor to Hippolyta ;
 Only Hippolyta a Brother has,
Clarinda none to punish her Disgrace :
 And 'tis more Glory the defenc'd to win,
 Than 'tis to take unguarded Virtue in.
 I either must my shameful Love resign,
 Or my more brave and just Revenge decline.

Enter Alonzo dress'd, with Lovis. Marcel stays.

Alon. But to be thus in love, is't not a Wonder Louis ?

Lov. No, Sir, it had been much a greater, if you had stay'd a Night in Town without being so ; and I shall see this Wonder as often as you see a new Face of a pretty Woman.

Alon. I do not say that I shall lose all Passion for the fair Sex hereafter ; but on my Conscience, this amiable Stranger has given me a deeper Wound than ever I received from any before.

Lov. Well, you remember the Bargain.

Alon. What Bargain ?

Lov. To communicate ; you understand.

Alon. There's the Devil on't, she is not such a Prize :
 Oh were she not honest, Friend ! [Hugs him.]

Lov. Is it so to do ? What, you pretend to be a Lover, and she honest, now only to deprive me of my Part : remember this, Alonzo.

Mar. Did not I hear Alonzo nam'd ? [Aside.]

Alon. By all that's good I am in earnest, Friend ;
 Nay thy own Eyes shall convince thee
 Of the Power of hers.
 Her Veil fell off, and she appear'd to me,
 Like unexpected Day, from out a Cloud ;
 The lost benighted Traveller
 Sees not th' Approach of the next Morning Sun
 With more transported Joy,
 Than I this ravishing and unknown Beauty.

Lov. Hey day! What Stuff's here? Nay, now I see thou art quite gone indeed.

Alon. I fear it. Oh had she not been honest! What Joy, what Heaven of Joys she would distribute! With such a Face, and Shape, a Wit, and Mein—— But as she is, I know not what to do.

Lov. You cannot marry her.

Alon. I would not willingly, tho I think I'm free: For Pedro went to Marcel to tell him I was arriv'd, and would wait on him; but was treated more like a Spy, than a Messenger of Love: They sent no Answer back, which I tell you, Lovis, angers me: 'twas not the Entertainment I expected from my brave Friend Marcel. But now I am for the fair Stranger who by this expects me.

Mar. 'Tis Alonzo. Oh how he animates my Rage, and turns me over to Revenge, upon Hippolyta and her false Lover! [Aside.

Lov. Who's this that walks before us? [They go out.

Alon. No matter who.

Mar. I am follow'd. [They enter again.

Lov. See he stops. [Marcel looks back.

Alon. Let him do what he please, we will out-go him. [They go out.

Lov. This Man whoe'er he be still follows us.

Alon. I care not, nothing shall hinder my Design, I'll go tho I make my Passage thro his Heart.

[They enter at another Door, he follows.

Lov. See he advances, pray stand by a little.

[They stand by.

Mar. Sure there's some Trick in this, but I'll not fear it. This is the Street, and hereabout's the House.

[Looks about.
This must be it, if I can get admittance now. [Knocks.

Enter Olinda with a Light.

Olin. O, Sir, are you come? My Lady grew impatient. [They go in.

Mar. She takes me for some other: This is happy.

[Aside.

Alon. Gods! is not that the Maid that first conducted me to the fair thing that rob'd me of my Heart?

Lov.

Lov. I think it is.

Alon. She gives admittance to another Man.

All Women-kind are false, I'll in and tell her so.

[Offers to go.]

Lov. You are too rash, 'tis dangerous.

Alon. I do despise thy Counsel, let me go.

Lov. If you are resolv'd, I'll run the Hazard with you.

S C E N E II. They both go in, the Scene changes to a Chamber.

Enter from one side Olinda, lighting in Marcel muffled as before in his Cloke, from the other Antonio leading in Euphemia veil'd.

Mar. By Heavens 'tis she : Vile Strumpet !

[Throws off his Cloke, and snatches her from him.]

Euph. Alas, this is not he whom I expected.

Anto. Marcel ! I had rather have encounter'd my evil Angel than thee. [Draws.]

Mar. I do believe thee, base ungenerous Coward.

[Draws.]

[They fight, Marcel disarms Antonio, by wounding his Hand. Enter Alonzo, goes betwixt them, and with his Sword drawn opposes Marcel, who is going to kill Antonio ; Lovis follows him.]

Alon. Take Courage, Sir.

[To Antonio, who goes out mad.]

Mar. Prevented ! whoe'er thou be'st,

It was unjustly done,

To save his Life who merits Death, by a more shameful way.

But thank the Gods she still remains to meet

That Punishment that's due to her foul Lust.

[Offers to run at her, Alonzo goes between.]

Alon. 'Tis this way you must make your Passage then.

Mar. What art thou, that thus a second time Dar'st interpose between Revenge and me ?

Alon. 'Tis Marcel ! What can this mean ? [Aside.]

Doft not thou know me Friend ? look on me well.

Mar.

Mar. Alonzo here! Ah I shall die with Shame. [Aside.
As thou art my Friend, remove from that bad Woman,
Whose Sins deserve no sanctuary.

Euph. What can he mean? I dare not shew my Face.
[Aside.

Alon. I do believe this Woman is a false one,
But still she is a Woman, and a fair one:
I would not suffer thee to injure her,
Tho I believe she has undone thy quiet,
As she has lately mine.

Mar. Why dost thou know it then?
Stand by, I shall forget thou art my Friend else,
And thro thy Heart reach hers.

Alon. Nothing but Love could animate him thus,
He is my Rival. [Aside.

Marcel, I will not quit one inch of Ground;
Do what thou dar'st, for know I do adore her,
And thus am bound by Love to her Defence.

[Offers to fight Marcel, who retires in wonder.

Euph. Hold noble Stranger, hold.

Mar. Have you such Pity on your Lover there?

[Offers to kill her, Alonzo stays him.

Enter Hippolyta dress'd like a Curtezán: Sees Marcel.

Hip. Oh Gods, my Brother! in pity, Sir, defend me
From the just Rage of that incens'd Man.

[Runs behind Lovis, whilst Marcel stands gazing on both with wonder.

Lov. I know not the meaning of all this, but However I'll help the Lady in Distress.

Madam, you're safe, whilst I am your Protector.

[Leads her out.

Mar. I've lost the Power of striking where I ought,
Since my misguided Hand so lately err'd.

Oh Rage, dull senseless Rage, how blind and rude it makes us.

Pardon fair Creature my unruly Passion,
And only blame that Veil which hid that Face,
Whose Innocence and Beauty had disarm'd it:

I took you for the most perfidious Woman,
The falsest loosest thing.

Alon. How! are you a Stranger to her?

Mar. Yes I am. Have you forgiven me, Madam?

Euph. Sir, I have. [Marcel bows and offers to go out.]

Alon. Stay Friend, and let me know your Quarrel.

Mar. Not for the World, Alonzo.

Alon. This is unfriendly, Sir.

Mar. Thou dost delay me from the noblest Deed;
On which the Honour of my House depends,
A Deed which thou wilt curse thy self for hindring.
Farewel. [Goes out.]

Alon. What can the meaning of this be?

Euph. Oh do not ask, but let us quickly leave this dangerous Place.

Alon. Does it not belong to you?

Euph. No, but you would like me the better if it did:
for, Sir, it is a——

Alon. Upon my Life a Baudy-house.

Euph. So they call it.

Alon. You do amaze me.

Euph. Truth is, not daring to trust my Friends or Relations with a Secret that so nearly concern'd me, as the meeting you and hearing of a new come Curtezan living in this House, I sent her word I would make her a Visit, knowing she would gladly receive it from a Maid of my Quality: When I came, I told her my Business, and very frankly she offer'd me her House and Service—
Perhaps you'll like me the worse for this bold Venture, but when you consider my promis'd Husband is every day expected, you will think it but just to secure my self any way.

Alon. You could not give me a greater Proof than this of what you say, you bless me with your Love.

Euph. I will not question but you are in earnest; at least if any doubt remain, these will resolve it.

[Gives him a Letter.]

Alon. What are these, Madam?

Euph. Letters, Sir, intercepted from the Father of my design'd Husband out of Flanders to mine.

Alon.

Alon. What use can I make of them?

Euph. Only this: Put your self into an Equipage very ridiculous, and pretend you are my foolish Lover arriv'd from Flanders, call your self Haunce van Ezel, and give my Father these, as for the rest I'll trust your Wit.

Alon. What shall I say or do now? [Aside.]

Euph. Come, come, no study, Sir; this must be done, and quickly too, or you will lose me.

Alon. Two great Evils! if I had but the Grace to chuse the least now, that is, lose her. [Aside.]

Euph. I'll give you but to night to consider it.

Alon. Short warning this: but I am damnably in love, and cannot withstand Temptation. [Kisses her Hand.]

Euph. I had forgot to tell you my Name's Euphemia, my Father's you'll find on the Letters, and pray show your Love in your haste. Farewel.

Alon. Stay fair Euphemia, and let me pay my Thanks, and tell you that I must obey you.

Euph. I give a Credit where I give a Heart. Go inquire my Birth and Fortune: as for you, I am content with what I see about you.

Alon. That's bravely said, nor will I ask one Question about you, not only to return the Bounty, but to avoid all things that look like the Approaches to a married Life. If Fortune will put us together, let her e'en provide for us.

Euph. I must be gone: Farewel, and pray make haste. [Looks kindly on him.]

Alon. There's no resisting those Looks, Euphemia: One more to fortify me well; for I shall have need of every Aid in this Case. [Exeunt.]

S C E N E III.

Enter Antonio in haste with Hippolyta; weeping as passing over the Stage.

Ant. Come let us haste, I fear we are pursu'd.

Hip. Ah whither shall we fly?

Ant. We are near the Gate, and must secure our selves with the Darkness of the Night in St. Peter's Grove, we dare dare not venture into any House.

[Exeunt.

Enter Clarinda and Dormida above in the Balcony.

Clar. Can'st thou not see him yet?

Dorm. Good lack a-day, what an impatient thing is a young Girl in love!

Clar. Nay, good Dormida, let not want of Sleep make thee testy.

Dorm. In good time——are you my Governess, or I yours, that you are giving me Instructions? Go get you in, or I shall lay down my Office.

Clar. Nay, wait a little longer, I'm sure he will come.

Dorm. You sure! you have wondrous Skill indeed in the Humours of Men: how came you to be so well acquainted with them? you scarce ever saw any but Don Marcel, and him too but thro' a Grate or Window, or at Church; and yet you are sure. I am a little the elder of the two, and have manag'd as many Intrigues of this kind as any Woman, and never found a constant just Man, as they say, of a thousand; and yet you are sure.

Clar. Why, is it possible Marcel should be false?

Dorm. Marcel! No, no, Sweet-heart, he is that Man of a thousand.

Clar. But if he should, you have undone me, by telling me so many pretty things of him.

Dorm. Still you question my Ability, which by no means I can indure; get you in I say.

Clar. Do not speak so loud, you will wake my Mother.

Dorm. At your Instructions again; do you question my Conduct and Management of this Affair? Go watch for him your self: I'll have no more to do with you back nor edge.

[Offers to go.

Clar. Will you be so barbarous to leave me to my self, after having made it your Business this three Months to solicit a Heart which was but too ready to yield before; after having sworn to me how honourable all his Intents were; nay, made me write to him to come to night? And now when I have done this, and am all trembling with fear and shame (and yet an infinite Desire to see him too) [Sighs] thou wilt abandon me: go, when such as you oblige, 'tis but to be insolent with the more freedom.

Dorm. What, you are angry I'll warrant. [Smiles.

Clar. I will punish my self to pay thee back, and will not see Marcel.

Dorm. What a pettish Fool is a Maid in love at fifteen! how unmanageable! But I'll forgive all—go get you in, I'll watch for your Lover; I would not have you disoblige a Man of his Pretensions and Quality for all the World.

Enter Alonzo below.

Alon. Now do I want Lovis extremely, to consult with him about this Business: For I am afraid the Devil, or Love, or both are so great with me, that I must marry this fair Inchantress, which is very unlucky; but, since Ambrosio and Marcel refuse to see me, I hold my self no longer engag'd in Honour to Hippolyta.

Dorm. above.] Whist, whist, Sir, Sir.

Alon. Who's there?

Dor. 'Tis I, your Servant, Sir; oh you are a fine Spark, are you nor, to make so fair a Creature wait so long for you? there, there's the Key, open the Door softly and come in. [Throws him down a Key in a Handkerchief.

Alon. What's this? But I'd ask no Questions; so fair a Creature, said she? Now if 'twere to save my Life cannot I forbear, I must go in: Shou'd Euphemia know this, she would call it Levity and Inconstancy; but I plead Necessity, and will be judg'd by the amorous Men, and not the jealous Women: For certain this Lady, whoe'er she be, designs me a more speedy Favour than I can hope from Euphemia, and on easier Terms too. This is the Door that must conduct to the languishing Venus.

[Opens the Door and goes in, leaving it unshut.

Enter Marcel with his Sword drawn.

Mar. Thus far I have pursu'd the Fugitives,
Who by the help of hasty Fear and Night,
Are got beyond my Power; unlucky Accident!
Had I but kill'd Antonio, or Hippolyta,
Either had made my Shame supportable.
But tho I have mist the Pleasure of Revenge,

I will not that of Love.

One Look from fair Clarinda will appease

The Madness which this Disappointment rais'd.

[Walks looking towards the Window.]

None appears yet : Dormida was to throw me down the Key. The Door is open, left so to give me entrance.

[Goes to the Door.]

SCENE IV. Changes to a dark Hall.

Discovers Alonzo groping about in the Hall.

Alon. Now am I in a worse Condition than before, can neither advance nor retreat : I do not like this groping alone in the Dark thus. Whereabouts am I ? I dare not call : were this fair thing she spoke of but now half so impatient as I, she would bring a Light, and conduct me.

Enter Marcel.

Mar. 'Tis wondrous dark.

Alon. Hah, a Man's Voice that way ; that's not so well : it may be some Lover, Husband, or Brother ; none of which are to be trusted in this Case, therefore I'll stand upon my Guard.

[Draws : Marcel coming towards him jostles him.]

Mar. Who's there ?

Alon. A Man.

Mar. A Man ! none such inhabit here. [Draws.]
Thy Business ?

Alon. This shall answer you, since there's no other way.

[They fight, Alonzo wounds Marcel, who fights him to the Door ; Alonzo goes out, Marcel gropes to follow.]

Mar. This is not just, ye Gods, to punish me, and let the Traytor 'scape unknown too : Methought 'twas Silvio's Voice, or else a sudden thought of Jealousy come into my Head would make me think so.

Enter Clarinda and Dormida with Light.

Clar. I tell you I did hear the noise of fighting.

Dor. Why, between whom should it be ? I'll be sworn Marcel came in alone.

Clar.

Clar. Marcel! and wounded too! oh I'm lost.

[Sees him, weeps.]

Mar. Keep your false Tears to bathe your Lover's Wounds.

For I perhaps have given him some—— Thou old Assistant to her Lust, whose greatest Sin is wishing, tell me who 'twas thou didst procure for her.

[In rage to Dormida.]

Dorm. Alas! I cannot imagine who it should be, unless Don Silvio, who has sometimes made Addresses to her: But oh the House is up, Madam we are undone; let's fly for Heavens sake.

Clar. Oh Marcel, can you believe —— [A Noise.]

Dorm. Come, come, I'll not be undone for your Fiddle-faddles; I'll lay it all on you, if I be taken.

[Pulls out Clarinda.]

Mar. Sot that I was, I could not guess at this to day, by his Anger at the Letter I foolishly shew'd him; he is my Rival, and 'tis with him she's fled; and I'll endeavour to pursue them.

[Offers to go.]

But oh my Strength complies with their Design, and shamefully retires to give them leave to play their amorous Game out.

[Goes faintly out.]

SCENE V. Changes to the Street. Discovers Alonzo alone.

Alon. This Act of mine was rash and ill-natur'd, And I cannot leave the Street with a good Conscience, Till I know what mischief I have done.

Enter Dormida and Clarinda.

Hah, Ladies from the same House! these are Birds that I have frighted from their Nests I am sure: I'll proffer my Service to them.

Dorm. Why do not you make more haste?

Clar. How can she go, whose Life is left behind? Besides, I know not whither we should go.

Ye Powers that guard the Innocent, protect us.

Alon.

Alon. These must be some whom I have injur'd.
Ladies——you seem as in distress.

Dorm. Oh, Sir, as you are a Gentleman, assist a pair of Virgins.

Alon. What's this, a mumping Matron? I hope the other's young, or I have offer'd my Service to little purpose.

Clar. Sir, if you will have the Charity to assist us, Do it speedily, we shall be very grateful to you.

Alon. Madam, I will, but know not where to carry ye; my Lodging is in an Inn, and is neither safe nor honourable: but Fortune dares no less than protect the Fair, and I'll venture my Life in your Protection and Service.

[Exeunt.]

Enter Marcel faintly.

Mar. Stay Traitor, stay—oh they are out of sight, But may my Curse o'ertake them in their flight. [Exit.]

She is discover'd in her Night-Gown, at a Table, as undressing, Francisca by her.

Cleo. Francisca, thou art dull to Night. [Sighs.]

Fran. You will not give me leave to talk.

Cleo. Not thy way indeed, hast thou no Stories but of Love, and of my Brother Silvio?

Fran. None that you wish to hear: But I'll do what you please, so you will not oblige me to sigh for you.

Cleo. Then prithee sing to me.

Fran. What Song, a merry, or a sad?

Cleo. Please thy own Humour, for then thou'lt sing best.

Fran. Well, Madam, I'll obey you, and please myself.

S I N G S.

*Amyntas led me to a Grove,
Where all the Trees did shade us;
The Sun it self, tho it had strove,
Yet could not have betray'd us.*

*The place secure from human Eyes,
No other fear allows,
But when the Winds that gently rise
Do kiss the yielding Boughs.*

*Down there we sat upon the Moss,
And did begin to play
A thousand wanton Tricks, to pass
The Heat of all the Day.
A many Kisses he did give,
And I return'd the same :
Which made me willing to receive
That which I dare not name.*

*His charming Eyes no aid requir'd,
To tell their amorous Tale ;
On her that was already fir'd,
'Twas easy to prevail.
He did but kiss, and clasp me round,
Whilst they his thoughts exprest,
And laid me gently on the Ground ;
Oh ! who can guess the rest ?*

After the Song, enter Silvio all undrest, gazing wildly on Cleonte ; his Arm ty'd up.

Cleo. My Brother Silvio, at this late hour, and in my Lodgings too ! How do you, Sir ? are you not well ?

Silv. Oh, why did Nature give me being ?
Or why create me Brother to Cleonte ? [Aside.
Or give her Charms, and me the sense to adore 'em ?

Cleo. Dear Brother—— [Goes to him.

Silv. Ah Cleonte—— [Takes her by the Hand and gazes.

Cleo. What would you, Sir ?

Silv. I am not—— well——

Cleo. Sleep, Sir, will give you ease.

Silv. I cannot sleep, my Wounds do rage and burn so, as they put me past all power of rest.

Cleo. We'll call your Surgeon, Sir.

Silv. He can contribute nothing to my Cure,
But I must owe it all to thee, Cleonte.

Cleo.

Cleo. Instruct me in the way, give me your Arm,
And I will bathe it in a thousand Tears,

[Goes to untie his Arm.

And breathe so many Sighs into your Wound——

Silv. Let that slight hurt alone, and search this——here.

[To his Heart.

Cleo. How! are you wounded there,
And would not let us know it all this while?

Silv. I durst not tell you, but design'd to suffer,
Rather than trouble you with my Complaints;
But now my Pain is greater than my Courage.

Fran. Oh, he will tell her, that he loves her sure.

[Aside.

Cleo. Sit down and let me see'r.

[He sits down, she puts her Hand into his Bosom.

Fran. Oh foolish Innocence ——

[Aside.

Cleo. You have deceiv'd me Brother, here's no Wound.

Silv. Oh take away your Hand——

It does increase my Pain, and wounds me deeper.

Cleo. No, surely, Sir, my Hand is very gentle.

Silv. Therefore it hurts me Sister; the very thoughts
Of Touches by so soft and fair a Hand,
Playing about my Heart, are not to be indur'd with Life.

[Rises in passion.

Cleo. Alas, what means my Brother?

Silv. Can you not guess, fair Sister? have my Eyes
So ill express my Soul? or has your Innocence
Not suffer'd you to understand my Sighs?
Have then a thousand Tales, which I have told you,
Of broken Hearts, and Lovers Languishments,
Not serv'd to tell you, that I did adore you?

Cleo. Oh let me still remain in Innocence,
Rather than sin so much to understand you.

Fran. I can endure no more——

[Goes out.

Silv. Can you believe it Sin to love a Brother? it is not so in Nature.

Cleo. Not as a Brother, Sir; but otherwise,
It is, by all the Laws of Men and Heaven.

Silv. Sister, so 'tis that we should do no Murder,
And yet you daily kill, and I, among the number

The DUTCH LOVER. 215

Of your Victims, must charge you with the sin of killing me, a Lover, and a Brother.

Cleo. What wou'd you have me do ?

Silv. Why—I would have thee—do—I know not what—

Still to be with me—yet that will not satisfy ;
To let me look—upon thee—still that's not enough.
I dare not say to kiss thee, and imbrace thee ;

That were to make me wish—I dare not tell thee what—

Cleo. I must not hear this Language from a Brother.

[She offers to go.]

Silv. What a vile thing's a Brother ?

Stay, take this Dagger, and add one Wound more

[He kneels and offers a Dagger, and holds her by the Coat.]

To those your Eyes have given, and after that You'll find no trouble from my Sighs and Tears.

—Enter Francisca.

Fran. By this she understands him, curse on her Innocence,

'Tis fuel to his flame—[Aside.] Madam, there is below a Lady, who desires to speak with the Mistress of the House.

Cleo. At this hour a Lady ! who can it be ?

Fran. I know not, but she seems of Quality.

Cleo. Is she alone ?

Fran. Attended by a Gentleman and an old Woman.

Cleo. Perhaps some one that needs a kind Assistance ; my Father is in Bed, and I'll venture to know their Business ; bring her up.

Fran. 'Twere good you should retire, Sir.

[To Silvio, and Exit.]

Silv. I will, but have a care of me, Cleonte,

I fear I shall grow mad, and so undo thee :

Love me—but do not let me know't too much.

[Goes out.]

Enter Francisca with Lights ; follow'd by Alonzo, Clarinda, and Dormida : Alonzo gazes on Cleonte a while.

Cleo. Is't me you would command ?

Clar. I know not what to say, I am so disorder'd.
[Aside.]

Alon. What Troops of Beauties she has! sufficient to take whole Cities in——Madam, I beg——

[Takes Clarinda by the Hand, and approaches Cleonte.]

Cleo. What, Sir?

Alon. That you would receive into Protection——

Cleo. What pray, Sir?

Alon. Would you would give me leave to say, a Heart that your fair Eyes have lately made unfit for his old Quarters.

Cleo. I rather think you mean this Lady, Sir.

[Alonzo looks with wonder on Clarinda.]

Alon. She's heavenly fair too, and has surpriz'd my Heart, just as 'twas going to the other's Bosom, and rob'd her at least of one half of it.
[Aside.]

Clar. Madam, I am a Virgin in distress,
And by misfortune forc'd to seek a Sanctuary,
And humbly beg it here.

Cleo. Intreaties were not made for that fair Mouth
Command and be obey'd.

But, Sir, to whom do you belong?

Alon. I belong to a very fair Person,
But do not know her Name.

Cleo. But what are you, pray, Sir?

Alon. Madam, a Wanderer; a poor lost thing, that none will own or pity.

Cleo. That's sad indeed; but whoe'er you are, since you belong to this fair Maid, you'll find a Welcome every where.

Alon. And if I do not, I am cashier'd.
Madam, if telling you I am her Brother,
Can make me more acceptable,
I shall be yet more proud of the Alliance.
[Aside.]

Cleo. What must I call your Sister, Sir, when I would pay my Duty?

Alon. There I am routed again with another hard Question.
[Aside.]

Clar. Madam, my Name's Clarinda.

Alon. Madam, I'll take my leave, and with the Heart I leave with you to night, may persuade you to suffer my Visits to morrow, till when I shall do nothing but languish.

Cleo. I know not what loss you have suffer'd to night; but since your fair Sister's Presence with us allows it, you need not doubt a welcome.

Alon. I humbly thank you, Madam.

[Kisses her Hand, and looks amorously on Clarinda.]

Fran. Madam, pray retire, for Don Marcel is come into the House all bloody, inrag'd against somebody.

Clar. I'm troubled at his Hurt, but cannot fear his Rage. Good night, Sir. [They go out.]

Alon. They are gone; now had I as much mind to have kist the other's Hand, but that 'twas not a Ceremony due to a Sister—What the Devil came into my Head, to say she was so? nothing but the natural itch of talking and lying: they are very fair; but what's that to me? Euphemia surpasses both: But a Pox on her terms of Marriage, I'll set that to her Beauty, and then these get the Day, as far as natural Necessity goes: But I'll home and sleep upon't, and yield to what's most powerful in the Morning.

To night these Strangers do my Heart possess,
But which the greatest share, I cannot guess:
My Fate in Love resembles that in War,
When the rich Spoil falls to the common share. [Goes out.]

SCENE VII. The Street.

Enter Alonzo, as out of the House, gazing upon it.

Alon. Sure I shall know this House again to morrow.

[To him Lovis.]

Lov. I wonder what should be become of Alonzo, I do not like these Night-works of his—Who's there?

Alon. Lovis!

Lov. Alonzo?

Alon. The same, where hast thou been?

Lov. In search of you this two Hours.

Alon. O, I have been taken up with new Adventures, since I saw thee; but prithee what became of thine? for methought it was a likely Woman.

Lov. Faith, Sir, I thought I had got a Prize; but a Pox on't, when I came into the Street, e'er she had recover'd Breath to tell me who she was, the Cavalier you rescu'd from Marcel, laid claim to her; thank'd me for her Preservation, and vanisht. I hope you had better luck with your Female, whose Face I had not the good fortune to see.

Alon. Not so good as I could have wish't, for she stands still on her honourable terms.

Lov. Of Mattrimony, ha, ha, a very Jilt, I'll warrant her; Come, come, you shall see her no more.

Alon. Faith, I fear I must.

Lov. To what purpose?

Alon. To persuade her to Reason.

Lov. That you'll soon do, when she finds you will not bite at t'other Bait.

Alon. The worst is, if I see her again, it must be at her Father's House; and so transform'd from Man to Beast—I must appear like a ridiculous Lover she expects out of Flanders.

Lov. A very Cheat, a trick to draw thee in: be wise in time.

Alon. No, on my Conscience she's in earnest, she told me her Name, and his I am to represent.

Lov. What is't I pray?

Alon. Hance van Ezel.

Lov. Hah! her Name too, I beseech you?

Alon. Euphemia: and such a Creature 'tis—[Impatiently.]

Lov. 'Sdeath, my Sister all this while: This has call'd up all that's Spaniard in me, and makes me raging mad.

[Aside.] But do you love her, Sir?

Alon. Most desperately, beyond all Sense or Reason.

Lov. And could you be content to marry her?

Alon. Any thing but that—But thou know'st my engagement elsewhere; and I have hopes that yet she'll be wife, and yield on more pleasant terms.

Lov.

Lov. I could be angry now; but 'twere unreasonable to blame him for this. [Aside.] Sir, I believe by your Treatment from Ambrosio and Marcel, you may come off there easily.

Alon. That will not satisfy my Honour, tho' 'twill my Love; that I have not Hippolyta, I will owe to my own Inconstancy, not theirs: besides, this may be a Cheat, as you say.

Lov. But does Euphemia love you?

Alon. Faith, I think she has too much Wit to dissemble, and too much Beauty to need that Art.

Lov. Then you must marry her.

Alon. Not if I can avoid it.

Lov. I know this Lady, Sir, and know her to be worth your Love: I have it in my Power too, to serve you, if you proceed suddenly, which you must do, or lose her; for this Flandrian Boor your Rival is already arriv'd, and designs to morrow to make his first Address to Euphemia.

Alon. Oh he must not, shall not see her.

Lov. How will you hinder him?

Alon. With this. [To his sword.] Where is this Rival? tell me: Conduct me to him strait, I find my Love above the common rate, and cannot brook this Rival.

Lov. So, this blows the flame— His Life will be no hindrance to you in this Affair, if you design to love on.

Alon. Do'st know him?

Lov. Yes, he is a pleasant Original for you to be copy'd by: It is the same Fop, I told you was to marry my Sister, and who came along with me to Madrid.

Alon. How! Euphemia thy Sister?

Lov. Yes, indeed is she, and whom my Father designs to cast away upon this half Man, half Fool; but I find she has Wit to make a better Choice: she yet knows nothing of my Arrival, and till you resolve what to do, shall not; and my Dutchman does nothing without me.

Alon. If thou hast the management of him, he's likely to thrive.

Lov. But not in his Amour, if you please: In short, Sir, if you do really love my Sister, I am content to be so ungracious a Child to contribute to the cheating my Father of this same hopeful Son he expects, and put you upon him; but what you do, must be speedily then.

Alon. I am oblig'd to thee for this frank Offer, and will be instructed by thee.

Lov. If you're resolv'd, I'll warrant you Success.

Alon. I think I am resolv'd in spite of all my Inclinations to Libertinism.

Lov. Well, Sir, I'll get you such a Suit then, as that our Hero makes his first approach in, as ridiculously gay as his Humour, which you must assume too.

Alon. Content.

Lov. To night I must pay my Duty to my Father, and will prepare your way, and acquaint my Sister with it; 'tis but a Frolick if we succeed not.

Alon. God-a-mercy Lad, let's about it then e'er we sleep, lest I change my Resolution before Morning.

[Exeunt.]

A C T III. S C E N E I.

House of Carlo.

Enter Alonzo dress'd ridiculously, meeting Lovis, they laugh at each other.

Lov. VERY Haunce all over, the Taylor has play'd his part, play but yours as well, and I'll warrant you the Wench.

Alon. But prithee, why need I act the Fool thus, since Haunce was never seen here?

Lov. To make good the Character I always gave of him to my Father; but here he comes, pray be very rude, and very impertinent.

Alon. Lord, Lord, how shall I look thus damnably set out, and thus in love!

Enter Don Carlo.

Lov. This, Sir, is Monsieur Haunce, your Son that must be.

Alon.

Alon. Beso los manos signor : Is your Name Don Carlo ? and are you the Gravity of this House ? and the Father of Donna Euphemia ? and are you——

Car. Sir, I guess by all these your Demands at once, your Name to be Myn heer Haunce van Ezel.

Alon. Your Judgment's good ; but to my Questions.

Car. In truth I have forgot them, there were so many.

Alon. Are you he who is to be my Father ?

Car. 'Tis so negotiated——and if all Circumstances concur——For, Sir, you must conceive, the Consequence of so grand a Conjunction—— Alon. Less of your Compliments, Sir, and more of your Daughter, I beseech you. 'Sheart, what a formal Coxcomb 'tis.

[Aside.

Lov. Priihee give him way.

[Aside.

Alon. By this Light I'll lose thy Sister first ; Why, who can indure the grave approaches to the Matter ; 'Dlife, I would have it as I would my Fate, sudden and unexpected.

Car. Pray, how long have you been landed ?

Alon. So, now shall I be plagu'd with nothing but wise Questions, to which I am able to make no Answer. [Aside.] Sir, it is your Daughter that I desire to see impatiently.

Car. Have you no Letters from my very good Friend your Father ?

Alon. What if I have not ? cannot I be admitted to your Daughter without a Pass ?

Car. O lack, Sir——

Alon. But to let you see I come with full Power, (tho I am old enough to recommend my self) here is my Commission for what I do.

[Gives him Letters.

Car. I remember amongst his other Faults, my Son writ me word he had Courage : If so, I shall consider what to do. [Reads.] Sir, I find by these your Father's Letters, you are not yet arriv'd.

Alon. I know that, Sir, but I was told I should express my Love in my haste ; therefore outfailing the Pacquet, I was the welcome Messenger my self ; and since I am so forward, I beseech you, Sir—— [Carlo coming to imbrace him.

Now dare not I proceed, he has so credulous a consenting Face. [Aside.]

Car. Spare your Words, I understand their meaning; a prudent Man speaks least, as the Spaniard has it; and since you are so forward, as you were saying, I shall not be backward; but as your Father adviseth here, hasten the uniting of our Families, with all celerity; for delay in these Affairs is but to prolong time, as the wise Man says.

Alon. You are much in the right, Sir. But my Wife, I desire to be better acquainted with her.

Car. She shall be forth-coming, Sir. Had you a good Passage? for the Seas and Winds regard no Man's necessity.

Alon. No, no, a very ill one; your Daughter, Sir.

Car. Pray, how long were you at Sea?

Alon. Euphemia, Sir, Euphemia, your Daughter. This Don's fuller of Questions than of Proverbs, and that's a Wonder. [Aside.]

Car. They say Flanders is a very fine Country, I never saw it; but——

Alon. Nor 'tis no matter, Sir, if you never do, so I saw your Daughter. He'll catechize me home to my Dutch Parents by and by, of which I can give him no more account than—— [Aside.]

Car. Are they as dissatisfied with their new Governour, as they were with Don John? for they love change.

Alon. A Fox of their Government, I tell you I love your Daughter.

Car. I fear 'tis so, he's valiant; and what a dangerous Quality is that in Spain! 'tis well he's rich. [Aside.]

Lov. Pray, Sir, keep him not long in Discourse, the Sea has made him unfit for—— Alon. Any thing but seeing my Mistress.

Lov. I'll have mercy upon thee, and fetch her to thee. [Ex. Lovis.]

Car. Sir, you must know, that we suffer not our Women in Spain to converse so frequently with your Sex, and that thro' a cautious——well consider'd prudent—— Consideration.

Alon.

Alon. But, Sir, do you consider what an impatient thing a young Lover is? Or is it so long since you were one your self, you have forgot it? 'Tis well he wanted Words. [Enter Euphemia and Lovis.] But yonder's Euphemia, whose Beauty is sufficient to excuse every Defect in the whole Family, tho' each were a mortal sin; and now 'tis impossible to guard my self longer from those fair Eyes. [Aside.]

Car. I must not urge him to speak much before Euphemia, lest she discover he wants Wit by his much Tongue: [Aside.]

There's my Daughter, Sir, go and salute her.

Alon. Oh, I thank you for that, Sir.

[He stands ridiculously looking on her.]

Car. You must be bold, Sir.

Alon. Well, Sir, since you command me——

[Goes rudely to kiss her.]

Car. I did not mean kissing by saluting.

Alon. I cry your Mercy, Sir, so I understood you.

Car. Fie upon't, that he should be no more a Master of Civility.

Lov. I fear, Sir, my Sister will never like this Humour in her Lover; he wants common Conversation.

Car. Conversation——ye foolish Boy, he has Money, and needs none of your Conversation. And yet if I thought he were valiant——[This while Alonzo and Euphemia make signs of Love with their Eyes.]

Lov. I hope, Sir, he does not boast of more of that than he really has.

Car. That Fault I my self have been guilty of, and can excuse; but the thing it self I shall never endure: you know I was forc'd to send you abroad, because I thought you addicted to that. I shall never sleep in quiet——Valiant! that's such a thing, to be Rich, or Wise and Valiant. [Goes to Euphemia.]

Lov. Colonel, pray to the business, for I fear you will betray your self.

Car. But look upon his Wealth, Euphemia, and you will find those Advantages there which are wanting in his Person; but I think the Man's well.

Euph. I must not seem to yield too soon. [Aside.]
 Sir, there be many Spaniards born that are as rich as he,
 and have Wit too.

Car. She was ever very averse to this Marriage. [Aside.]
 This Man is half a Spaniard, his Mother was one, and my first Mistress, and she I can tell you, was a great Fortune————

Euph. I, Sir, but he is but a Fool————

Car. You are a worse, to find fault with that in a Husband.

Alon. Stand aside, Sir, are you to court your Daughter or I?

Car. I was inclining her——

Alon. You inclining her! an old Man wants Rhetorrick; set me to her. [Goes to Euphemia.]

Car. This capricious Humour was tolerable in him, whilst I believ'd it the Effects of Folly, but now 'tis that of Valour: Oh I tremble at the Sight of him.

Euph. Now I see you are a Cavalier of your Word.

Alon. Faith Euphemia, you might have believ'd, and taken me upon better Terms, if you had so pleas'd: To marry you is but an ill-favour'd Proof to give you of my Passion.

Euph. Do you repent it?

Alon. Would to God 'twere come but to that, I was just upon the Point of it when you enter'd. But I know not what the Devil there is in that Face of yours, but it has debauch'd every sober Thought about me: Faith, do not let us marry yet.

Euph. If we had not proceeded too far to retreat, I should be content.

Alon. What shall I come to? all on the sudden to leave delicious whoring, drinking and fighting, and be condemn'd to a dull honest Wife. Well, if it be my ill Fortune, may this Curse light on thee that has brought me to't: may I love thee even after we are married to that troublesome Degree, that I may grow most damnable jealous of thee, and keep thee from the Sight of all Mankind, but thy own natural Husband, that so thou may'st be depriv'd of the greatest Pleasure of this Life, the Blessing of Change.

Euph.

Euph. I am sorry to find so much ill Nature in you ; would you have the Conscience to tie me to harder Conditions than I would you ?

Alon. Nay, I do not think I shall be so wickedly loving ; but I am resolv'd to marry thee and try.

Euph. My Father, Sir, on with your Disguise.

[To them Carlo-

Car. Well, Sir, how do you like my Daughter ?

Alon. So, so, she'll serve for a Wife.

Car. But do you not find her willing to be so ?

Alon. 'Tis not a half-penny matter for that, as long as my Father and you are agreed upon the matter.

Car. Well Euphemia, setting all foolish Modesty aside, how do you like this Man ?

Euph. As one, whom in Obedience to you, I am content to cast my self away upon.

Car. How seems his Humour to you ?

Euph. Indifferent, Sir, he is not very courtly, something rough and hasty.

Car. I fear she has found his ill Quality of Valour too ; and since 'tis certain so, why should it be said that I ruin'd a Child to satisfy my Appetite of Riches ? [Aside. Come Daughter, can you love him, or can you not ? For I'll make but short Work on't ; you are my Daughter, and have a Fortune great enough to enrich any Man ; and I'm resolv'd to put no Force upon your Inclinations.

Euph. How's this ! nay, then 'tis time I left dissembling. [Aside.] Sir, this Bounty in you has strangely overcome me, and makes me ashamed to have withstood your Will so long.

Car. Do not dissemble with me, I say do not ; for I am resolv'd you shall be happy.

Euph. Sir, my Obedience shall——

Car. No more of your Obedience ; I say again, do not dissemble, for I'm not pleas'd with your Obedience.

Euph. This Alteration is very strange and sudden ; pray Heaven he have not found the Cheat. [Aside.

Love, Sir, they say will come after Marriage ; pray let me try it.

Car. Few have found it so; nor shall you experience it at so dear a Rate as your Ruin.

Euph. But, Sir, methinks I am grown to love him more since he spoke to me, than before.

Car. The Effects of your Obedience again.

Euph. This is a strange Alteration, Sir; not all my Tears and Prayers before I saw him, could prevail with you. I beseech you, Sir, believe me.

Car. Nor should now, had I not another Reason for't.

Euph. Oh, I fear——But, Sir——

Car. Go to, I'll be better satisfy'd e'er I proceed farther——both of your Inclinations, and his Courage.

[Aside.

Euph. Do you consider his Wealth, Sir?

Car. That shall not now befriend him.

Alon. Sir, I bar whispering; 'tis not in my Bargain, nor civil: I'll have fair Play for my Money.

Car. I am only knowing my Daughter's Pleasure; she is a little peevish, as Virgins use in such Cases; but wou'd that were all, and I'd endeavour to reconcile her.

Alon. I thank you, Sir; in the mean time I'll take a Walk for an Hour or two, to get me a better Stomach both to my Dinner and Mistress.

Car. Do so, Sir. Come Euphemia, I will give you a Proof of my Indulgence, thou shalt marry no valiant Fools! valiant quoth ye. Come, come——had he been peaceable and rich——Come, come—— [Ex. with Euphemia.

Lov. Well, now I'll go look after my Dutchman, lest he surprizes us here, which must not be; where shall I find you?

Alon. I'll wait upon my Prince, and then on you here.

Lov. Do so, and carry on this Humour. Adieu.

SCENE II. A flat Grove.

Enter Haunce in a fantastical travelling Habit, with a Bottle of Brandy in his Hand, as sick: Gload marches after.

Hau. Ah, ah, a pox of all Sea-Voyages. [Drinks.
Here Gload, take thee t'other Sope, and then let's home.
[Gload drinks.

Ah, ah, a pox of Sea-Voyages.

Gload. Sir, if I may advise, take t'other turn in the Grove, for I find by my Nose you want more airing.

Hau. How Sirrah! by your Nose? have a care, you know 'tis ill jesting with me when I'm angry.

Gload. Which is as often as you are drunk; I find it has the same Effects on me too: but truly, Sir, I meant no other than that you smell a little of the Vessel, a certain sour remains of a Storm about you.

Hau. Ah, ah, do not name a Storm to me, unless thou wilt have the Effects on't in thy Face. [Drinks.

Gload. Sha, sha, bear up, Sir, bear up.

Hau. Salerimente, a Sea-pharse too! Why ye Rascal, I tell you I can indure nothing that puts me in mind of that Element. [Drinks.

Gload. The Sight of Donna Euphemia will—— [Gload drinks between whiles too.

Hau. Hold, hold, let me consider whether I can indure to hear her nam'd or not; for I think I am so thoroughly mortify'd, I shall hardly relish Woman-kind again this——two Hours. [Drinks.

Gload. You a Man of Courage, and talk thus!

Hau. Courage! Why what dost thou call Courage?—Hector himself would not have chang'd his ten Years Siege for our ten Days Storm at Sea——a Storm——a hundred thousand fighting Men are nothing to't; Cities sackt by Fire nothing: 'tis a resistless Coward that attacks a Man at disadvantage; an unaccountable Magick, that first conjures down a Man's Courage, and then plays the Devil over him. And in fine, it is a Storm——

Gload.

Gload. Good lack that it should be all these terrible things, and yet that we should out-brave it.

Hau. No god-a-mercy to our Courage tho, I tell you that now Gload; but like an angry Wench, when it had hufft and bluster'd it felt weary, it lay still again.

[Drinks.]

Gload. Hold, hold, Sir, you know we are to make Visits to Ladies, Sir; and this replenishing of our Spirits, as you call it Sir, may put us out of Case.

Hau. Thou art a Fool, I never made love so well as when I was drunk; it improves my Parts, and makes me witty; that is, it makes me say any thing that comes next, which passes now-a-days for Wit: and when I am very drunk, I'll home and dress me, and the Devil's in't if she resist me so qualify'd and so dress'd.

Gload. Truly, Sir, those are things that do not properly belong to you.

Hau. Your Reason, your Reason; we shall have thee witty too in thy Drink, hah!

[Laughs.]

Gload. Why, I say, Sir, none but a Cavalier ought to be soundly drunk, or wear a Sword and Feather; and a Cloke and Band were fitter for a Merchant.

Hau. Saterimente, I'll beat any Don in Spain that does but think he has more right to any sort of Debauchery, or Gallantry than I, I tell you that now Gload.

Gload. Do you remember, Sir, how you were wont to go at home? when instead of a Periwig, you wore a flink, greasy Hair of your own, thro which a pair of large thin Soufes appear'd, to support a formal Hat, on end thus——

[Imitates him.]

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, the Rogue improves upon't.

[Gives him Brandy.]

Gload. A Collar instead of a Cravat twelve inches high; with a blue, stiff, starch'd lawn Band, set in print like your Whiskers; a Doublet with small Skirts hookt to a pair of wide-kneed Breeches, which dangled half way over Leg, all to be dash'd and dirty'd as high as the gartering.

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, very well, proceed.

[Drinks.]

Gload.

Glad. Your Hands, defil'd with counting of damn'd dirty Money, never made other use of Gloves, than continually to draw them thro'——thus——till they were dwindled into the scantling of a Cats-gut.

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, a pleasant Rascal. [Drinks.

Glad. A Cloke, half a yard shorter than the Breeches, not thorow lin'd, but fac'd as far as 'twas turn'd back, with a pair of frugal Butter-hams, which was always manag'd——thus——

Hau. Well, Sir, have you done, that I may show you this Merchant revers'd?

Glad. Presently, Sir; only a little touch at your Debauchery, which unless it be in damn'd Brandy, you dare not go to the Expence of. Perhaps at a Wedding, or some Treat where your Purse is not concern'd, you would most insatiably tittle; otherwise your two Stivers-Club is the highest you dare go, where you will be condemn'd for a Prodigal, (even by your own Conscience) if you add two more extraordinary to the Sum, and at home sit in the Chimney-corner, cursing the Face of Duke de Alba upon the Jugs, for laying an Imposition on Beer: And now, Sir, I have done.

Hau. And dost thou not know, when one of those thou hast described, goes but half a League out of Town, that he is so transform'd from the Merchant to the Gallant in all Points, that his own Parents, nay the Devil himself cannot know him? Not a young English Squire newly come to an Estate, above the management of his Wit, has better Horses, gayer Clothes, swears, drinks, and does every thing with a better grace than he; damns the stingy Cabal of the two Stiver-Club, and puts the young King of Spain and his Mistress together in a Rummer of a Pottle; and in pure Gallantry breaks the Glasses over his Head, scorning to drink twice in the same; and a thousand things full as heroick and brave I cou'd tell you of this same Holy-day Squire. But come, t'other turn, and t'other sope, and then for Donna Euphemia. For I find I begin to be reconcil'd to the Sex.

Glad. But, Sir, if I might advise, let's e'en sleep first.

Hau. Away you Fool, I hate the sober Spanish way of making Love, that's unattended with Wine and Musick; give me a Wench that will out-drink the Dutch, out-dance the French, and out———out———kiss the English.

Gload. Sir, that's the Fashion in Spain.

Hau. Hang the Fashion; I manage her that must be my Wife, as I please, or I'll beat her into Fashion.

Gload. What, beat a Woman, Sir?

Hau. Sha, all's one for that; if I am provok'd, Anger will have its Effects on whomsoe'er it light; so said Van Trump, when he took his Mistress a Cuff o'th' Ear, for finding fault with an ill-fashion'd Leg he made her: I lik'd his Humour well, therefore come thy ways.

[Exeunt.]

S C E N E III. Discovers Antonio sleeping on the Ground; Hippolyta sitting by, who sings.

*Ah false Amyntas, can that Hour
So soon forgotten be,
When first I yielded up my Power
To be betray'd by thee?
God knows with how much Innocence
I did my Heart resign
Unto thy faithless Eloquence,
And gave thee what was mine.*

*I had not one Reserve in store,
But at thy Feet I laid
Those Arms which conquer'd heretofore,
Tho now thy Trophies made.
Thy Eyes in silence told their Tale
Of Love in such a way,
That 'twas as easy to prevail,
As after to betray.*

[She comes forth, weeps.]

Hip. My Grief 's too great to be diverted this way.

Pointing

[Pointing to Antonio.

Why should this Villain sleep, this treacherous Man—
Who has for ever robb'd me of my rest?

Had I but kept my Innocence intire,
I had out-brav'd my Fate, and broke my Chains,
Which now I bear like a poor guilty Slave,
Who sadly crys, If I were free from these,
I am not from my Crimes; so still lives on,
And drags his loathed Fetters after him.

Why should I fear to die, or murder him?
It is but adding one Sin more to th' number.

This—would soon do't—but where's the Hand to guide it? [Draws a Dagger, sighs.

For 'tis an act too horrid for a Woman. [Turns away.
But yet thus sleeping I might take that Soul, [Turns to him.
Which waking all the Charms of Art and Nature
Had not the Power t'effect.

Oh were I brave, I could remember that,
And this way be the Mistress of his Heart.
But mine forbids it should be that way won;
No, I must still love on, in spite of me,
And wake him quickly, lest one Moment's thought
Upon my Shame should urge me to undo him.

Antonio, Antonio. [He wakes, rises, and looks amazed-ly to see the Dagger in her Hand.

Ant. Vile Woman, why that Dagger in thy Hand?

Hip. To've kill'd thee with,

But that my Love o'ercame my juster Passion,
And put it in thy Power to save thy self;
Thank that, and not my Reason for thy Life.

Ant. She's doubly arm'd, with that and Injury,
And I am wounded and defenceless. [Aside.

Hippolyta, why all this Rage to me? [Kindly smiles.

Hip. Antonio, thou art perjur'd, false and base.

[In great Rage.

Ant. What said my fairest Mistress?

[Goes to her looking softly.

Hip. I said that thou wert perjur'd, false and base.

[Less in Rage.

Ant. My dear Hippolyta, speak it again,

I do not understand thee. [Takes her by the Hand.]

Hip. I said that thou wert perjur'd, my Antonio.

[Sighs.]

Ant. Thou wert to blame, but 'twas thy Jealousy,
Which being a Fault of Love I will excuse.

Give me that Mark of Anger, prithee do,
It misbecomes thy Hand.

Hip. I've nothing left but this I can command,
And do not ravish this too.

Ant. It is unkind thus to suspect my Love;
Will you make no Allowance for my Humour?
I am by Nature rough, and cannot please,
With Eyes and Words all soft as others can,
But I can love as truly my blunt way.

Hip. You were so soft when first you conquer'd me,

[Sighs.]

That but the Thoughts of that dear Face and Eyes,
So manag'd, and so set for Conquest out,
Would make me kind even to another Man;
Could I but thus imbrace and hide my Eyes,
And call him my Antonio.

[She leans on his Bosom, he the while gets her Dagger.]

Ant. Stand off false Woman, I despise thy Love,
Of which to every Man I know thou deal'st
An equal share.

Hip. I do not wonder that I am deceiv'd,
But that I should believe thee, after all thy Treachery.
But prithee tell me why thou treat'st me thus?
Why didst thou with the sacred Vows of Marriage,
After a long and tedious Courtship to me,
Ravish me from my Parents and my Husband?
For so the brave Alonzo was by promise.

Ant. Why I will tell thee; 'twas not love to thee,
But hatred to thy Brother Don Marcel,
Who made Addresses to the fair Clarinda,
And by his Quality destroy'd my Hopes.

Hip. And durst you not revenge your self on him?

Ant. His Life alone could not appease my Anger;
And after studying what I had to do——

Hip. The Devil taught thee this.

Ant.

Ant. Yes, and you I chose,
Because you were contracted to Alonzo,
That the Disgrace might be more eminent.

Hip. I do believe thee, for when I reflect
On all thy Usage since thou hast betray'd me,
I find thou hast not paid me back one Sigh,
Or Smile for all that I have given thee.

Ant. Hear me out.

Hip. Most calmly.

Ant. From Town to Town you know I did remove you,
Under pretence to shun your Brother's Anger:
But 'twas indeed to spread your Fame abroad.
But being not satisfy'd till in Madrid,
Here in your native Town, I had proclaim'd you;
The House from whence your Brother's Fury chas'd us,
Was a Bordello, where 'twas given out
Thou wert a Venice Curtezan to hire,
Whilst you believ'd it was your nuptial Palace. [Laughs.]

Hip. Dost think I did not understand the Plot?
Yes, and was mad till some young Lovers came.
But you had set a Price too high upon me,
No brisk young Man durst venture,
I had expos'd my self at cheaper Rates.

Ant. Your Price, I pray, young Sinner?

[Pulls off his Hat in scorn.]

Hip. Thy Life; he that durst say Antonio lives no more,
Should have possess'd me gratis.

Ant. I would have taken care none should have don't;
To show, and offer you to Sale, was equally as shameful.

Hip. Well, what hast thou more to do? this is no Place to inhabit in, nor shalt thou force me further;
And back into the Town thou dar'st not go.

Ant. Perhaps I had been kinde to you,
Had you continu'd still to give me that —
Might have begot a Passion in me.

Hip. I have too much Repentance for that Sin,
To increase it, at the Price of being belov'd by thee.

Ant. Consider what you do, this Place is silent,
And far from any thing that may assist you.
Come lead me to the Covert of this Grove. [Takes her rudely.
Enter

Enter Haunce and Gload drunk ; Haunce seeing them, offers to go out again.

Glo. Hold, hold, Sir, why do you run away ?

Hau. Thou Fool, dost not see the Reason ?

Glo. I see a Man and a Lady, Sir.

Hau. Why, you Coxcomb, they are Lovers ;
Or some that are going to do the deed of Love.

Ant. How ! Men here ? Your Business.

Hau. Prithee Friend, do not trouble your self with ours, but follow your own ; my Man is a little saucy in his Drink indeed, but I am sober enough to understand how things go.

Ant. Leave us then.

Hau. Leave us then——good Words, good Words,
Friend ; for look ye, I am in a notable Humour at present, and will be intreated.

Glo. Yes, Sir, we will be intreated.

Ant. Pray leave us then.

Hau. That's something——but hark ye Friend, say a Man had a mind to put in for a share with you.

Ant. Rude Slaves, leave us.

Hau. Ha, Slaves !

Glo. Slaves said you, Sir ? hah——

Hip. Oh, as you're a Gentleman assist me. [To Haunce.]

Hau. Assist thee ? this Fellow looks as he would not have his Abilities call'd in question ; otherwise I am amorous enough to do thee a kindness.

[Offers still to go, she holds him.]

Hip. Sir, you mistake me ; this is a Ravisher——

Hau. A Ravisher ! ha, ha, ha, dost like him the worse for tha ? No, no, I beg your Pardon, Madam.

Hip. Have you no Manhood, Sir ?

Glo. She is in earnest ; now if I durst stay, how I would domineer over my Master ; I never try'd perhaps,
I may be valiant thus inspir'd. Lady, I am your Champion, who dares ravish you, or me either ?

Ant. Rascal, unhand her.

[He comes up to them, Gload puts the Lady before him.]

Hau. How now, Gload ingag'd ! nay, I scorn to be out-done by my Man. Sirrah, march off with the Baggage, whilst I secure the Enemy.

Ant.

Ant. Rash Man, what mean you?

Hau. I say, stand off, and let him go quietly away with the Wench, or look you——

Ant. Unmanner'd Fool, I will chastise thy Boldness.

[Goes up to him with his Dagger.

Hau. How, how, hast thou no other Weapon?

Ant. No, if I had, thou durst not have encounter'd me.

Hau. I scorn thy Words, and therefore there lies my Sword; and since you dare me at my own Weapon, I tell you I am good at Snick-a-Sne as the best Don of you all—— [Draws a great Dutch Knife.

Ant. Can I endure this Affront?

Glo. The best way to make a Coward fight, is to leave him in Danger——Come Lady——

[Goes out.

Ant. Thou base unmanner'd Fool, how durst thou offer at a Gentleman, with so despis'd a thing as that?

Hau. Despis'd a thing? talk not so contemptibly of this Weapon, I say, do not, but come on if you dare.

Ant. I can endure no longer——

[Flies at him, Haunce cuts his Face, and takes away, after a-while, his Dagger.

Injustice! can such a Dog, and such a Weapon vanquish me?

Hau. Beg your Life; for I scorn to stain my Victory in Blood—that I learnt out of Pharamond. [Aside.

Ant. He does not merit Life, that could not defend it against so poor and base a thing as thou: Had but Marcel left me my Sword——

Hau. O then I perceive you are us'd to be vanquish'd, and therefore I scorn to kill thee; live, live.

Ant. How the Rascal triumphs over me!

Hau. And now like a generous Enemy, I will conduct thee to my Tent, and have thy Wounds dress'd—— That too I had out of Pharamond. [Aside.

Ant. What if I take the offer of this Sot? so I may see Hippolyta again. But I forget—— [Aside.

Hau. Will you accept my Offer?

Ant. For some Reasons I dare not venture into the Town.

Hau. My Lodging is at St. Peter's Gate, hard by; and

236 The DUTCH LOVER.

and on the Parole of a Man of Prowess you shall be safe and free — Pharamond again. [Aside.]

Ant. I'll trust him, for worse I cannot be. [Aside.]

Lead on, I'll follow, Sir——

Hounce. Not so, for tho' the Captive ought to follow the Victor, yet I'll not trust my Enemy at my backside.

Politicks too.—— [Aside.]

Ant. You must command—— [Go out.]

SCENE IV. The Garden.

Enter Silvio and Francisca.

Silv. Well dear Francisca, will Cleonte come, And all alone into the Garden?

Fran. My Lord, she will; I have at last prevail'd, to what intent she knows not; this is an Hour wherein you'll scarce be interrupted: The amorous Entertainment you have prepar'd for her, will advance your Design; such Objects heighten the Desire. Is all ready on your part?

Silv. It is, and I am prepared for all the Resistance she can make, and am resolv'd to satisfy my insupportable Flame, since there's no other hope left me.

Fran. She's coming, Sir, retire.

[Exit Silvio into the Garden.]

Oh how he kills me! Well, at least this pleasure I have whilst I am dying, that when he possesses me, as Cleonte, he for ever ruins his Interest in her Honour, and must find nothing but her mortal Hate and Scorn.

Exit Cleonte.

Cleo. Francisca, why art thou so earnest for my coming into the Garden so early?

Fran. Because, Madam, here without Interruption you may learn what the Lady Clarinda has to tell you.

Cleo. Is that all? go wait upon her higher then.

Fran. Yes, when your more pleasant Affair is dispatch'd, I will—— [Aside.] [Exit Francisca.]

Cleo. Can this be Love I feel?

This strange unusual something in my Soul,
That pleads so movingly for Silvio there;

And

And makes me wish him not allied to me ?

[A noise of rural Musick is heard within the Trees, as Pipes, Flutes, and Voices.

Hah ! what pleasant Noise is this ? sure 'tis in the Air—
Bless me, what strange things be these !

Enter Swains playing upon Pipes, after them four Shepherds with Garlands and Flowers, and four Nymphs dancing an amorous Dance to that Musick ; wherein the Shepherds make Love to the Nymphs, and put the Garlands on their Heads, and go out ; the Nymphs come and lay them at Cleonte's Feet, and sing.

1 Nymph. *Here at your Feet, we tribute pay,
Of all the Glories of the May.*

2 Nymph. *Such Trophies can be only due
To Victors so divine as you,*

Both. *Come follow, follow, where Love leads the way,
To Pleasures that admit of no Delay.*

1 Nymph. *Come follow to the amorous Shade,
Cover'd with Roses, and with Jessamine.*

2 Nymph. Where the Love-sick Boy is laid, Panting for Love's charming Queen.

Both. *Come follow, follow, where we lead the way,
To Pleasures that admit of no delay.* [Lead her out.

The Scene changes to a fine Arbour, they leave her and vanish.

Cleo. I am all Wonder.

Enter Silvio in rapture, not yet seeing Cleonte.

Silv. I'm all on Fire, till I enjoy my Sister ;
Not all the Laws of Birth and Nature
Can hinder me from loving—Nor is't just :
Why should the charm of fair Cleonte's Eyes,
Me less than Aliens to her Blood surprize ?
And why (since I love Beauty every where,
And that Cleonte has the greatest share)
Should not I be allowed to worship her ?
The empty Words of Nature and of Blood,
Are such as Lovers never understood.
Prudence in love 'twere Nonsense to approve,

And

238 The DUTCH LOVER.

And he loves most that gives a Loose to Love.

Cleo. Silvio here !

Silv. Hah——yonder she is ! [Sees her.]

And now my Passion knows no Bounds, nor Laws.

Cleonte, come, come satisfy my Flame.

[Runs to her, and takes her passionately by the hand.]

These private Shades are ours, no jealous Eye

Can interrupt our Heaven of Joy.

Cleo. What mean you ? do you know I am your Sister ?

Silv. Oh that accursed Name !——why should it check me ? [He pauses.]

Wouldst thou had rather been some mis-begotten Monster,

That might have startled Nature at thy Birth :

Or if the Powers above would have thee fair,

Why wert thou born my Sister ?

Oh, if thou shouldst preserve thy Soul, and mine,

Fly from this Place and me ; make haste away,

A strange wild Monster is broke in upon thee ;

A thing that was a Man, but now as mad

As raging Love can make him.

Fly me, or thou art lost for ever.

Cleo. Remember Silvio, that you are my Brother,

And can you hurt your Sister ? [Weeps.]

Silv. Shouldst thou repeat those Ties a thousand times,

'Twill not redeem thee from the Fate that threatens thee.

Be gone, whilst so much Virtue does remain about me,

To wish thee out of Danger.

Cleo. Sure Silvio, this is but to try my Virtue. [Weeps still.]

Silv. No, look on my Eyes, Cleonte, and thou shalt see them flame with a strange wicked Fire.

[Looks wildly on her.]

Yet do not look, thy Eyes increase it.

——Alas ! [Turns away, and hides his Eyes.]

And I shall still forget I am thy Brother :

Go, go, whilst I have power to take my Eyes away,

For if they turn again, it will be fatal.

Cleo. Pray hear me, Sir.

Silv. Oh, do not speak ; thy Voice has Charms

As tempting as thy Face ; but whilst thou art silent and un-
 Perhaps my Madness may be moderate ; (seen,
 For as it is, the best Effects of it
 Will prompt me on to kill thee.

Cleo. To kill me !

Silv. Yes ; for shouldst thou live, adorn'd with so much
 So much my Passion is above my Reason, (Beauty,
 In some such fit as does possess me now
 I should commit a Rape, a Rape upon thee :
 Therefore be gone, and do not tempt Despair,
 That merciless rude thing, but save thy Honour,
 And thy Life.

Cleo. I will obey you Sir. [Goes into the Garden.

Silv. She's gone——and now (Walks, and talks in stopping.) my hot Fit abates——she is my Sister——that is, my Father's Daughter——but——what if his Wife deceiv'd him——or perhaps——(which is the likelier thing) my Mother play'd the false one——for 'twas her Trade to do so——and I'm not Son to Ambrosio——
 Oh, that she were in being to confess this Truth, for sure
 'tis Truth ; then I might love, and might enjoy Cleonte—— enjoy Cleonte ! (In transport.) Oh that Thought ! what Fire it kindles in my Veins, and now my cold Fit's gone—— [Offers to go, but starts and returns.

——No, let me pause a while——

For in this Ague of my Love and Fear,
 Both the Extremes are mortal—— [Goes into the Garden.
Enter Ambrosio and Marcel.

Amb. I'm reconcil'd to you, since your Brother Silvio would have it so.

Mar. My Blood flows to my Face, to hear him named.

Amb. Let there be no more Differences between you :
 But Silvio has of late been discontented, keeps home, and shuns the Conversation which Youth delights in ; goes not to Court as he was wont. Prithce Marcel, learn thou the cause of it.

Mar. I do believe I shall my Lord——too soon. [Aside.

Amb. I'm now going to my Villa, and shall not return till Night ; by the way I mean to visit your Wife,
 that

that was design'd to be, the rich Flavia, and see if I can again reconcile her to you; for your Neglect has been great, and her Anger is just.

Mar. I rather wish it should continue, Sir, for I have yet no Inclinations to marry.

Amb. No more, I'll have it so, if I can.

Mar. I'm silent, Sir. [Ex. Ambrosio and Marcel.]

Enter as from out of the Garden, Cleonte, Clarinda, Francisca, Dormida, from amongst the Trees, sadly; Silvio who starts at sight of them.

Cleo. I am satisfied you know not my Brother's being in the Garden.

Silv. Clarinda with my Sister! and in our House! she's very fair——and yet how dull and blasted all her Beauties seems, when they approach the fair Cleonte's——I cannot shun a tedious Compliment; to see the fair Clarinda [Goes to Clarinda.] Here is a Happiness beyond my Hope; I'm glad to see her kind to the Sister, who always treated the Brother with so much Scorn and Rigour.

Clar. Silvio! sure I'm betray'd. [Aside.

[He talks to her.

Enter Marcel, and is amaz'd.

Mar. Hah! Silvio with Clarinda in our House! Oh daring Villain! to make this place a Sanctuary To all thy Lusts and Treachery! Now I'm convinc'd, 'twas he that wounded me, And he that fled last Night with that false Woman.

[Cleonte goes to Marcel.]

Silv. You need not fear me now, fair Maid, I'm disarm'd of all my dangerous Love.

Mar. It was by his contrivance that she came, [To Cleonte.] do not excuse him, but send her quickly from you, lest you become as infamous as she.——

Cleo. Oh how I hate her now; I know my Brother Silvio loves her.

Mar. How every Gesture shows his Passion, whilst she seems pleas'd to hear him. I can endure no more——

Cleo. What will you do? [She goes to them.

Mar. Nothing dear Sister,

But

But if I can be wife and angry too :
 For 'tis not safe t'attack him in the Garden.
 How now Silvio — under the Name of Brother,
 I see you dare too much. [Snatches away his sister and Clarinda.

Silv. What mean you by this rude Address, Marcel ?

Mar. I'll tell ye, Sir, anon. Go get you in.
[To the Women, who go in.]

Silv. Well, Sir, your Business now ?

Mar. It is not safe to tell you here, tho I have hardly Patience to stay till thou meet me in St. Peter's Grove.

Silv. I will not fail you, Sir, an Hour hence.
[Goes in after them.]

Mar. I dare not in this Rage return to upbraid Clarinda, lest I do things that mis-become a Man. [Exit.]

A C T IV. S C E N E I.

Carlo's House.

After a Noise of Musick without, enter Haunce dress'd as Alonzo was, follow'd by Gload, in Masquerade.

Hau. HOld, hold, I do not like the Salutations I receive from all I meet in this House.

Glo. Why, Sir, methinks they are very familiar Scabs all.

Hau. Salerimente, they all salute me as they were my old Acquaintance. Your servant Myn beer Haunce, crys one ; your servant Monsieur Haunce, crys another.

Enter Servant.

Serv. Your servant, Sir, you come indeed like a Bridegroom all beset with Dance and Fiddle.

Hau. Bridegroom ! ha, ha, ha, dost hear Gload ? 'tis true faith. But how the Devil came he to know it, man, hah ?

Serv. My Master, Sir, was just asking for you, he longs to speak with you.

Hau. Ha, ha, with me, Sir ? why, ha, ha, who the pox am I ?

Serv. You, Sir, why who should you be?

Hau. Who should I be? why who should I be?

Serv. Myn heer Haunce van Ezel, Sir.

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, well guest, i'faith now.

Glo. Why how should they guess otherwise, coming so attended with Musick, as prepar'd for a Wedding?

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, say'st thou so? faith 'tis good Device to save the Charges of the first Compliments, hah: but hark ye, hark ye, Friend, are you sure this is the House of Don Carlo?

Serv. Why, Sir, have you forgot it?

Hau. Forgot it! ha, ha, ha, dost hear Gload? forgot it! why how the Devil should I remember it?

Glo. Sir, I believe this is some new-fashion'd Civility in Spain, to know every Man before he sees him.

Hau. No, no, you fool, they never change their Fashion in Spain, Man.

Glo. I mean their manner of Addresses, Sir.

Hau. It may be so, I'll see farther. Friend, is Don Carlo within?

Serv. He has not been out since, Sir.

Hau. Since, ha, ha, ha, since when? hah.

Serv. Since you saw him, Sir.

Hau. Salerimente, will you make me mad? why you damnable Rascal, when did I see him? hah.

Serv. Here comes my Master himself, Sir, [Enter Carlo. let him inform you, if you grow so hot upon the Question.

Car. How now Son, what angry? You have e'en tir'd your self with walking, and are out of Humour.

Hau. Look there again—the old Man's mad too; why how the pox should he know I have been walking? Indeed, Sir, I have, as you say, been walking [Playing with his Hat.]—and am—as you say, out of Humour—But under favour, Sir, who are you? sure 'tis the old Conjuror, and those were his little Imps I met.

[Goes furlily to him.

Car. Sure, Son, you should be a Wit, by the shortness of your Memory.

Hau. By the Goodness of yours, you should be none, ha, ha, ha. Did I not meet with him there, Gload, hah? But pray refresh my Memory, and let me know you; I come come to seek a Father amongst you here, one Don Carlo.

Car. Am I not the Man, Sir?

Hau. How the Devil should I know that now, unless by instinct?

Glo. The old Man is mad, and must be humour'd.

Hau. Cry you Mercy, Sir, I vow I had quite forgot you. Sir, I hope Donna Euphemia——

Car. Oh, Sir, she's in a much better Humour than when you saw her last, complies with our Desires more than I cou'd hope or wish.

Hau. Why look you here again——I ask'd after her Health, not her Humour.

Car. I know not what Arts you made use of, but she's strangely taken with your Conversation and Person.

Glo. Truly, Sir, you are mightily beholden to her, that she should have all this good Will to your Person and Conversation before she sees you.

Hau. Ay, so I am; therefore, Sir, I desire to see your Daughter, for I shall hardly be so generous as she has been, and be quits with her before I see her.

Car. Why, Sir, I hop'd you lik'd her when you saw her last.

Hau. Stark mad——I saw her last! why, what the Devil do you mean? I never saw her in all my Life, man. Stark mad, as I am true Dutch—— [Aside.]

Car. A Lover always thinks the time tedious: But here's my Daughter.

Enter Euphemia and Olinda.

Hau. Ay, one of these must be she: but 'tis a Wonder I should not know which she is by instinct.

[Stands looking simply on both.]

Euph. This is not Alonzo——has he betray'd me? [Aside.]

Car. Go, Sir, she expects you.

Hau. Your pardon, Sir; let her come to me, if she will, I'm sure she knows me better than I do her.

Glo. How should she know you, Sir?

Hau. How? by instinct, you Fool, as all the rest of the House does: don't you fair Mistress?

Euph. I know you——

Hau. Yes, you know me; you need not be so coy man, the old Man has told me all.

Euph. What has he told you?—I am ruin'd. [Aside.

Hau. Faith much more than I believ'd, for he was very full of his new-fashion'd Civility, as they call it: But ha, ha, I hope, fair Mistress, you do not take after him?

Euph. What if I do, Sir?

Hau. Why then I had as lieve marry a Steeple with a perpetual Ring of Bells.

Glo. Let me advise you, Sir; methinks you might make a handsomer Speech for the first, to so pretty a Lady——Fakes an were I to do't——

Hau. I had a rare Speech for her thou knowest, and an Entertainment besides, that was, tho I say it, unordinary: But a pox of this new way of Civility, as thou call'st it, it has put me quite beside my part.

Glo. Tho you are out of your complimenting Part, I am not out of my dancing one, and therefore that part of your Entertainment I'll undertake for. 'Slife, Sir, would you disappoint all our Ship's Company?——

Hau. That's according as I find this proud Tit in Humour.

Car. And why so coy? pray why all this Dissimulation? Come, come, I have told him your Mind, and do intend to make you both happy immediately.

Euph. How, Sir, immediately!

Car. Yes, indeed; nay, if you have deceiv'd me, and dissbled with me, when I was so kind, I'll show you Trick for Trick i'faith—— [Goes to Hau.

Euph. What shall we do, Olinda?

Olin. Why marry Don Alonzo, Madam.

Euph. Do not rally, this is no time for Mirth.

Olin. Fie upon't, Madam, that you should have so little Courage; your Father takes this Fellow to be Alonzo.

Car. What Counsel are you giving there, hah?

Olin. Only taking leave of our old Acquaintance, since you talk of marrying us so soon.

Car. What Acquaintance pray?

Olin. Our Maiden-heads, Sir.

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, a pleasant Wench faith now; I believe you would be content to part with yours with less warning.

Olin.

Olin. On easy Terms perhaps, but this marrying I do not like; 'tis like going a long Voyage to Sea, where after a while even the Calms are distasteful, and the Storms dangerous: one seldom sees a new Object, 'tis still a deal of Sea, Sea; Husband, Husband, every day, —till one's quite cloy'd with it.

Car. A mad Girl this, Son.

Hau. Ay, Sir, but I wish she had left out the simile; it had made my Stomach wamble.

Gload. Pray, Sir, let you the Maid alone as an Utensil belonging to my Place and Office, and meddle you with the Mistress.

Hau. Faith now, thou hast the better Bargain of the two: my Mistress looks so scurvily and civil, that I don't know what to say to her——Lady——hang't, that look has put me quite out again.

Car. To her Son, to her——

Hau. Hark ye Lady——Well, what next now? Oh pox quite out, quite out; tell me whether the old Man ly'd or no, when he told me you lov'd me:

Euph. I love you!

Hau. Look you there now, how she looks again.

Car. She's only bashful, Sir, before me; therefore if you please to take a small Collation, that has waited within for you this three Hours——

Hau. That's strange now, that any thing should wait for me, who was no more expected here than Bethlehem-Gabor: Faith now Lady, this Father of yours is very simple.

Euph. To take you for his Son.

Hau. I meant to have surpriz'd you I vow, before you had dreamt of me; and when I came, you all knew me as well as if you had cast a Figure for me.

Car. Well, Son, you'll follow.

Euph. You will not leave me alone, Sir, with a Man?

Hau. Go your ways, go your ways — I shall know more of your Secrets before [Gload makes Grimaces to Olinda of Love] night yet, you little pouting Hypocrite you.

Euph. You know my Secrets! why who are you?

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, that's a very good one faith now : who am I, quoth thou? why there's not a Child thus high in all your Father's House would have ask'd me so simple a Question.

Olin. Madam, I find by his Man, this is your expected Lover, whom you must flatter, or you are undone, 'tis Hauunce van Ezel. [To Euphemia.]

Euph. The Fop himself.

Hau. Oh, do you know me now?

Euph. 'Tis impossible.

Hau. This is an extreme the other way now. [Aside. Impossible, ha, ha, ha! No, no, poor thing, do not doubt thy Happiness : for look ye, to confirm you, here are my Bills of Exchange with my own natural Name to them, if you can read written Hand—

[Shews her Papers.]

Gload. Not love you ! I'll swear you lye now, you little Jade, I am now in Masquerade, and you cannot judge of me ; but I am Book-keeper and Cashier to my Master, and my Love will turn to account, I'll warrant you.

Olin. There may be use made of him. [Aside. I shall think of it. But pray why are you thus accounted?

Gload. Faith, to entertain your Lady, we have brought the whole Ship's Company too in Masquerade.

Olin. That indeed will be very proper at this time of the Day, and the first Visit too.

Glo. Shaw, that's nothing, you little think what Blades we are mun——Sir, I'll call in the Fiddles and the Company

Hau. Well remember'd, faith, now I had e'en forgot it.

Euph. What's the meaning of this? [Fiddle strikes up.]

Hau. To show you the difference between the damnable dull Gravity of the Spanish, and brisk Gaiety of the Dutch. Come, come, begin all.

Enter Dutchmen and Women dancing.

Nay, I'll shew you what I can do too, come Gload.

[They too dance.]

There's

There's for you now, and yet you have not seen half my good Qualities ; I can sing the newest Ballad that has been made, so I can. [Sings a Dutch Song.]

Euph. Be these your Friends, Sir ? they look as if you had ranfack'd a Hoy for them.

Hau. How ! look on them well, they are all States or States-fellows, I tell you that now, and they can bear witness who I am too.

Euph. Now I'm convinced, and am sorry I doubted my Happiness so long : I had such a Character of you.

Hau. Of me ! oh Lord, I vow now—as they say—don't know——ha, ha——

Euph. I heard you were the most incorrigible Fool, the most intolerable Fop.

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, do you hear Gload——who I a Fop ? I vow they were mistaken in me, for I am counted as pretty a Merchant as any walks the Change ; can write a very plain Hand, and cast Account as well——my Man Gload——can't I, Sirrah ?

Gload. Yes indeed, forsooth, can he.

Hau. Egad, a Fool, a Fop, quoth ye——

[Walks angry.]

Olin. By all means flatter him, Madam.

Euph. I'm satisfy'd, Sir.

Hau. I care not whether you are or no, for I shall have you whether you will or no, mun.

Euph. 'Tis very likely ; but there is a certain troublesome Fellow in love with me, that has made me vow whenever I marry to ask him leave.

Hau. How, ask him leave ? I scorn to ask any Body's leave, I tell you that, tho' 'twere my Mistress——

Euph. I cannot marry you then.

Hau. How, not marry me ? look here now :

[Ready to cry.]

Gload, can't you marry, and let no living Soul know it ?

Euph. Oh no, Sir, I love your Life better, which would be indanger'd.

Hau. Why, what a cursed Custom you have in Spain, a Man can neither marry, nor console his Neighbour's Wife without having his Throat cut. Why, what if he will not give you leave ?

Euph. Why then you must fight him.

Hau. How! fight him, I fight him!

Gload. Why, yes, Sir, you know you can fight, you try'd but this very Morning——

Hau. Softly, you damn'd Rogue, not a Word of my Prowess aloud. Salerimente, I shall be put to fight when I am sober, shall I, for your damn'd prating, ye Rascal?

Euph. I am glad you have that good Quality.

[Olinda speaking to Gload, pushes him to speak.

Gload. Ay, Madam——my Master——has many more: But if you please to tell him his Rival's Name——

Hau. I'll have your Ears for this Sirrah, the next time I'm soundly drunk, and you know that won't be long. [Aside.

Lord, Madam, my Man knows not what he says.

Ye Rascal, say I have no Courage——or I will drink my self to the Miracle of Valour, and exercise it all on thee.

Gload. I know what I do, Sir, you had Courage this Morning, is the Fit over?

Hau. Have I not slept since, you Rogue, have I not?

Glo. I have a trick to save your Honour, Sir, and therefore I will stand in't you have Courage.

Hau. A Pox of your Trick, the Rogue knows I dare not chastise him now, for fear they should think I have Valour.

Glo. Madam, my Master's modest, but tell him who 'tis he must fight with——

Hau. Oh, for a Tun of Rhenish——that I might abundantly beat thee——

Euph. Your Rival's Name's Alonzo, Sir.

Hau. Oh the Devil, a thundring Name too; but will this save——Alonzo make no allowance for necessity?— I vow 'tis pure necessity in me to marry you: the old Men being agreed upon the Matter, I am but an Instrument——alas, not I, [Crys.

A very Tool, as they say, so I am.

Glo. Lord, Sir, why do you cry? I meant no harm.

Hau. No harm, you Rascal——to say I am valiant.

Glo.

Glo. Why, yes, Sir, and if you would say so too, at worst 'twas but getting Don Louis to have fought for you; you know that's a small courtesy to a Friend.

Hau. Faith, now thou art in the right; he'll do his Business for him, I'll warrant him. [Wipes his Eyes. Nay then, Madam, I have Courage, and will to this Don——this Alonzo you speak of; and if he do not resign you, and consign you too, I'll make him; yes, make him, do ye see—If Louis should refuse me now—

[Aside.

Glo. Shaw, Sir, he makes nothing to kill a Man, ten or twenty.

Euph. Well, since you are so resolv'd, my Brother will tell you where to find this Alonzo; and tell him, I must marry you to day, for I am resolv'd not to lie alone to night.

Hau. What would not a Man do for so kind a Mistress?

Euph. Well; get you about it strait then, lest my Father's coming prevent it.

[Exeunt Euphemia and Olinda.

Hau. I am gone——But if Louis should fail——

Glo. He would beat you, if he thought you doubted him.

Hau. I'll keep my Fears then to my self. [Go out.

SCENE II. The Street.

Enter Hippolyta dress'd like a Man, with a Paper.

Hip. Thus I dare look abroad again:

Methinks I am not what I was,

My Soul too is all Man;

Where dwells no Tenderness, no womanish Passions.

I cannot sigh, nor weep, nor think of Love,

But as a foolish Dream that's gone and past.

Revenge has took possession of my Soul,

And drove those Shadows thence; and shows me now

Love, in so poor, so despicable a Shape,

So quite devested of his artful Beauty,

That I'm asham'd I ever was his Votary.

Well, here's my Challenge to Antonio ;
 But how to get it to him is the Question.
 Base as he is, he'll not refuse to come ;
 And since he never saw the wrong'd Alonzo,
 Sure I may pass for him. Who's here? —

Enter Haunce and Gload. She stands aside.

Hau. Gload, if it were possible I could be sober, and valiant at once, I should now be provok'd to exercise it : for I cannot find Louis, and then how I shall come off, the Lord knows. And then again, for letting the Lady go, whom I rescu'd in the Grove this Morning.

Glo. Should I disobey a Lady, Sir? for she commanded me to let her go so soon as she came into the Gate. And, Sir, look here comes Don Louis.

Enter Louis and Alonzo.

Hau. Oh, Brother Louis, where the Devil have you been all this Day? I stay'd for you to go with me to your Sister's, as long as Flesh and Blood could forbear. :

Lov. Why, have you been there without me?

Hau. Yes marry have I, Sir.

Alon. I am undone then ——— [Aside.

Hau. I needed no Recommendation mun, for when I came they were all as well acquainted with me——I never saw them before ; but by the way, they are all no wiser than they should be, except your Sister, who is the pretty'st loving, sweet Rogue——

Alon. How's this?

Lov. But have you seen my Sister?

Hau. Seen her! yes, and will marry her too mun before Night, an she were a thousand Sisters——But harkye Louis, the business is this——you must know that before I marry her, I am to seek out a certain Fellow, they call——they call Alonzo, ay, ay, Alonzo——a Pox on him, a troublesome Rascal they say he is; and his leave, it seems, must be askt to marry your Sister.

Lov. Well, Sir, and what if he will not give you leave?

Hau. Why then, you must know, I am to get him very well favour'dly beaten.

Alon. Sure this is the Coxcomb himself.

Hau. Now for your Sister's sake, who loves me, poor thing, I will not run the danger of beating him my self, but must desire that small courtesy of thee.

Lov. How! I beat him?

Hau. You beat him, yes, you; what a Pox do you scruple such a kindness to a Friend? I know you make no more of killing a Man next your Heart in a Morning, than I do of eating a pickled Herring.

Lov. But she desir'd you to do't.

Hau. That's all one so it be done, mun; besides, why should I run my self into a Premunire, when I need not? Your Father is bound by Agreement to mine, to deliver me the Wares (that is, his Daughter) safe and sound; and I have no more to do, but to protest against him in case of Non-performance. 'Twill be a dear Commodity to me at this rate. [Cries.

Lov. Well, Sir, I'll see what may be done.

Hau. Spoke like a Friend now: Well, you must about it instantly, for I must be married to day.

Alon. Must you so, Sir?—

Hau. Yes marry must I, Sir—Who the Devil's this now? [To Lovis.

Alon. That same Alonzo whom you inquire for.

Hau. Are you so, Sir?—Why, what then, Sir—
Lovis, Lovis. [Runs behind Lovis.

Alon. What then, Sir? then I tell you, I will not be beaten.

Hau. Look ye here now—Lovis.

Lov. Ha, ha, ha, canst thou be angry with him?

[To Alonzo.

Hau. I, can you be angry with me?

Alon. I know not why an Ass should have more privilege than any other rude Beast.

Lov. Ha, ha, ha, this Humour's so pleasant in thee, I wish thou wouldst pursue it a little—Hau. bear up to him, he's but a mere Huff, ha, ha, ha.

[Claps him on the Back, he goes fearfully forward.

Glad.

Gload. I, Sir, as long as Don Louis is here, you may say what you will.

Hau. May I so?—and why, Sir?—am I, Sir—an Afs, Sir?

Alon. 'Sdeath you Rascal, do you question me?

Hau. Oh, hold, Sir, hold, not I, God forbid I should question it, Louis—is it, indeed, Alonzo, hah?

Lov. Yes indeed is it.

Hau. And wilt thou not do so much as to beat him for me a little?

Lov. Not I, I dare not, he's a terrible Man.

Hau. Why look you here now, you damn'd Rogue,
[To Gload.] Have not you serv'd me finely, hah?

Gload. Why, Sir, 'tis but crying Peccavi.

Hau. Peccavi, and be hang'd to you—Lord, Sir, [To Alonzo.] why are you so angry? I came but to ask you a civil Question, from my Wife that must be.

Alon. You must ask me leave, first.

Hau. Yes, yes, Sir, so she said mun; for she must marry me to night.

Alon. Yes, you shall have it with this—too. [Draws.]

Hau. Why look you [Hauce runs away, Louis stays him] here now, here's damn'd doings. For my part, here I declare it upon my Death-bed, I am forc'd to what I do, and you kill me against my Will.

Alon. Do'st think we are not discover'd in our Design? I'd kill the Dog if I thought we were.

Lov. I believe not; and perceive by my Sister's Message, that we are to come to her, and prevent this Fellow's marrying her.

Alon. Well, Sir, I'll spare your Life, and give your Mistress leave to marry to night.

Hau. How, Sir, to Night?—But is he in earnest, Louis?

Lov. In very good earnest.

Hau. Tan, ta, ra, ra, ra—hay Boys, what a Night we'll have on't, Gload, for Fiddles and Dancing.

Alon. Tell your Mistress I will dispatch a little Affair, and wait on her.

Gload. And pray, Sir, may I have leave to marry the Maid too?

Alon.

Alon. We'll consider on't.

Hau. I am not such a Fool to venture tho, till I know the Coast is clear, for his very Looks are terrible; but go you, Gload, and tell her what he says.

[Alonzo talks to Lovis.]

Enter Hippolyta from aside.

Hip. These be the Men that rescu'd me this morning, And are not to be employ'd in my Affair. But yonder Stranger has a noble Look, And from him I'll intreat this Favour——Sir——

[To Alonzo.]

Alon. With me, Sir?

Hip. Yes, please you to walk a little this way, Sir.

[Takes him aside.]

Hau. Well, make ye sure of Fiddles, for look ye, we'll appear to night like our selves.

Gload. It shall be done, Sir.

Hip. I am a Stranger and a Gentleman, And have an humble Suit to you.

Alon. You may command me any thing.

Hip. Sir, there is a Gentleman, if I may call him so, that dares do ill; has put a base Affront upon a Lady—a Lady whom all brave Men are bound to vindicate: I've writ him here a Challenge, and only beg you'll give it him; I will attend you in St. Peter's Grove, where I desire the perfidious Antonio (for that's his Name, to whom this is directed) to meet me.

Alon. I'm pleas'd to see this Gallantry in a Man so young, and will serve you in this, or whatever else you shall command. But where is this Antonio?

Hip. That I'll inquire of these. Sir, pray can you give any account of the Cavalier [To Haunce, who starts as aforesaid] you fought with this Morning in St. Peter's Grove, that had a Lady with him?

Hau. So, now perhaps I shall be hang'd for that.

[Aside.]

I fight, Sir! I never fought in my Life, nor saw no Man, not I.

Gload. 'Sha, you may confess it, Sir; there's no Law against killing in Spain.

Hip.

Hip. How, have you murder'd him?

[Takes hold of him.]

Hau. This Rogue has a mind to have me dispatch'd.

[Aside.]

Hold, Sir, the Man's as well and alive as you are, and is now at my Lodgings; look ye here's the Dagger I disarm'd him of——but that I do not love to boast.

[Shews it.]

Hip. It is the same.

Alon. Sir, I shall not fail to wait on you with the Answer I receive.

Hip. I humbly thank you, Sir.

Alon. So prithee, dear Lovis, go make my excuse to your Sister for a moment, and let her get all things ready against I come; let the Priest too wait, for I see my Destiny, which I can no longer prevent, draw on apace.

[Exit Lovis.]

Come, Sir, you must conduct me to Antonio.

[Exeunt Alonzo, Haunce, and Gload.]

Hip. So now the Work's half done, that will redeem All the lost Credit of our Family.

To kill, or to be kill'd, I care not which, [Weeps,

So one or both expire; be strong my Soul,

And let no feeble Woman dwell about thee.

Hence Fears and Pity, such poor things as these Cannot the Storms of my Revenge appease:

Those Showers must from his treacherous Heart proceed,

If I can live and see Antonio bleed. [Sighs, and Exit.

Enter Marcel alone.

Mar. The hour is almost come which I appointed, And yet no Silvio appears, the time seems long to me;

But he that's circled in his Mistress' Arms,

Forgets the hasty hours,

And passes them as unregarded by,

As Men do Beggars who demand a Charity.

Enter Hippolyta.

Young Man, hast thou encounter'd none within this Grove?

Hip.

Hip. Not any, Sir,——Marcel! my injur'd Brother!

Mar. Why dost thou turn away, and hide thy Face?

Hip. 'Tis not my Face I hide, but Sorrow there.

[Weeps.

Mar. Trust me, thou weepst; would I could do so too,

That I might be less angry;

And Silence best expresses Grief:

But thine's a saucy Sorrow dares approach

A Face so fair and young.

Hip. If the Ingrate for whom I grieve had thought so,
I might have spar'd my Tears. Farewel, Sir.

Mar. Stay, hast thou been a Lover?

Hip. A very, very passionate one.

Mar. And wert thou not belov'd?

Hip. At first, to draw me in, the cunning Artist
Made me believe I was.

Mar. Oh! I could kiss thee now, for the alliance Between thy Grief and mine.

Hadst thou a loose and wanton Sister too,

Then thou wert perfect wretched, as I am.

[Weeps.

But prithee leave me, now I think of it:

For shouldst thou stay, thou'dst rob me of my Anger;

For since a Youth like thee can be unhappy,

With such a Shape, and so divine a Face,

Methinks I should not quarrel with my Star,

But bow to all my faithless Mistress' Scorns.

[Hollowing within.] So ho, ho, so ho, ho—

Mar. So ho, so ho, ho, ho—'Tis my false Rival,
Now leave me, Sir, to reassume my Anger.

Hip. I will obey—farewel—

My own Despair makes me neglect his Life.

[Goes out.

Enter Silvio.

Mar. 'Tis Silvio.

Silv. You see I have obey'd you, Sir.

Mar. Come, Sir, your Sword.

Silv. You are my Brother, and 'twere an impious Action,

To fight you unprovok'd: give me a cause,

Nay, and a just one too, or I shall find it hard —To wound Cleonte's Brother. [Aside sighing.]

Mar. Thou can'st prepar'd to talk, and not to fight.
I cannot blame thee for't, for were I Silvio,
Thus I would do to save a Life belov'd :

[Offers to fight, Silvio steps back.]

But 'twill not serve you now.

Sil. Your Reason, Sir, and I am ready, if it be just.

Mar. Oh do not urge me to repeat my Wrongs,
For if thou dost, I hardly shall have Man enough remain
To fight thee fairly. [Offers still.]

Sil. Surely he knows my Passion for Cleonte—

[Aside.]

I urge the Reason still.

Mar. Hast thou forgot thy last Night's Treachery?
How like a Thief thou stol'st into her Lodging?

Sil. 'Tis so——'tis true, Marcel, I rudely did intrude——

Mar. Oh quickly haste——this looks like Womens-jangling. [Offers to fight again.]

Sil. Oh it is bravely done, Marcel, to punish
A Passion which you ought to pity rather :

'Tis what I cannot reconcile nor justify :

And so distracted it has made me too——

I will not fight in so unjust a Cause.

Kill me, and I'll embrace you whilst I die ;

A thousand Wounds imprinted on thy Body,

Will bring less Pain than that her Eyes have caus'd.

Here strike——Pity my Pain, and ease me.

[Opens his Arms, and throws away his Sword.]

Mar. I find thou hast a Charm about thy Tongue,

And thou implor'st thy Death in such a way,

I cannot hurt thee, and it gives me hopes

Thou art not yet so bless'd to be belov'd,

For then thou wouldst not be thus desperate.

Sil. Oh yes, I am belov'd.

Mar. Oh do not say thou art,

Nor take me from a Calmness, that may spare thee.

Sil. Not say I am belov'd ! thou canst not hire me

With Life or fuller Joy, to say I am not.

If there be Truth and Love in Innocence, she loves me.

Mar.

Mar. Yet, yet, ye Gods, I can endure——say, but thou art not,

For I would yet preserve thee.

Sil. Oh canst thou wish that I should fall so low,
To save my Life with Lyes; the poorest Sin of all the number?

Mar. Then once again thou hast debauch'd my Pity.

[Takes to the Sword.

Sil. Her Passion I will justify, but not my own;
Her's is as pure as Prayers of Penitence;
But mine——I cannot give a Name to.

[They fight: Enter Alonzo, and parts them.

Alon. How now, what's here to do? Marcel!

Mar. Alonzo! the only Man I wish to shun.

Silv. I'm glad, who e'er thou be'st thou hast prevented us.

Alon. Thou hast more Wit than he, then I find: Your Quarrel, Sir, may a Man have leave to enquire into't?

Mar. This is that Silvio, that noble Youth my Brother, whom thou hast often heard me name.

Alon. An excellent Character for an Enemy, Noble, and Brother: For shame put up your Swords, and I'll be Judge between ye.

Mar. The Case is soon decided; I will not tell you with how tedious a Courtship I won the Heart, as I thought, of a young Beauty of this Town —— and yesterday receiv'd a Billet from her, to wait on her at night, to receive the recompence of all my Pains and Sufferings——In this extasy of Joy I show'd him the Paper; and he getting thither before me, rob'd me of my Prize.

Silv. I am so pleas'd at this mistake of thine, I can forgive it freely.

Mar. Not content with this, most treacherously, hid in the shades of Night, he met me in the Hall of this false Woman, and stab'd me, which did secure his flight with her; and wouldst thou have me put this Injury up?

Alon. Faith you must, and your Sword too,
Unless you mean to keep it drawn on me.
'Twas I that wounded you i'th' dark; and it was I
That rob'd you of Clarinda.

Mar.

258 The DUTCH LOVER.

Mar. Thou?

Alon. I, am I so unlikely a Man to do such a feat?

Mar. How dare you, Sir, do this?

Alon. I dare do any thing, but break my Word, as thou hast basely done with me—But I am now in haste, and should be glad to know where to meet you anon.

Mar. I'll wait on you at the farther side of this Grove by the River.

Alon. I will not fail you—— [Ex. Alonzo.]

Mar. Come, Sir, till I can better prove you are my Rival, I will believe you are my Friend and Brother.

Silv. When thou shalt know my miserable Story, Thou wilt believe and pity me. [Go out.]

Enter again Hippolyta from out of the Wood.

Hip. I wonder this Cavalier stays so long, Pray Heaven he meet Antonio.

Enter Alonzo.

Your Servant, Sir.

Alon. The Cavalier to whom you sent me, Sir, Will wait upon you here.

Hip. I humbly thank you, Sir, and should be glad to know how I might pay my Gratitude.

Alon. My Duty ends not here; I have a Sword to serve you.

Hip. You shame me with this Generosity; but, Sir, I hope my own will be sufficient in so good a Cause.

Alon. Tho' you are young, I question not your Bravery; But I must beg to stay and see fair play, And offer you my Service when you've done.

Hip. The Enemy appears, Sir,——and since you are so good, I beg you would retire behind those Trees; for if he see us both since he is single, he will suspect some treachery.

Alon. You've reason, Sir, and I'll obey you.

[Goes aside.]

Enter

Enter Antonio reading a Paper.

S I R,

I Do desire you to meet me in St. Peter's Grove, with your Sword in your Hand, about an Hour hence; you will guess my Business, when you know my Name to be Alonzo.

Alon. How's that?

[Aside.

Ant. I wish't had been another Enemy, Since from the Justice of his Cause I fear An ill success; would I had seen Hippolyta, That e'er I dy'd I might have had her pardon. This Conscience——'tis ominous, But ne'er appears in any horrid shape, Till it approaches Death—— [Goes forward, sees Hippolyta, who justles him in passing by; he stops and looks.

Hip. You seem, Sir, to be he whom I expect.

Ant. I'm call'd Antonio, Sir——

Hip. And I Alonzo; the rest we need not ask, For thou art well acquainted with my Injuries, And I with thy Perfidiousness.

[Draws.

Ant. I know of none you have receiv'd from me, If on Hippolyta's account you fight: She lov'd me, and believ'd; and what dull Lover Would have refus'd a Maid so easily gain'd?

Hip. Ah Traytor, by how base a way Thou wouldst evade thy Fate? Didst thou not know she was my Wife by promise? Did not Marcel, Ambrosio, all consent To make her mine as soon as I arriv'd?

Alon. Who the Devil's that young Bully that takes my Name, and my Concerns upon him?

[Aside.

Hip. But why should I expect a Truth from thee, Who after so much time, so many Vows, So many Tears, Despairs and Sighs, at last Didst gain a Credit with this easy Fool, Then left her to her shames, and her despairs?—Come, Sir,—Or I shall talk my self to calmness——

[Aside.

Ant.

260 The DUTCH LOVER.

Ant. I'm ready, Sir, to justify the Deed.

[They offer to fight, Alonzo steps forth.]

Alon. Hold! hold! fair Thief that rob'st me of my Name,

And wouldst my Honour too; [Puts her by.

If thou hast wrong'd the fair Hippolyta, [To Antonio.

No Man but I has right to do her justice.

Or you are both my Rivals——tell me which,

Which of you is it I must kill——or both?

I am Alonzo, who dares love Hippolyta?

Hip. Let not your friendship, Sir, proceed so far,

To take my Name, to take my Quarrel on you.

Alon. In this Dispute none's more concern'd than I,

And I will keep my ground in such a cause,

Tho' all the Rivals that her Beauty makes me,

Were arm'd to take my Life away.

Ant. Come, Sir, I care not which of you's Alonzo.

[They go to fight, she holds Alonzo.]

Hip. This Gallantry's too much, brave Stranger.

Antonio, hurt him not; I am the wrong'd Alonzo,

And this a perfect Stranger to the business,

Who seeing me appear less Man than he,

And unacquainted with my Deeds abroad,

In Bounty takes my Name and Quarrel on him.

Alon. Take heed young Man, and keep thy Virtue in,

Lest thus misguided it become a Crime.

But thou, he says, hast wrong'd Hippolyta, [To Antonio.

And I am he must punish it.

Hip. Sure it is he indeed——

For such a Miracle my Brother render'd him, [Aside.

Hold, hold, thou Wonder of thy Sex—— [They fight.

Alon. Stand by, I shall be angry with thee else,

And that will be unsafe——

[As Alonzo fights with one Hand, he keeps her off with t'other; she presses still forward on Antonio with her Sword, endeavouring to keep back Alonzo.

Enter to them Marcel.

Mar. Sure I heard the Noise of Swords this way!

[Draws.

Hah,

Hah, two against one ! Courage, Sir. [To Antonio.

[They fight all four, Marcel with Hippolyta whom he wounds, and Alonzo with Antonio, who is disarm'd.

Hip. Good Heaven, how just thou art !

Mar. What, dost thou faint already ?—Hah, the pretty talking Youth I saw but now !

[Runs to her, and holds her up.

Alas, how dost thou ?

Hip. Well, since thy Hand has wounded me——

Ant. My Life is yours, nor would I ask the Gift,
But to repair my Injuries to Hippolyta.

Alon. I give it thee—— [Gives him his Sword.

Mar. How, Antonio ! ——

What unkind Hand has rob'd me of the justice
Of killing thee ?

Alon. His that was once thy Friend, Marcel.

Mar. Oh ! dost thou know my Shame ? [Turns away.

Alon. I know thou art false to Friendship,
And therefore do demand mine back again, thou'st us'd
it scurvily.

Mar. Thou know'st too much to think I've injur'd thee.

Alon. Not injur'd me ! Who was it promis'd me Hip-polyta ?

Who his Alliance, and his Friendship too ?
And who has broke them all, but thou perfidious ?
Come, 'tis Hippolyta that I demand.

Mar. By this he should not know my Sister's Shame.

[Aside.

Oh, Sir, you must not have Hippolyta.

Alon. How ! not have Hippolyta !

Tho every Step were guarded by a Brother,
Tho she were circled round about with Rivals,
Ye should not all have Power to keep her from me.
Not have Hippolyta !——

'Sdeath, Sir, because I do not know my Birth,
And cannot boast a little empty Title,
I must not have Hippolyta.——

Now I will have her ; and when you know I can,
You shall petition me to marry her.

And

262 The DUTCH LOVER.

And yet I will not do't. Come, Sir—— [Offers to fight.

Hip. Hold, hold brave Man, or turn your Sword on me,

I'm the unhappy Cause of all your Rage :

'Tis I, generous Alonzo, that can tell you

What he's ashamed to own,

And thou wilt blush to hear.

Mar. Hippolyta ! thou wretched wicked Woman :
Thus I reward thy Sins——

[Offers to kill her, Antonio steps between.

Ant. Hold, Sir, and touch her not without my leave,
She is my Wife ; by sacred Vows my Wife.

Alon. I understand no riddling ; but whoever thou be'st,
Man or Woman, thou'rt worth our Care——
She faints——come let us bear her hence.

[She faints, Antonio kneels to her.

Ant. Oh stay Hippolyta, and take me with thee,
For I've no use of Life when thou art gone. [Weeps.
Here kill me, brave Marcel ;——and yet you need not
My own Remorse, and Grief will be sufficient.

Mar. I credit thee, and leave thee to their Mercy.

Hip. That Goodness, Sir, has call'd me back to Life, to pay my humble Thanks ; could you have Mercy too,
to pardon me——you might redeem my Soul.

Mar. Some Pity I have yet, that may preserve thee
too,
Provided this Repentance be not feign'd.

Ant. My Life, Sir, is Security for both.

Mar. Doubt not, I'll take the Forfeit, Sir——Come *Hip-
polyta*,
Thy Father's House shall once again receive thee.

Ant. Lean on my Arm, my dearest.

Mar. Sir, by the way, I'll let you know her Story,
And then perhaps you will not blame my Friendship.

Alon. And in return, I'll give you back Clarinda——
And beg your Pardon for the Wound I gave you.

[Exeunt, leading Hippolyta.

ACT V. SCENE I.

A Garden.

Enter Cleonte, Clarinda weeping, Dormida and Francisca.

Cleo. FEAR not, I'll use my Interest both with your Mother and my Father, to set your Heart at rest, Whose Pain I feel by something in my own.

Clar. The Gods reward your Bounty, fair Cleonte.

Dor. I, I, Madam, I beseech you make our Peace with my good Lady her Mother, whatsoever becomes of the rest, for she'll e'en die with Grief— [Weeps.]

She had but two fair Pledges of her Nuptial Bed, And both by cruel Fate are ravisht from her.

Manuel a Child was lost,

And this not holy Relicks were more strictly guarded, Till false Marcel betray'd me to debauch her.

[Weeps aloud.]

Cleo. Alas, had you a Brother once? [To Clarinda.]

Clar. Madam, I might have had : but he was lost e'er I was born.

Cleo. Ah! would my Silvio had been so. [Aside.]
By what strange Accident, Clarinda?

Dorm. Madam, I can inform you best.

[Puts herself between.]

Cleo. Do then, Dormida.

Dorm. Madam, you must know, my Lady Octavia, for that's her name, was in her Youth the very Flower of Beauty and Vertue : Oh such a Face and Shape ! had you but seen her— And tho I say it, Madam, I thought my self too somebody then.

Clar. Thou art tedious : Madam, 'tis true my Mother had the Reputation of both those Attractions, which gain'd her many Lovers : amongst the rest, Don Manuel, and Don Alonzo, were most worthy her Esteem.

Don. Ay, Madam, Don Alonzo, there was a Man for you, so obliging and so bountiful—Well, I'll give you Argu-

Argument of both to me : for you must know I was a Beauty then, and worth obliging. [Puts herself between.]
 And he was the Man my Lady lov'd, tho' Don Manuel were the richer : but to my own Story—

Cleo. Forward Clarinda,

Clar. But as it most times happens,
 We marry where our Parents like, not we ;
 My Mother was dispos'd of to Don Manuel.

Dor. Ay, Madam ; but had you seen Don Alonzo's Rage, and how my Lady took this Disappointment—But I who was very young, and very pretty, as I told you before—

Clar. Forbear, Madam ; 'tis true,
Alonzo was so far transported,
 That oft he did attempt to kill my Father ;
 But bravely tho', and still he was prevented :
 But when at the Intreaties of my Mother,
 The King confin'd my Father,
Alonzo then study'd a new Revenge ;
 And thinking that my Father's Life depended
 Upon a Son he had, scarce a Year old,
 He did design to steal him ; and one Evening,
 When with the Nurse and Maid he took the Air,
 This desperate Lover seiz'd the smiling Prize,
 Which never since was heard of.

Cleo. I guess the Grief the Parents must sustain.

Dor. It almost caus'd their Deaths ; nor did kind Heaven Supply them with another till long after,
 Unhappy this was born :
 Which just her Father liv'd to see, and dy'd. [Weeps.]
 Then she was Daughter, Son and Husband too,
 To her afflicted Mother : But as I told you, Madam, I was then in my Prime—

Clar. Now, Madam, judge what her Despair must be,
 Who is depriv'd of all her Joys in me. [Weeps.]

Cleo. Francisca, see who it is that knocks so hastily.
 [One knocks.]

Franc. Oh, Madam, 'tis Don Marcel leading a wounded Man.

Cleo. Oh my Fears, 'tis Silvio !

Franc.

Franc. 'Tis not Don Silvio.

Enter Marcel, leading Hippolyta wounded, followed by Alonzo and Pedro.

Cleo. Alas, what Youth is this you lead all bleeding?

Mar. One that deserves your Care; where's my Father?

Cleo. Not yet return'd.

Mar. 'Tis well; and you, Sir, I must confine till I know how to satisfy my Honour, and that of my wrong'd Sister.

[To Antonio

Ant. The holy Man will soon decide our Difference: Pray send for one, and reconcile us all.

Hip. I fear, Antonio, still thou dost dissemble.

Ant. So let me find Forgiveness when I die, If any fear of Death have wrought this change, But a pure Sense of all my Wrongs to thee, Knowing thy constant Love, and Virtue to me.

Mar. I will secure your fear—Francisca, send for Father Joseph to me, and conduct these Gentlemen to the Lodgings next the Garden.

[Exeunt Francisca, Antonio and Hippolyta.

Alon. Prithee Marcel, are thee and I awake, or do we dream? thou, that thou art in thy Father's House; and I, that I see those two fair Women there? Pray lovely Fugitive, how came you hither?

[To Clarinda.

Mar. I thought thou wert mistaken; 'Twas Silvio brought her hither, that false Man.

But how came you to know her?

Alon. Know her! 's'life I question my Sense.

Pray Lady, are you Flesh and Blood? [To Cleonte.

Cleo. Yes surely, Sir; for 'twere pity you should have bestow'd your Heart on a Shadow, and I well remember you gave it one of us last Night.

Alon. A Dream, a Dream! but are you indeed the same fair Person, and is this the same House too?

Cleo. I am afraid your Heart's not worth the keeping, since you took no better notice where you dispos'd of it.

Alon. Faith, Madam, you wrong a poor Lover, who has languish'd in search of it all this live-long day.

Cleo. Brother, I beseech you, receive the innocent Clarinda, who, I fear, will have the greatest Cause of Complaint against you. [To Marcel. Gives him to Clarinda.

Alon. But pray, fair one, let you and I talk a little about that same Heart you put me in mind of just now.

[To Cleonte, with whom he seems to talk.]

Ped. Surely that's my old Mistress Dormida; twenty years has not made so great an Alteration in that ill-favour'd Face of hers, but I can find a Lover there.

[Goes to her, they seem to talk earnestly, and sometimes pleasantly, pointing to Clarinda.]

Mar. Enough Clarinda: I'm too well convinc'd, Would thou hadst still remain'd a Criminal, Now how can I reward thy Faith and Love?

Clar. I know, Marcel, it is not in thy Power, Thy faithless Story I'm acquainted with.

Mar. Do not reproach me with my Shame, Clarinda. 'Tis true, to gain thee to consent to my Desires, I made an honourable Pretence of loving. Pardon a Lover all the ways he takes To gain a Mistress so belov'd and fair. But I have since repented of that Sin, And came last Night for thy Forgiveness too.

Ped. This is News indeed; 'tis fit I keep this Secret no longer from my Master. Don Manuel being dead, my Vow's expir'd. [Aside.] [Pedro goes to Alonzo.]

Clar. And do you mean no more to love me then?

Mar. In spite of me, above my Sense or Being.

Clar. And yet you'll marry Flavia.

Mar. Against my Will I must, or lose a Father.

Clar. Then I must die, Marcel.

Mar. Do not unman my Soul, it is too weak To bear the Weight of fair Clarinda's Tears. [Weeps.]

Alon. Why was this Secret kept from me so long?

Ped. I was oblig'd by Vow, Sir, to Don Alonzo, my dead Master, not to restore you till Don Manuel's Death; believing it a Happiness too great for his Rival, for so he was upon your Mother's score.

Alon. Have I a Mother living?

Ped. Here in Madrid, Sir, and that fair Maid's your Sister. [Pointing to Clarinda.]

Alon. I scarce can credit thee, but that I know thee honest.

Ped.

Ped. To confirm that belief, Sir, here are the Writings of twelve thousand Crowns a Year, left you by your Foster-Father the brave Alonzo, whose Name he gave you too. [Gives him Papers, he reads.]

Alon. I am convinc'd — How now Marcel, what all in Tears? why, who the Devil would love in earnest? Come, come, make me Judge between you.

Mar. You'll soon decide it then, my Heart's Clairinda's;

But my forc'd Vows are given to another.

Alon. Vows! dost think the Gods regard the Vows of Lovers? they are things made in necessity, and ought not to be kept, nor punish'd when broken; if they were — Heaven have mercy on me poor Sinner.

Enter Ambrosio.

Mar. My Father return'd!

[Bows, and goes to him, and then leads Alonzo to him.]
Sir, this is the gallant Man that was design'd to be your Son-in-Law.

Amb. And that you were not so, Sir, was my misfortune only.

Alon. I am glad to find it no slight to my Person, Or unknown Quality that depriv'd me of that Honour.

Mar. To convince you of that, Alonzo, I know my Father will bestow this other Sister on you; more fair and young, and equally as rich. [Ambrosio calls Marcel aside.]

Alon. How, his Sister! Fool, that I was, I could not guess at this; and now have I been lying and swearing all this while how much I lov'd her. Well, take one time with another, a Man falls into more Danger by this amorous Humour, than he gets good turns by it.

Mar. Pardon me, Sir, I knew not you had design'd her elsewhere — Dear Alonzo, my Father —

Alon. Ay, Sir, I am much oblig'd to him. Oh Pox would I were well with Euphemia.

Mar. I protest I could wish —

Alon. Ay, so could I, Sir, that you had made a better Judgment of my Humour: All must out, I have no other way to avoid this Compliment else. Why look ye Marcel — Your Sister is — Pox I am ill at Dissimulation, and therefore in plain Terms, I am to be married this very Evening to another.

Mar. This was happy, and has sav'd me an Excuse.

[Aside.
But are you in earnest, Sir? How is it possible, being so lately come into Madrid?

Alon. Destiny, Destiny, Marcel, which there was no avoiding, tho I mist of Hippolyta.

Mar. Who is it, prithee?

Alon. A Woman I hope, of which indeed I would have been better assur'd; but she was wilful. She's call'd Ephemia.

Mar. Our next Neighbour, the Daughter of old Carlo.

Alon. The same.

Mar. Thou art happy to make so good a Progress in so short a time, but I am——

Alon. Not so miserable as you believe. Come, come, you shall marry Clarinda.

Mar. 'Tis impossible.

Alon. Where's the hindrance?

Mar. Her want of Fortune; that's enough, Friend.

Alon. Stand by and expect the best—[Goes to Ambrosio.
Sir, I have an humble Suit to you.

Amb. I shall be infinitely pleas'd you could ask me any thing in my Power; but, Sir, this Daughter I had dispos'd of, before I knew you would have mist of Hippolyta.

Alon. Luckier than I expected.

[Aside
Sir, that was an Honour I could not merit, and am contented with my Fate: But my Request is, that you would receive into your Family a Sister of mine, whom I would bestow on Don Marcel.

Mar. Hah, what mean you, Sir? a Sister of yours?

Alon. Yes, she will not be unwelcome—This is she.

Amb. This is the Daughter to Ostavia—— Her Mother was a Lady whom once I did adore, and 'twas her fault she was not more happy with me, than with Don Manuel. Nor have I so wholly forgot that Flame, but I might be inclin'd to your Proposal: But, Sir, she wants a Fortune.

Alon. That I'll supply.

Mar. You supply, Sir? On what kind Score, I pray?

Alon.

Alon. That which you'll suffer without being jealous, when you shall know she is indeed my Sister.

Clar. How ! this brave Man my Brother ?

Alon. So they tell me, and that my Name is Manuel. Had you not such a Brother ?

Dor. Oh ye Gods, is this the little Manuel ?

Ped. Yes Dormida, and for a farther Proof see this.

[Opens his Master's Bosom, and shews a Crucifix.]

Dor. This I remember well, it is Don Manuel :

Pray let me look upon you : Just like my Lord——

Now may the Soul of Don Alonzo rest in Peace,

For making so hopeful a Man of you.

Alon. Amen. But, Sir, if you approve of my Sister, I'll make her as worthy of Marcel, as Flavia.

Amb. I've lost the Hopes of her——She's not to be reconcil'd. [Aside.]

Clarinda needs no more than to belong to you,

To make her valuable——and I consent with Joy.

[Gives her to Marcel.]

Mar. And I with Joys unutterable take her.

Alon. Pedro, there rests no more than that you wait on my Mother, and let her know all that has happen'd to my self and Sister, and that I'll pay my Duty to her e'er I sleep.

Dor. The very Joy to find her Son again, will get my Pardon too ; and then perhaps Pedro and I may renew our old Amours.

Alon. Sir, I have another Request to make.

Amb. You must command, Sir.

Alon. That is, that you will permit this fair Company to honour me this Evening at my Father-in-law's, Don Carlo.

Amb. How, has Don Carlo married the Lady Octavia ?

Alon. No, Sir, but a worse matter than that, I am to marry his Daughter.

Amb. Oh, Sir, Euphemia has too much Beauty and Virtue to make you doubt your Happiness.

Alon. Well, Sir, I must venture that. But your Company I'll expect, the Ladies may clap on their Vizards, and make a masquerading Night on't : tho' such Freedoms are not very usual in Spain, we that have seen the World, may absolve one another.

Amb. My Garden joins to that of Don Carlo, and that way we will wait on you, as soon as I have dispatcht a small Affair.

Aion. Your humble servant, Sir.

[Goes out; Ambrosio the other way.

Mar. Sister, go you and prepare my Father to receive Hippolyta, whilst I go see them married.

[Exeunt Cleonte and Clarinda.

[Marcel passing over the Garden, sees Silvio enter in Passion, follow'd by Francisca.

Silv. Do not Francisca—do not blow my Flame,
The Cure thou bring'st is much the greater Hell.

[Offers to go, but stops.

Mar. Ha, Silvio! unseen I'll hear the Business.

[Goes aside.

Silv. I would fain shun thee, but this impious Weight
Of Love upon my Soul hinders my flight:
I'm fixt—like conscious Guilt it keeps me here,
And I am now insensible of Fear.

Speak on, thou Messenger of sacred Love—speak on.

Franc. The fair Cleonte, Sir, whose Soul's inflam'd
No less than yours; tho with a virgin Modesty
She would conceal it, pitying now your Pain,
Has thro my Intercession—

Silv. Oh quickly speak! What Happiness design'd me?

Franc. To admit you, Sir, this Night into her Chamber.

Mar. Death to my Soul! What's this? [Aside.

Silv. Her Chamber? is that all? will that allay this Fe-
In my Blood—No, no, Francisca, (ver
'Tis grown too high for amorous Parleys only;
Her Arms, her charming Bosom, and her Bed,
Must now receive me; or I die, Francisca.

Franc. I mean no other, Sir; why can you think
A Maid in love as much as you can be,
Assisted with the silence of the Night,
(Which veils her Blushes too) can say—I dare not?
Or if she do, she'll speak it faintly o'er,
And even whilst she so denies will yield.
Go, go prepare your self for this Encounter,
And do not dally as you did to day,

And

And fright your Pleasure with the Name of Sister—

Mar. Oh cursed Witch! [Aside.]

Franc. What say you, Sir?

Silv. That Name has check'd my Joy—

And makes it strangely silent and imperfect. [Walks away.]

Franc. Why do you go, before you answer me?

[Follows him into the Garden.]

Mar. I'll follow him, and kill them.

[Comes out with a Dagger.]

Oh who would be allied unto a Woman,
Nature's loose Handy-Work? the slight Impleys
Of all her wanton Hours? —Oh I could rave now—
Abandon Sense and Nature.

Hence all considerate Thoughts, and in their Room,
Supply my Soul with Vengeance, that may prove Too great to be allay'd by Nature, or by Love.

[Goes into the Garden after them.]

Enter again Silvio melancholy, follow'd by Francisca.

Franc. But will you lose this Opportunity,
Her Lodgings too being so near your own?

Silv. Hell take her for her Wickedness.

Oh that ten thousand Mountains stood between us,
And Seas as vast and raging as her Lust,
That we might never meet—Oh perfect Woman!
I find there is no Safety in thy Sex;
No trusting to thy Innocence:

That being counterfeit, thy Beauty's gone,
Dropt like a Rose o'er-blown;
And left thee nothing but a wither'd Root,
That never more can bloom.

Franc. Alas, I fear I have done ill in this. [Aside.]

Silv. I now should hate her: but there yet remains
Something within, so strangely kind to her,
That I'm resolv'd to give her one proof more,
Of what I have vow'd her often; yes, I'll kill her—

Franc. How, kill her, Sir? Gods, what have I done!

[Aside.]

Silv. Yes, can I let her live, and say I lov'd her?
No, she shall tempt no more vain yielding Man.

Franc. Consider, Sir, it is to save your Life she does it.

Silv. My Life !

'Twere better she and I were buried
Quick in one Grave, than she should fall to this,
She has out-sinn'd even me in this Consent.

[Enter Marcel from amongst the Trees softly with his Dagger behind Silvio

Mar. Oh, here they are——

Franc. My Lord, defend your self, you are undone else.

Silv. Hah, Marcel!

[Draws.

Franc. Help, help.

Mar. Hell take thy Throat.

Enter Ambrosio, Clarinda, Cleonte, and the rest of the House.

Amb. Hold Villain, hold.

How dar'st thou thus rebel—ungrateful Wretch ?

Mar. This cause, Sir, is so just, that when you hear it,
You'll curse me, that I let him live thus long :
He loves my Sister, Sir ; and that leud Woman
Repays his lustful Flame, and does this Evening
Invite him to her Bed——Oh, let me kill him.

[Offers to go to him.

Amb. That he should love Cleonte I'll allow,
And her returns too, whilst they are innocent.

Mar. But, Sir, he does not love her as a Sister.

Amb. If that be all his Crime, I still forgive him.

Silv. Yes, Sir, 'tis true, I do adore my Sister,
But am so far from that foul thing he nam'd,
That could I think I had a secret Thought

That tended that way, I would search it——thus—— [Goes to stab himself.

Cleo. What mean you by this Desperation ?

Silv. Oh, take away this Woman from my sight.

[Pointing to Cleonte.

For she will finish what this has ill begun.

[Holds his Dagger up.

Franc. Thus low, Sir, for your Mercy I must kneel ;

(Kneels.

Which yet I must despair of, when you know
How very wicked I have been.

[Weeps.

Cleonte, Sir, is chaste as Angels are.

Silv.

Silv. My Sister innocent ! how soon I do believe thee !

Franc. Yes, Sir, nor knows of that vile Message which I brought you.

Silv. What Devil set thee on to tempt me then ?

Franc. The worst of Devils, hopeless, raging Love ;
And you my Lord, were the unhappy Object.

Mar. Oh sinful Woman, what was thy Design ?

Cleo. What means all this ? [Aside.]

Franc. At least to have enjoy'd him once ; which done,
Thinking that it had been the fair Cleonte,
It would have made him hate her.

Silv. Should all thy other Sins be unrepented,
The Piety of this Confession saves thee.

Pardon, Cleonte, my rude Thoughts of thee,

[Kneels, she takes him up.]

I had design'd to have kill'd thee——

Had not this Knowledge of thy Innocence
Arriv'd before I had seen thee next.

And Sir, your Pardon too I humbly beg ; [To Ambrosio.]
With license to depart, I cannot live

Where I must only see my beauteous Sister ;
That Torment is too great to be supported,
That still must last, and never hope a Cure.

Amb. Since you are so resolv'd, I will unfold
A Secret to you, that perhaps may please you.

Silv. Low at your Feet I do implore it, Sir. [Kneels.]

Amb. Your Quality forbids this Ceremony.

[Takes him up.]

Silv. How, Sir !

Amb. Your Father was the mighty Favourite, the Count d'Olivarez ; your Mother, Spain's celebrated Beauty, Donna
Margarita Spiniola, by whom your Father had two natural Sons, Don Louis de Harro, and your self Don Ro- derigo. The Story of his Disgrace, you know, with all the World ; 'twas then he being banisht from the Court, he left you to my Care then very young. I receiv'd you as my own, and as more than such educated you, and as your Father oblig'd me to do, brought you always up about their Majesties ; for he hoped, if you had Beauty and Merits, you might inherit part of that Glory he lost.

Mar. This is wondrous.

Amb. This Truth you had not known so soon, had you not made as great an Interest at Court as any Man so young ever did, and if I had not acquitted my self in all Points as became the Friend of so great and brave a Man, as Count d'Olivarez: the Fortune he left you was two Millions of Crowns.

Silv. Let me embrace your feet for this blest News. Is not the fair Cleonte then my Sister?

Amb. No, Sir, but one whom long since I design'd your Wife, if you are pleas'd to think her worthy of it.

[Offers her.]

Silv. Without her, Sir, I do despise my Being; and do receive her as a Blessing sent from Heaven to make my whole Life happy.

Amb. What say you, Cleonte?

Cleo. Sir, I must own a Joy greater than is fit for a Virgin to express.

Mar. Generous Don Roderigo, receive me as your Friend, and pardon all the Fault you found in me as a Brother.

[Embraces him.]

Silv. Be ever dear unto my Soul, Marcel.

Mar. Now is the time to present Hippolyta and Antonio to my Father, whilst his Humour is so good. And you, dear Brother, I must beg to join with us in so just a Cause.

Silv. You need not doubt my Power, and less my Will.

Mar. Do you prepare him then, whilst I bring them in: for by this I know my Confessor has made them one.

[Exit Marcel.]

Silv. Sir, I've a Suit to you.

Amb. You cannot ask what I can deny.

Silv. Hippolyta, Sir, is married to Antonio, And humbly begs your Pardon for her past fault.

Amb. Antonio and Hippolyta! oh name them not.

Enter Antonio and Hippolyta, a Fryar, and Marcel.

Mar. Pray, Sir, forgive them, your Honour being safe, Since Don Antonio has by marrying her, Repair'd the Injury he did us all, Without which I had kill'd him.

Amb. Thou art by Nature more severe than I,

And

And if thou think'st our Honour satisfy'd,
I will endeavour to forget their Faults.

Ant. We humbly thank you, Sir, and beg your Blessing:
At least bestow it on Hippolyta;

For she was ever chaste, and innocent,
And acted only what became her Duty;
Since by a sacred Vow she was my Wife.

Amb. How cam'st thou then to treat her so inhumanly?

Ant. In pure revenge to Don Marcel her Brother,
Who forc'd my Nature to a stubbornness,
Which whilst I did put on, I blush to own;
And still between Thoughts so unjust, and Action,
Her Virtue would rise up and check my Soul,
Which still secur'd her Fame.

Hip. And I have seen in midst of all thy Anger,
Thou'st turn'd away, and chang'd thy Words to Sighs;
Dropt now and then a Tear, as if ashamed,
Not of thy Injuries, but my little Merit.

Amb. How weak and easy Nature makes me—Rise,
I must forgive you both.

Come, Sir, I know you long to be secur'd
Of what you say you love so much, Cleonte.

Franc. But, Madam, have you fully pardon'd me?

Silv. We will all join in your behalf, Francisca.

Cleo. I can forgive you, when you can repent. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II. Carlo's House.

Enter Olinda and Dorice.

Olin. But is the Bride-Chamber dress'd up, and the Bed made as it ought to be?

Dor. As for the making, 'tis as it use to be, only the Velvet Furniture.

Olin. As it use to be? Oh ignorance! I see these young Wenches are not arriv'd yet to bare Imagination: Will
I must order it my self, I see that.

Dor. Why, Olinda, I hope they will not go just to Bed upon their marrying, without some signs of a Wedding, as Fiddles, and Dancing, and so forth.

Olin. Good Lord, what Joys you have found out for the

the first Night of a young Bride and Bridegroom. Fiddles and Dancing, ha, ha, ha ! they'll be much merrier by themselves, than Fiddles and Dancing can make them, you Fool.

Enter Haunce and Gload.

Bless me ! what is't I see ! [Stares on Haunce.

Hau. Why ! what the Devil means she ? look about me Gload, and see what I have that's so terrible.

Olin. Oh, I have no Power to stir, it is a Sprite.

Hau. What does she mean now, Gload ?

Glo. She desires to be satisfy'd whether we be Flesh and Blood, Sir, I believe.

Hau. Do'st see nothing that's Devil-wise about me ?

Glo. No, indeed, Sir, not I.

Hau. Why then the Wench is tippled, that's all, a small Fault.

Olin. O, in the name of Goodness, Sir, what are you ?

Glo. Ay, Ay, Sir, 'tis that she desires to know.

Olin. Who are you, Sir ?

Hau. Why who should I be, but he that's to be your Master anon ?

Glo. Yes, who should he be but Myn heer Haunce van Ezel ?

Olin. What, did you come in at the Door ?

Hau. Yes marry did I ; what do you think I creep in like a Lapland Witch through the Key-holes ?

Dor. Nay, nay, this cannot be the Bridegroom.

Olin. No, for 'tis but a moment since we left him, you know, in my Lady's Chamber.

Hau. Very drunk, by this good Light.

Dor. And therefore it cannot be Myn heer Haunce.

Hau. What the Devil will you persuade me out of my Christian Name ?

Olin. The Priest has yet scarce done his Office, who is marrying him above to my Lady.

Hau. Salerimente, here's brave doing, to marry me, and never give me notice ; or thou art damnable drunk, or very mad.

Glo. Yes, and I am married to you too, am I not ?

[To Olinda
Olin]

Olin. You? we know neither of you.

Hau. Ha, ha, ha, here's a turn for you.

Enter Carlo.

Car. Why, Olinda, Dorice, Olinda, where be these mad Girls? 'tis almost Night, and nothing in Order. Why, what now? Who's here?

Hau. So the old Man's posselt too—Why, what a Devil ails you, Sir? [Goes roughly to him.]

Car. From whence come you, Sir? and what are you?

Hau. Glood, let's be gone, for we shall be transmigrated into some strange Shapes anon, for all the House is enchanted. Who am I, quoth ye? before I came you all knew me; and now you are very well acquainted with me, you have forgot me.

Car. If you be my Son Haunce, how came you here?

Hau. If I be your Son Haunce, where should I be else?

Car. Above with your Wife, not below amongst the Maids.

Hau. What Wife? what Wife? Ha, ha, ha, do not provoke me, lest I take you a slap in the Face, I tell you that now.

Car. Oh, I find by his Humour this is he, and I am finely cheated and abus'd. I'll up and know the Truth.

[Exit.]

Hau. And so will I.

[Follows.]

Glo. Why, but Mistress Olinda, you have not, indeed, forgot me, have you?

Olin. For my Lover I have, but perhaps I may call you to mind, as my Servant hereafter.

Glo. Since you are so proud and so fickle, you shall stand hereafter as a Cypher with me; and I'll begin upon a new Account with this pretty Maid: what say you forsooth?

Dor. I am willing enough to get a Husband as young as I am.

Glo. Why, that's well said, give your Hand upon the Bargain—God-a-Mercy, with all my Heart i'faith.

[Scene draws off, discovers a Chamber. Enter A-lonzo, Euphemia, and Louis; to them Carlo, Haunce, and the rest. Car

Car. Oh, I am cheated, undone, abus'd.

Lov. How, Sir, and where?

[Haunce sees Alonzo drest like him, goes gazing about him, and on himself, calling Gload to do the same.

Car. Nay, I know not how, or where; but so I am; and when I find it, I'll turn you all out of Doors. Who are you, Sir? quickly tell me.

Alon. If you be in such haste, take the shortest Account, I am your Son.

Car. I mean, Sir, what's your Name, and which of you is Haunce van Exel?

Hau. Ay, which of us is Haunce van Exel? tell us that, Sir; we shall handle ye i'faith now——

Alon. He, Sir, can best inform you.

[Pointing to Haunce.

Hau. Who, I! I know no more than the great Turk, not I, which of us is me; my Hat, my Feather, my Suit, and my Garniture all over faith now; and I believe this is me, for I'll trust my Eyes before any other Sense about me. What say'st thou now, Gload? guess which of us is thy own natural Master now if thou canst.

Glo. Which, Sir?——why——let me see——let me see, [Turns them both about.

fakes I cannot tell, Sir.

Car. Come, come, the Cheat is plain, and I'll not be fobb'd off, therefore tell me who you are, Sir.

[To Alonzo.

Alon. One that was very unwilling to have put this Trick upon you, if I could have persuaded Euphemia to have been kind on any other Terms, but nothing would down with her but Matrimony.

Car. How long have you known her?

Alon. Faith, Sir, too long by at least an Hour.

Car. I say again, what are you, Sir?

Alon. A Man I am, and they call me Alonzo.

Car. How! I hope not the great fighting Colonel, whom my Son sery'd as a Voluntier in Flanders.

Alon. Even he, Sir.

Car. Worse and worse, I shall grow mad, to think that in spite of all my Care, Euphemia should marry with so notorious a Man of War.

Hau.

Hau. How ! is this Alonzo, and am I cozen'd ? pray tell me truly, are you not me indeed ?

Alon. All over, Sir, only the inside a little less Fool.

Hau. So here's fine juggling——are not you a rare Lady, hah ?

[To Euphemia ; crys.

Euph. I assure you, Sir, if this Man had not past for you, I had never had him.

Hau. Had him ! Oh, you are a flattering thing, I durst ha' sworn you could no more ha' been without me, than a Barber's Shop without a Fiddle, so I did : Oh, what a damnable Voyage have I back again without a Wife too—— [Crys again.

Lov. If that be all, we'll get you one before you go ; that shall be my care.

Hau. A Pox of your care : well, I will get my self most soundly drunk to Night, to be reveng'd of these two damnable Dons. Come Gloat, let us about something in order to't.

[Exit.

Euph. Pray, Sir, be persuaded, he's worth your owning.

Car. Tell not me of owning ; what Fortune has he ?

Lov. His Horse and Arms, the Favour of his Prince, and his Pay.

Car. His Horse and Arms I wholly dislike, as Implements of War ; and that same Princely Favour, as you call it, will buy no Lands ; and his Pay he shall have when he can get it.

Lov. But, Sir, his coming to Madrid was to take possession of a Place the Prince has promis'd him.

Car. Has promis'd him ? what ! I shall marry my Daughter to the Promises of e'er a Prince in Christendom, shall I ? No, no ; Promises, quoth ye ?

Alon. Well, Sir, will this satisfy you ?

[Gives him a Parchment.

Euph. If it should not, let us consider what next to do.

Alon. No consideration, Euphemia ; not so much as that we are married, lest it lessen our Joys.

Car. Twelve thousand Crowns a Year !—— Sir, I cry you mercy, and wish you joy with my Daughter.

Lov.

Lov. So his Courage will down with him now.

Alon. To satisfy you farther, Sir, read this.

[Gives him another Paper.]

And now, Euphemia, prepare your self to receive some gallant Friends of mine, whom you must be acquainted with, and who design to make a merry Night on't.

Euph. A whole Night, Alonzo?

Alon. By no means Euphemia, for the first too, which if the thoughts of its being part of my Duty donot hinder, will be pleasant enough to me.

Car. So considerable an Office at Court too!—
Let me embrace you, Sir; and tell you how happy I am in so brave Son-in-law.

Alon. With that assurance, Sir, I'll take a more than ordinary freedom with you, and teach Euphemia a franker way of living, than what a native Spaniard would have allow'd her.

Car. She shall be what sort of Wife you'll have her.

Enter Servant, after a noise of Musick.

Alon. What Musick's that?

Serv. It waits upon some Ladies and Gentlemen who ask for you, Sir.

Alon. Wait them in, they are those Friends of mine I told you of. [He goes and brings them in.]

Enter Marcel and Clarinda, Silvio and Cleonte, Antonio and Hippolyta, Dormida and Francisca; all salute Euphemia.

Enter Haunce and Gload in Masquerade to the Company, Olinda and Dorice masked.

Hau. Well, the Devil's in't if we shall not appear ridiculous enough, hah, Gload?

Glo. Ay, Sir, the more ridiculous the better.

Hau. I was always of that mind.—Ha, ha, Boys, who be all these Dons and Donna's?—Harkye Lovis, I hope the Wife you promis'd me is amongst these fair Ladies, for so I guess they are both fair, and Ladies.

Lov. You guess right, Sir.

Alon. Now Ladies and Gentlemen command your Musick, and do what likes you best.

Lov. Here's the Lady I recommend to you, take her, Sir, be thankful. [Gives him Olinda.]

Olin. This is the Fool that I am to manage.

Dor. And this is my Lot. [Takes Gload.]

[Musick plays, they all dance.]

Lov. There is within a young Father ready to join your Hands: take this opportunity, and make sure of a Wife.

Hau. I warrant you, Sir.

[Exeunt Haunce, Olinda, Gload, and Dorice. Enter Pedro.]

Ped. Your Mother, Sir, whom I found more dead than living, for the loss of your Sister, was very near dying out-right with Joy, to hear of your Arrival, and most impatiently expects you.

Dorm. And are we all forgiven, Pedro?

Ped. Yes, you and I are like to be Fellow-Servants together again, Dormida.

Dorm. And Fellow-Lovers too I hope, Pedro.

Ped. The Devil's in't if Age have not allay'd Flames of all sorts in thee; but if you contribute to my allowance—

Dorm. Thou know'st I could never keep any thing from thee, Pedro.

Alon. Come Ladies, there is a small Banquet attends you in the next Room.

Silv. We'll wait on you, Sir.

[Enter Haunce, Gload, Olinda, and Dorice.]

Hau. Hold, hold, and give me Joy too, for I am married, if she has not mistaken her Man again, and I my Woman.

Olin. No, you are the Man I look for, and I no Cheat, having all about me that you look for too, but Money. [Discovers her self.]

Alon. How, Olinda!

Olin. Yes, indeed, Sir, I serv'd my Lady first, and then thought it no Offence to take the Reward due to that Service.

Hau. Here's a Spanish Trick for you now, to marry a Wife, before one sees her.

Euph. What, Dorice married too?

Dor. After your Example, Madam.

Glo. Yes, indeed, forsooth, and I have made bold too after the Example of my Master.

Han. Now do they all expect I should be dissatisfied ; but, Gentlemen, in sign and token that I am not, I'll have one more merry Frisk before we part, 'tis a witty Wench ; faith and troth, after a Month 'tis all one who's who ; therefore come on Gload. [They dance together.]

Alon. Monsieur Hancke, I see you are a Man of Gallantry. Come let us in, I know every Man here desires to make this Night his own, and sacrifice it to Pleasure.

*The Ladies too in Blushes do confess
Equal Desires ; which yet they'll not confess.
Theirs, tho less fierce, more constant will abide ;
But ours less current grow the more they're try'd.*

EPILOGUE.

HISS 'em, and cry 'em down, 'tis all in vain,
 Incorrigible Scriblers can't abstain :
 But impudently i'th' old Sin engage ;
 Tho' doom'd before, nay banish'd from the Stage.
 Whilst sad Experience our Eyes convinces, (cess ;
 That damn'd their Plays which hang'd the German Prin-
 And we with Ornament set off a Play,
 Like her drest fine for Execution-day.
 And faith, I think, with as small hopes to live ;
 Unless kind Gallants the same Grace you'd give
 Our Comedy as Her ; beg a Reprieve.
 Well, what the other miss, let our Scribe get,
 A Pardon, for she swears she's the less Cheat.
 She never gull'd you Gallants of the Town
 Of Sum above four Shillings, or half a Crown
 Nor does she, as some late great Authors do,
 Bubble the Audience, and the Players too.
 Her humble Muse soars not in the High-rod
 Of Wit transverst, or Baudy A-la-mode ;
 Yet hopes her plain and easy Style is such,
 As your high Censures will disdain to touch.
 Let her low Sense creep safe from your Bravadoes,
 Whilst Rotas and Cabals aim at Granadoes.

THE ROUND-HEADS: OR, THE Good Old Cause.

PROLOGUE,

Spoken by the Ghost of Hewson ascending from Hell dress'd as a Cobler.

A M the Ghost of him who was a true Son
Of the late Good old Cause, ycleped Hewson,
Rous'd by strange Scandal from th' eternal (Flame

With noise of-Plots, of wondrous Birth and Name,
Whilst the sly Jesuit robs us of our Fame.
Can all their Conclave, tho with Hell th' agree,
Act Mischief equal to Presbytery?

Look

Look back on our Success in Forty One,
 Were ever braver Villanies carried on,
 Or new ones now more hopefully begun?
 And shall our Unsuccess our Merit lose,
 And make us quit the Glory of our Cause?
 No, hire new Villains, Rogues without Remorse,
 And let no Law nor Conscience stop your Course;
 Let Politicians order the Confusion,
 And let the Saints pay pious Contribution.
 Pay those that rail, and those that can delude
 With scribbling Nonsense the loose Multitude.
 Pay well your Witnesses, they may not run
 To the right Side, and tell who set them on.
 Pay 'em so well, that they may ne'er recant,
 And so turn honest merely out of want;
 Pay Furies, that no formal Law may harm us,
 Let Treason be secur'd by Ignoramus.
 Pay Bully Whig, who loyal Writers hang,
 And honest Tories in Effigie hang:
 Pay those that burn the Pope to please the Fools,
 And daily pay Right Honourable Tools;
 Pay all the Pulpit Knaves that Treason brew,
 And let the zealous Sisters pay 'em 100;
 Justices, bound by Oath and Obligation,
 Pay them the utmost Price of their-Damnation,
 Not to disturb our useful Congregation.
 Nor let the Learned Rabble be forgot,
 Those pious Hands that crown our hopeful Plot.
 No, modern Statesmen cry, 'tis Lunacy
 To barter Treason with such Rogues as we.
 But subtiler Oliver did not disdain
 His mightier Politicks with ours to join.
 I for all Uses in a State was able,
 Cou'd mutiny, cou'd fight, hold forth, and cobble.
 Your lazy Statesman may sometimes direct,
 But your small busy Knaves the Treason act.

ACT I. SCENE I.

The Street.Enter three Soldiers, and Corporal Right.

Cor.  H Rogue, the World runs finely round, the business is done.

1 Sold. Done! the Town's our own, my fine Rascal.

2 Sold. We'll have Harlots by the Belly, Sirrah.

1 Sold. Those are Commodities I confess I wou'd fain be trucking for—but no words of that Boy.

Cor. Stand, who goes there?

[To them a Joyner and a Felt-maker.]

1 Sold. Who are you for?—hah!

Joy. Are for, Friend? we are for Gad and the Lord Fleetwood.

1 Sold. Fleetwood! knock 'em down, Fleetwood that sniveling Thief?

Felt. Why Friends. who are ye for?

Cor. For! who shou'd we be for, but Lambert, Noble Lambert? Is this a time o'th' day to declare for Fleetwood, with a Pox? indeed, i'th' Morning 'twas a Question had like to have been decided with push of Pike.

2 Sold. Dry blows wou'd ne'er ha' don't, some must have sweat Blood for't; but——'tis now decided.

Joy. Decided!

2 Sold. Yes, decided Sir, without your Rule for't.

Joy. Decided! by whom Sir? by us the Free-born Subjects of England, by the Honourable Committee of Safety, or the Right Reverend City? without which, Sir, I humbly conceive, your Declaration for Lambert is illegal, and against the Property of the People.

2 Sold. Plain Lambert; here's a saucy Dog of a Joyner; Sirrah, get ye home, and mind your Trade, and save the Hangman a labour.

Joy.

Joy. Look ye, Friend, I fear no Hang-man in Christendom; for Conscience and Publick Good, for Liberty and Property, I dare as far as any Man,

2 Sold. Liberty and Property, with a Pox, in the Mouth of a Joyner: you are a pretty Fellow to settle the Nation——what says my Neighbour Felt-maker?

Felt. Why verily, I have a high respect for my honourable Lord Fleetwood, he is my intimate Friend; and till I find his Party the weaker, I hope my Zeal will be strengthened for him.

2 Sold. Zeal for Fleetwood! Zeal for a Halter, and that's your due: Why, what has he ever done for you? Can he lead you out to Battle? Can he silence the very Cannon with his Eloquence alone?——Can he talk——or fight——or——

Felt. But verily he can pay those that can, and that's as good——and he can pray——

2 Sold. Let him pray, and we'll fight, and see whose business is done first; we are for the General who carries Charms in every Syllable; can act both the Soldier and the Courtier, at once expose his Breast to Dangers, for our sakes——and tell the rest of the pretended Slaves a fair Tale, but hang 'em sooner than trust 'em.

1 Sold. Ay, ay, a Lambert, a Lambert, he has Courage, Fleetwood's an Ass to him.

Felt. Hum——here's Reason Neighbour. [To the Joyner.

Joy. That's all one, we do not act by Reason.

Cor. Fleetwood's a Coward.

2 Sold. A Blockhead.

1 Sold. A sniveling Fool; a General in the Hangings, no better.

Joy. What think you then of Vane?

2 Sold. As of a Fool, that has dreamt of a new Religion, and is only fit to reign in the Fifth Monarchy he preaches so much up; but no King in this Age.

Felt. What of Hastlerig?

2 Sold. A Hangman for Hastlerig. I cry, No, no, One and all, a Lambert, a Lambert; he is our General, our Protector, our Keiser, our——even what he pleases himself.

1 Sold. Well, if he pleases himself, he pleases me.

2 Sold. He's our Rising Sun, and we'll adore him, for the Speaker's Glory's set.

Cor.

Cor. At nought, Boys ; how the Rogue look'd when his Coach was stop'd !

Joy. Under favour, what said the Speaker ?

2 Sold. What said he ? prithee what cou'd he say that we wou'd admit for Reason ? Reason and our Bus'ness are two things : Our Will was Reason and Law too, and the Word of Command lodg'd in our Hilt's ; Cobbet and Duckenfield shew'd 'em Cockpit-Law.

Cor. He understood not Soldier's Dialect ; the Language of the Sword puzzled his Understanding ; the Keeness of which was too sharp for his Wit, and overrul'd his Robes—therefore he very mannerly kiss'd his Hand, and wheel'd about——

2 Sold. To the place from whence he came.

Cor. And e'er long to the place of Execution.

1 Sold. No, damn him, he'll have his Clergy.

Joy. Why, is he such an Infidel to love the Clergy ?

Cor. For his Ends ; but come let's go drink the General's Health, Lambert ; not Fleetwood, that Son of a Custard, always quaking.

2 Sold. Ay, ay, Lambert I say—besides he's a Gentleman.

Felt. Come, come, Brother Soldier, let me tell you, I fear you have a Stewart in your Belly.

Cor. I am sure you have a Rogue in your Heart, Sirrah, which a Man may perceive thro that sanctified Dog's Face of yours ; and so get ye gone ye Rascals, and delude the Rabble with your canting Politicks.

[Every one beats 'em.

Felt. Nay, an you be in Wrath, I'll leave you.

Joy. No matter Sir, I'll make you know I'm a Free-born Subject, there's Law for the Righteous Sir, there's Law.

[Goes out.

Cor. There's Halters ye Rogues——

2 Sold. Come Lads, let's to the Tavern, and drink Success to Change ; I doubt not but to see 'em chop about, till it come to our great Hero again——Come to the Tavern. [Going out, are met by Loveless and Freeman, who enter, and stay the Corporal.

Cor. I'll follow ye Comrade presently.

[Ex. the rest of Soldiers.]

—— Save ye noble Colonel.

Free. How is't Corporal ?

Cor. A brave World, Sir, full of Religion, Knavery, and Change : we shall shortly see better Days.

Free. I doubt it, Corporal.

Cor. I'll warrant you Sir,—but have you had never a Billet, no Present, nor Love-remembrance to day, from my good Lady Desbro ?

Free. None, and wonder at it. Hast thou not seen her Page to day ?

Cor. Faith Sir, I was imploy'd in Affairs of State, by our Protector that shall be, and could not call.

Free. Protector that shall be ! who's that, Lambert, or Fleetwood, or both ?

Cor. I care not which, so it be a Change ; but I mean the General ;—but Sir, my Lady Desbro is now at Morning-Lecture here hard by, with the Lady Lambert.

Lov. Seeking the Lord for some great Mischiefe or other.

Free. We have been there, but could get no opportunity of speaking to her—Loveless, know this Fellow,—— he's honest and true to the Hero, tho' a Red-Coat. I trust him with my Love, and have done with my Life.

Lov. Love ! Thou canst never make me believe thou art earnestly in love with any one of that damn'd Reformation.

Free. Thou art a Fool ; where I find Youth and Beauty, I adore, let the Saint be true or false.

Lov. 'Tis a Scandal to one of us to converse with 'em ; they are all sanctify'd Jilts ; and there can neither be Credit nor Pleasure in keeping em company ; and 'twere enough to get the Scandal of an Adherer to their devilish Politicks, to be seen with 'em.

Free. What their Wives ?

Lov. Yes, their Wives. What seest thou in 'em but Hypocrisy ? Make love to 'em, they answer in Scripture.

Free. Ay, and lie with you in Scripture too. Of all Whores, give me your zealous Whore ; I never heard a Woman talk much of Heaven, but she was much for the Creature

Creature too. What do'st think I had thee to the Meeting for?

Love. To hear a Rascal hold forth for Bodkins and Thimbles, Contribution, my beloved! to carry on the good Cause, that is, Roguery, Rebellion, and Treason, profaning the sacred Majesty of Heaven, and our glorious Sovereign.

Free. But—were there not pretty Women there?

Lov. Damn 'em for sighing, groaning Hypocrites.

Free. But there was one, whom that handsome Face and Shape of yours, gave more occasion for sighing, than any Mortification caus'd by the Cant of the Lay-Elder in the half Hogs-Head: Did'st thou not mind her?

Lov. Not I, damn it, I was all Rage; and hadst not thou restrain'd me, I had certainly pull'd that Rogue of a Holder forth by the Ears from his sanctify'd Tub. 'Sdeath he hum'd and haw'd all my Patience away, nosed and snivel'd me to Madness. Heaven! That thou shouldst suffer such Vermin to infect the Earth, such Wolves amongst thy Flocks, such Thieves and Robbers of all Laws of God and Man, in thy Holy Temples. I rave to think to what thou'rt fall'n, poor England!

Free. But the she Saint——

Lov. No more; were she as fair as Fancy could imagine, to see her there wou'd make me loath the Form; she that can listen to the dull Nonsense, the bantering of such a Rogue, such an illiterate Rascal, must be a Fool, past sense of loving, Freeman.

Free. Thou art mistaken. — But, didst thou mind her next the Pulpit?

Lov. A Plague upon the whole Congregation: I minded nothing but how to fight the Lord's Battle with that damn'd sham Parson, whom I had a mind to beat.

Free. My Lady Desbro is not of that Persuasion, but an errant Heroick in her Heart, and feigns it only to have the better occasion to serve the Royal Party. I knew her, and lov'd her before she married.

Lov. She may chance then to be fav'd.

Free. Come, I'll have thee bear up briskly to some one of 'em, it may redeem thy Sequestration; which, now thou thou see'st no hopes of compounding, puts thee out of Patience.

Lov. Let 'em take it, and the Devil do 'em Good with it; I scorn it should be said I have a Foot of Land in this ungrateful and accursed Island; I'd rather beg where Laws are obey'd, and Justice perform'd, than be powerful where Rogues and base-born Rascals rule the roaft.

Free. But suppose now, dear Loveless, that one of the Wives of these Pageant Lords should fall in love with thee, and get thy Estate again, or pay thee double for't?

Lov. I wou'd refuse it.

Free. And this for a little dissembled Love, a little Drudgery—

Lov. Not a Night by Heaven—not an Hour—no not a single Kiss. I'd rather make love to an Incubus.

Free. But suppose 'twere the new Protectress her self, the fine Lady Lambert?

Lov. The greatest Devil of all; damn her, do'st think I'll cuckold the Ghost of old Oliver?

Free. The better; there's some Revenge in't; do'st know her?

Lov. Never saw her, nor care to do.

Cor. Colonel, do you command me any thing?

Free. Yes, I'll send thee with a Note—Let's step into a Shop and write it; Loveless stay a moment, and I'll be with thee.

[Ex. Free. and Corporal.]

Enter L. Lambert, L. Desbro, Gilliflower, Page with great Bibles, and Footmen. Loveless walks sullenly, not seeing 'em. [L. Lambert's Train carried.]

L. Lam. O, I'm impatient to know his Name; ah, Desbro, he betray'd all my Devotion; and when I would have pray'd, Heav'n knows it was to him, and for him only.

L. Des. What manner of Man was it?

L. Lam. I want Words to describe him; not tall, nor short; well made, and such a Face—— Love, Wit and Beauty revel'd in his Eyes; from whence he shot a thousand winged Darts that pierc'd quite through my Soul.

L. Des. Seem'd he a Gentleman?

L. Lam.

L. Lam. A God ! altho his outside were but mean ; but he shone thro like Lightning from a Cloud, and shot more piercing Rays.

L. Desf. Staid he long ?

L. Lam. No, methought he grew displeas'd with our Devotion, and seem'd to contradict the Parson with his angry Eyes. A Friend he had too with him, young and handsom, who seeing some Disorder in his Actions, got him away. — I had almost forgot all Decency, and started up to call him ; but my Quality, and wanting something to excuse that Fondness, made me decline with very much ado.

Gill. Heavens, Madam, I'll warrant they were Heroicks.

L. Lam. Heroicks !

Gill. Cavaliers, Madam, of the Royal Party.

L. Desf. They were so, I knew one of 'em.

L. Lam. Ah Desbro, do'st thou ?

Ah Heav'ns, that they should prove Heroicks !

L. Desf. You might have known that by the Conquest ; I never heard any one o' t' other Party ever gain'd a Heart ; and indeed, Madam, 'tis a just Revenge, our Husbands make Slaves of them, and they kill all their Wives.

[Lov. sees 'em, and starts.

Lov. Hah, what have we here? — Women — faith, and handsome too — I never saw a Form more excellent ; who e'er they are, they seem of Quality. — By Heav'n, I cannot take my Eyes from her. [Pointing to L. Lamb.

L. Lam. Ha, he's yonder, my Heart begins to fail, my trembling Limbs refusing to support me — His Eyes seem fix'd on mine too ; ah, I faint — [Leans on Desf.

Gill. My Lady's Coach, William — quickly, she faints.

Lov. Madam, can an unfortunate Stranger's aid add any thing to the recovery of so much Beauty ?

[Bowing, and holding her.

L. Lam. Ah, wou'd he knew how much ! [Aside.

Gill. Support her, Sir, till her Ladyship's Coach comes — I beseech ye.

Lov. Not Atlas bore up Heaven with greater Pride.

L. Lam. — I beg your Pardon, Sir, for this Disorder,

That has occasion'd you so great a Trouble——
 You seem a Gentleman——and consequently
 May need some Service done you; name the way,
 I shall be glad to let you see my Gratitude.

Lov. If there be ought in me, that merits this amazing Favour from you, I owe my Thanks to Nature that endow'd me with something in my Face that spoke my Heart.

L. Lam. Heaven! How he looks and speaks——
[To Desbro, aside.]

L. Des. Oh, these Heroicks, Madam, have the most charming Tongues.

L. Lam. Pray come to me——and ask for any of my Officers, and you shall have admittance——

Lov. Who shall I ask for, Madam? for I'm yet ignorant to whom I owe for this great Bounty.

L. Lam. Not know me! Thou art indeed a Stranger,
 I thought I'd been so elevated above the common Crowd, it had been visible to all Eyes who I was.

Lov. Pardon my Ignorance.

My Soul conceives ye all that Heaven can make ye,
 Of Great, of Fair and Excellent;
 But cannot guess a Name to call you by
 But such as would displease ye——

My Heart begins to fail, and by her Vanity
 I fear she's one of the new Race of Quality:

——But be she Devil, I must love that Form. [Aside.]

L. Lam. Hard Fate of Greatness, we so highly elevated
 Are more expos'd to Censure than the little ones,
 By being forc'd to speak our Passions first.

——Is my Coach ready?

Page. It waits your Honour.

L. Lam. I give you leave to visit me——ask for the General's Lady, if my Title be not by that time alter'd.

Lov. Pistols and Daggers to my Heart——'tis so.

L. Lam. Adieu, Sir.

[Ex. all but Lov. who stands musing.
Enter Freeman.]

Free. How now, what's the matter with thee?

Lov. Prithce wake me, Freeman.

Free.

Free. Wake thee!

Lov. I dream; by Heaven I dream;
Nay, yet the lovely Phantom's in my View.
Oh! wake me, or I sleep to perfect Madness.

Free. What ail'st thou? what did'st dream of?

Lov. A strange fantastick Charmer,
A thing just like a Woman Friend;
It walkt and lookt with wondrous Majesty,
Had Eyes that kill'd, and Graces deck'd her Face;
But when she talk'd, mad as the Winds she grew.

Chimera in the form of Angel, Woman!

Free. Who the Devil meanest thou?

Lov. By Heav'n I know not, but, as she vanish'd hence, she bad me come to the General's.

Free. Why this is she I told thee ey'd thee so at the Conventicle; 'tis Lambert, the renown'd, the famous Lady Lambert—Mad call'st thou her? 'tis her ill acted Greatness, thou mistak'st; thou art not us'd to the Page-antry of these Women yet; they all run thus mad; 'tis Greatness in 'em, Loveless.

Lov. And is thine thus, thy Lady Desbro?

Free. She's of another Cut, she married, as most do, for Interest—but what—thou't to her?

Lov. If Lightning stop my way:—

Perhaps a sober View may make me hate her. [Exeunt.]

Enter Lambert and Whitlock.

Whit. My Lord, now is your time, you may be King;
Fortune is yours, you've time it self by th' Fore-lock.

Lam. If I thought so, I'd hold him fast by Heaven.

Whit. If you let slip this Opportunity, my Lord, you are undone—Aut Caesar, aut Nullus.

Lam. But Fleetwood—

Whit. Hang him, soft Head.

Lam. True, he's of an easy Nature; yet if thou didst but know how little Wit governs this mighty Universe, thou wou'dst not wonder Men should set up him.

Whit. That will not recommend him at this Juncto, tho he's an excellent Tool for your Lordship to make use of; and therefore use him, Sir, as Cataline did Lentulus; drill the dull Fool with Hopes of Empire on, and that all tends to his Advancement only: The Blockhead will believe the Crown his own: What other Hopes could make him ruin Richard, a Gentleman of Qualities a thousand times beyond him?

Lam. They were both too soft; an ill Commendation for a General, who should be rough as Storms of War it self.

Whit. His time was short, and yours is coming on; Old Oliver had his.

Lam. I hate the Memory of that Tyrant Oliver.

Whit. So do I, now he's dead, and serves my Ends no more. I lov'd the Father of the great Heroick, whilst he had Power to do me good: he failing, Reason directed me to the Party then prevailing, the Fag-end of the Parliamnet: 'tis true, I took the Oath of Allegiance, as Oliver, your Lordship, Tony, and the rest did, without which we could not have sat in that Parliament; but that Oath was not for our Advantage, and so better broke than kept.

Lam. I am of your Opinion, my Lord.

Whit. Let Honesty and Religion preach against it. But how cou'd I have serv'd the Commons by deserting the King? how have show'd my self loyal to your Interest, by fooling Fleetwood, in the deserting of Dick; by dissolving the honest Parliament, and bringing in the odious Rump? how cou'd I have flatter'd Ireton, by telling him Providence brought things about, when 'twas mere Knavery all; and that the Hand of the Lord was in't, when I knew the Devil was in't? or indeed, how cou'd I now advise you to be King, if I had started at Oaths, or prefer'd Honesty or Divinity before Interest and the Good Old Cause?

Lam. Nay 'tis most certain, he that will live in this World, must be endu'd with the three rare Qualities of Dissimulation, Equivocation, and mental Reservation.

Whit. In which Excellency, Heav'n be prais'd, we out-do the Jesuits.

Enter Lady Lambert.

L. Lam. I'm glad to see you so well employ'd, my Lord,

Lord, as in Discourse with my Lord Whitlock, he's of our Party, and has Wit.

Whit. Your Honour graces me too much.

Lam. My Lord, my Lady is an absolute States-woman.

L. Lam. Yes, I think things had not arriv'd to this exalted height, nor had you been in prospect of a Crown; had not my Politicks exceeded your meaner Ambition.

Lam. I confess, I owe all my good Fortune to thee.

Enter Page.

Page. My Lord, my Lord Wariston, Lord Hewson, Colonel Cobbet, and Colonel Duckenfield desire the Honour of waiting on you.

L. Lam. This has a Face of Greatness——let 'em wait a while i'th' Antichamber.

Lam. My Love, I would have 'em come in.

L. Lam. You wou'd have 'em! you wou'd have a Fool's Head of your own; pray let me be Judge of what their Duty is, and what your Glory: I say I'll have 'em wait.

Page. My Lord Fleetwood too is just alighted, shall he wait too, Madam?

L. Lam. He may approach: and d'ye hear——put on your fawning Looks, flatter him, and profess much Friendship to him, you may betray him with the more facility.

Whit. Madam, you counsel well. [Ex. Page.]

Page re-enters with Lord Fleetwood.

Lam. My good Lord, your most submissive Servant.

Whit. My gracious Lord, I am your Creature—— your Slave——

Fleet. I profess ingeniously, I am much engag'd to you, my good Lords; I hope things are now in the Lord's handling, and will go on well for his Glory and my Interest, and that all my good People of England will do things that become good Christians.

Whit. Doubt us not, my good Lord; the Government cannot be put into abler Hands, than those of your Lordship; it has hitherto been in the hard Clutches of Jews, Infidels, and Pagans.

Fleet. Yea, verily, Abomination has been in the Hands of Iniquity.

Lam. But, my Lord, those Hands, by my good Conduct, are now cut off, and our Ambition is, your Lordship wou'd take the Government upon you.

Fleet. I profess, my Lord, by yea and nay, I am ashamed of this Goodness, in making me the Instrument of saving Grace to this Nation; 'tis the great Work of the Lard.

L. Lam. The Lard! Sir, I'll assure you the Lard has the least Hand in your good Fortune; I think you ought to ascribe it to the Cunning and Conduct of my Lord here, who so timely abandon'd the Interest of Richard.

Fleet. Ingeniously I must own, your good Lord can do much, and has done much; but 'tis our Method to ascribe all to the Powers above.

L. Lam. Then I must tell you, your Method's an ungrateful Method.

Lam. Peace, my Love.

Whit. Madam, this is the Cant we must delude the Rabble with.

L. Lam. Then let him use it there, my Lord, not amongst us, who so well understand one another.

Lam. Good Dear, be pacified—and tell me, shall the Gentlemen without have Admittance?

L. Lam. They may.

[Page goes out.]

Enter Hewson, Desbro, Duckenfield, Wariston, and Cobbet.

War. Guds Benizon light on you, my gued Loords, for this Day's Work; Madam, I kifs your white Honds.

Duc. My Lord, I have not been behind-hand in this Day's turn of State.

Lam. 'Tis confess'd, Sir; what would you infer from that?

Duc. Why, I wou'd know how things go; who shall be General, who Protector?

Hewf. My Friend has well translated his meaning.

L. Lam. Fy, how that filthy Cobler Lord betrays his Function.

Duc. We're in a Chaos, a Confusion, as we are.

Hewf. Indeed the Commonwealth at present is out at Heels, and wants underlaying.

Cob.

Cob. And the People expect something suddenly from us.

Whit. My Lords and Gentlemen, we must consider a while.

War. Bread a gued there's mickle Wisdom i'that, Sirs.

Duc. It ought to be consulted betimes, my Lord, 'tis a matter of Moment, and ought to be consulted by the whole Committee.

Lam. We design no other, my Lord, for which Reason at three a Clock we'll meet at Wallingford House.

Duc. Nay, my Lord, do but settle the Affair, let's but know who's our Head, and 'tis no matter.

Hewf. Ay, my Lord, no matter who; I hope 'twill be Fleetwood, for I have the length of his Foot already.

Whit. You are the leading Men, Gentlemen, your Voices will soon settle the Nation.

Duc. Well, my Lord, we'll not fail at three a Clock.

Des. This falls out well for me; for I've Business in Smithfield, where my Horses stand; and verily, now I think on't, the Rogue the Ostler has not given 'em Oates to day; Well, my Lords, farewell; if I come not time enough to Wallingford House, keep me a Place in the Committee, and let my Voice stand for one, no matter who.

War. A gued Mon I's warrant, and takes muckle Pains for the Gued o'th' Nation, and the Liberty o'th Mobily—The Diel confound 'em aud.

Lam. Come, my Lord Wariston, you are a wise Man, what Government are you for?

War. Ene tol what ya please my gued Loord.

[Takes him aside.

Lam. What think you of a single Person here in my Lord Fleetwood?

War. Marry Sir, and he's a brave Man, but gen I may counfel, tak't for yar sel my gued Loord, ant be gued for him, 'tis ene gued for ya te.

Lam. But above half the Nation are for him.

War. Bread a gued, and I's for him then.

Fleet. The Will of the Lard be done; and since 'tis his Will, I cannot withstand my Fate——ingeniously.

Whit. My Lord Wariston, a Word——what if Lam- bert

bert were the Man?

[Takes him aside.

War. Right Sir, Wons and ya have spoken aud; he's a brave Mon indeed gen I's have any Judgment.

Whit. So I find this Property's for any use. [Aside.

Lam. My Lord, I perceive Heaven and Earth conspire to make you our Prince.

Fleet. Ingeniously, my Lords, the Weight of three Kingdoms is a heavy Burden for so weak Parts as mine: therefore I will, before I appear at Council, go seek the Lard in this great Affair; and, if I receive a Revelation for it, I shall with all Humility espouse the Yoke, for the Good of his People and mine; and so Gad with us, the Commonwealth of England.

[Exeunt Fleet. Desbro, Wariston, Duc. Cob. Hewf. and Whit.

L. Lam. Poor deluded Wretch, 'tis not yet come to that.

Lam. No my dear, the Voice will go clearly for me; what with Bribes to some, Hypocrisy and Pretence of Religion to others, and promis'd Preferments to the rest, I have engag'd 'em all.

L. Lam. And will you be a King?

Lam. You think that's so fine a thing—but let me tell you, my Love, a King's a Slave to a Protector, a King's ty'd up to a thousand Rules of musty Law, which we can break at pleasure; we can rule without Parliaments, at least chuse whom we please, make 'em agree to our Proposals, or set a Guard upon 'em, and starve 'em till they do.

L. Lam. But their Votes are the strangest things—that they must pass for Laws; you were never voted King.

Lam. No, nor care to be: The sharpest Sword's my Vote, my Law, my Title. They voted Dick should reign, where is he now? They voted the great Heroicks from the Succession; but had they Arms or Men, as I have, you shou'd soon see what wou'd become of their Votes——No my Love! 'tis this——must make me King.

[His Sword.

Let Fleetwood and the Rump go seek the Lard,
My Empire and my Trust is in my Sword.

ACT II. SCENE I.

A Chamber of State.

Enter L. Lambert, Gilliflower, and Women-servants.

L. Lam. Gilliflower, has none been here to ask for any of my People, in order to his approach to me?

Gill. None, Madam.

L. Lam. Madam! How dull thou art? wo't never learn to give me a better Title, than such an one as foolish Custom bestows on every common Wench?

Gill. Pardon my Ignorance, Madam.

L. Lam. Again Madam?

Gill. Really, Madam, I shou'd be glad to know by what other Title you wou'd be distinguish'd?

L. Lam. Abominable dull! Do'st thou not know on what score my Dear is gone to Wallingford House?

Gill. I cannot divine, Madam.

L. Lam. Heaven help thy Ignorance! he's gone to be made Protector, Fool, or at least a King, thou Creature; and from this Day I date my self her Highness.

Gill. That will be very fine indeed, an't please your Highness.

L. Lam. I think 'twill sute better with my Person and Beauty than with the other Woman—what d'ye call her? Mrs. Cromwell—my Shape—and Gate—and my Humour, and my Youth have something more of Grandeur, have they not?

Gill. Infinitely, an't please your Highness.

Enter Page.

Page. Madam, a Man without has the boldness to ask for your Honour.

L. Lam. Honour, Fool!

Gill. Her Highness, Blockhead.

Page. Saucily prest in, and struck the Porter for denying him entrance to your——Highness.

L. Lam. What kind of Fellow was't?

Page. A rude, rough, hectoring Swash, an't please your Highness; nay, and two or three times, Gad forgive me, he swore too.

L. Lam.

L. Lam. It must be he.

[Aside.]

Page. His Habit was something bad, and Cavalierish—
I believe 'twas some poor petitioning, begging Tory, who having been sequester'd, wou'd press your Highness for some Favour.

L. Lam. Yes, it must be he——ah foolish Creature!
and can he hope Relief, and be a villanous Cavalier? out upon 'em, poor Wretches——you may admit him, for I long to hear how one of those things talk.

Gill. Oh most strangely, Madam——an please your Highness I shou'd stay.

Enter Loveless.

L. Lam. 'Tis he, I'll swear, Gilliflower, these Heroicks are punctual——how now, your Bus'ness with us, Fellow?

Lov. My Bus'ness, Madam?——

L. Lam. Hast thou ever a Petition to us?

Lov. A Petition, Madam?——Sure this put-on-Greatness is to amuse her Servants, or has she forgot that she invited me? or indeed forgot me?——

[Aside.]

L. Lam. What art thou?

Page. Shall we search his Breeches, an't please your Highness, for Pistol, or other Instruments?

L. Lam. No Boy, we fear him not, they say the Powers above protect the Persons of Princes.

Lov. Sure she's mad, yet she walks loose about,
And she has Charms even in her raving Fit.

L. Lam. Answer me. What art thou?——

How shall I get my Servants hence with Honour? [Aside.]

Lov. A Gentleman——

That could have boasted Birth and Fortune too,
Till these accursed Times, which Heaven confound,
Razing out all Nobility, all Virtue,
Has render'd me the rubbish of the World;
Whilst new rais'd Rascals, Canters, Robbers, Rebels,
Do lord it o'er the Free-born, Brave and Noble.

L. Lam. You're very confident, know you to whom you speak? but I suppose you have lost your Estate, or some such trifling thing, which makes you angry.

Lov. Yes, a trivial Estate of some five and twenty hundred Pound a Year: but I hope to see that Rogue of a Lord

Lord reduc'd to his Cobler's-Stall again, or more deserv'dly hang'd, that has it.

L. Lam. I thought 'twas some such Grievance—but you must keep a good Tongue in your Head, lest you be hang'd for Scandalum Magnatum—there's Law for ye, Sir.

Lov. No matter, then I shall be free from a damn'd Commonwealth, as you are pleas'd to call it, when indeed 'tis but a mungrel, mangy, Mock-Monarchy.

L. Lam. Is it your business, Sir, to rail?

Lov. You rais'd the Devil, Madam.

Page. Madam, shall I call your Highness's Guards, and secure the Traitor?

L. Lam. No, that you may see how little I regard or fear him; leave us all——

[Ex. all but Gill.]

We'll trust our Person in his Hands alone——

—Now, Sir—Your Business? [Smilingly approaches him.]

Lov. Madam, I waited here by your Commands.

L. Lam. How shall I tell him that I love him, Gilliflower?

Gill. Easily, Madam, tell him so in plain English. Madam, 'tis great; Women of your exalted height ever speak first; you have no Equals dare pretend to speak of Love to you.

L. Lam. Thou art i'th' right——Do'st know my Quality, and thy own Poverty? And hast thou nothing to ask that I may grant?

Lov. Sure she loves me! and I, frail Flesh and Blood, cannot resist her Charms; but she's of the damn'd Party.

[Aside.]

L. Lam. Are all your Party, Sir, so proud?

Lov. But what have I to do with Religion! Is Beauty the worse, or a kind Wench to be refus'd for Conventickling? She lives high on the Spoils of a glorious Kingdom, and why may not I live upon the Sins of the Spoiler?

[Aside.]

L. Lam. Sir—you are poor!

Lov. So is my Prince; a Plague on the occasion.

L. Lam. I think you are——no Fool too.

Lov. I wou'd I were, then I had been a Knave, had thriv'd, and possibly by this time had been tugging for rifed Crowns and Kingdoms.

L. Lam.

L. Lam. This Satir ill befits my present Bus'ness with you—you—want some Necessaries—as Clothes, and Linen too; and 'tis great pity so proper a Man shou'd want Necessaries. Gilliflower—take my Cabinet Key, and fetch the Purse of Broad-pieces that lies in the lower Drawer; 'tis a small Present, Sir, but 'tis an Earnest of my farther Service. [Gill. goes out and returns with a Purse.]

Lov. I'm angry, that I find one Grain of Generosity in this whole Race of Hypocrites. [Aside.]

L. Lam. Here, Sir, 'tis only for your present use; for Clothes—three hundred Pieces; let me see your sweet—

Lov. Stark mad, by this good Day.

L. Lam. Ah Gilliflower! How prettily those Cavalier things charm; I wonder how the Powers above came to give them all the Wit, Softness, and Gallantry—whilst all the great ones of our Age have the most slovenly, ungrateful, dull Behaviour; no Air, no Wit, no Love; nor any thing to please a Lady with.

Gill. Truly Madam, there's a great Difference in the Men; yet Heaven at first did its part, but the Devil has since so over-done his, that what with the Vizor of Sanctity, which is the gadly Sneer, the drawing of the Face to a prodigious length, the formal Language, with a certain Twang through the Nose, and the pious Gogle, they are fitter to scare Children than beget love in Ladies.

Lov. You hit the Character of your new Saint.

L. Lam. And then their Dress, Gilliflower.

Gil. Oh! 'Tis an Abomination to look like a Gentleman; long Hair is wicked and cavalierish, a Periwig is flat Popery, the Disguise of the Whore of Babylon; bandsoin Clothes, or lac'd Linen, the very Tempter himself, that debauches all their Wives and Daughters; therefore the diminutive Band, with the Hair of the Reformation Cut, beneath which a pair of large sanctify'd Soufes appear, to declare to the World they had hitherto escap'd the Pillory, tho' deserv'd it as well as Pryn.

L. Lam. Have a care what you say, Gilliflower.

Gil. Why, Madam, we have no Informers here.

Enter Page.

Page. Madam, here's Old Noll's Wife desires Admittance to your Hon—your Highness.

L. Lam. Bid the poor Creature wait without, I'll do her what Good I can for her Husband's sake, who first infus'd Politicks into me, by which I may boast I have climb'd to Empire.

Lov. So, her Madnefs runs in that Vein I see. [Aside.]

Gil. Alack, Madam, I think she's coming.

Crom. without] Does she keep State in the Devil's Name, and must I wait?

L. Lam. Heavens! I shall be scandalized by the Godly. Dear Gilliflower, conceal my Cavalier; I would not have a Cavalier seen with me for all the World—Step into my Cabinet.

[Ex. Gil. and Lov.]

Enter L. Cromwel, held back by a Man—to them Gilliflower.

Crom. Unhand me, Villain—'twas not long since a Rudeness, Sir, like this had forfeited thy Head.

L. Lam. What wou'd the Woman?

Crom. The Knave, the perjurd Villain thy Husband, by th' Throat; thou proud, imperious Baggage, to make me wait; whose Train thou hast been proud to bear—how durst thou, after an Affront like this, trust thy false Face within my Fingers reach? that Face, that first bewitch'd the best of Husbands from me, and tempted him to sin.

Gil. I beseech your Highness retire, the Woman's mad.

Crom. Highness in the Devil's Name, sure 'tis not come to that; no, I may live to see thy Cuckold hang'd first, his Politicks are yet too shallow, Mistress. Heavens! Did my Husband make him Lord for this? raise him to Honour, Trusts, Commands, and Counsels, To ruin all our Royal Family, Betray young Richard, who had reign'd in Peace But for his Perjuries and Knaveries; And now he sooths my Son-in-law, soft Fleetwood, With empty hopes of Pow'r, and all the while To make himself a King: No, Minion, no; I yet may live to see Thy Husband's Head o'th' top of Westminster, Before I see it circled in a Crown.

L. Lam. I pity the poor Creature.

Crom. Ungrateful Traytor as he is, Not to look back upon his Benefactors;

But he, in lieu of making just Returns,
 Reviles our Family, profanes our Name,
 And will in time render it far more odious
 Than ever Needham made the great Heroicks.

L. Lam. Alas, it weeps, poor Woman!

Crom. Thou ly'st, false Strumpet, I scorn to shed a Tear,

For ought that thou canst do or say to me ;
 I've too much of my Husband's Spirit in me.
 Oh, my dear Richard, hadst thou had a Grain on't,
 Thou and thy Mother ne'er had fall'n to this.

Gil. His Father sure was seeking of the Lard when he was got.

Enter L. Fleetwood, her Train born up.

Crom. Where is this perjur'd Slave, thy Wittal Lord ?
 Dares he not shew his Face, his guilty Face,
 Before the Person he has thus betray'd ?

L. Fleet. Madam, I hope you mistake my honour'd Lord Lambert, I believe he designs the Throne for my dear Lord.

Crom. Fond Girl, because he has the Art of fawning,
 Dissembling to the height, can sooth and smile,
 Profess, and sometimes weep : ———
 No, he'll betray him, as he did thy Brother ;
Richard the Fourth was thus deluded by him.
 No, let him swear and promise what he will,
 They are but steps to his own ambitious End ;
 And only makes the Fool, thy credulous Husband,
 A silly deluded Property.

Enter Fleetwood.

Fleet. My honour'd Mother, I am glad to find you here ; I hope we shall reconcile things between ye. Verily ye should live in Brotherly Love together ; come, ingeniously, you shall be Friends, my Lady Mother.

Crom. Curse on th' occasion of thy being a Kin to me.

Fleet. Why, an please ye, forsooth, Madam ?

Crom. My Daughter had a Husband,
 Worthy the Title of my Son-in-Law ;
Ireton, my best of Sons ; he'd Wit and Courage,
 And with his Counsels, rais'd our House to Honours,
 Which

Which thy impolitick Easiness pulls down :
And whilst you shou'd be gaining Crowns and Kingdoms,
Art poorly couzening of the World with fruitless Prayers.

Fleet. Nay, I'll warrant you, Madam, when there is any gadly Mischief to be done, I am as forward as the best ;
but 'tis good to take the Lard along with us in every thing.
I profess ingeniously, as I am an honest Man, verily—— ne'er stir——

I shall act as becomes a good Christian.

Crom. A good Coxcomb.

Do'st thou not see her reverend Highness there,
That Minion now assumes that glorious Title
I once, and my Son Richard's Wife enjoy'd,
Whilst I am call'd the Night-mare of the Commonwealth ?
But wou'd I were, I'd so hag-ride the perjur'd Slaves,
Who took so many Oaths of true Allegiance
To my great Husband first, and then to Richard——
Who, whilst they reign'd, were most illustrious,
Most high and mighty Princes ; whilst fawning Poets Write Panegyricks on 'em ; and yet no sooner was the wondrous Hero dead, but all his glorious Titles fell to Monster of Mankind, Murderer of Piety, Traitor to Heaven and Goodness.

Fleet. Who calls him so ? Pray take their Names down : I profess ingeniously, forsooth Madam, verily I'll order 'em, as I am here I will.

Crom. Thou, alas ! they scorn so poor a thing as thou.

Fleet. Do they ingeniously ? I'll be even with 'em, forsooth Mother, as I am here I will, and there's an end on't.

Crom. I wou'd there were an end of our Disgrace and Shame,

Which is but just begun, I fear.
What will become of that fair Monument
Thy careful Father did erect for thee, [To L. Fleetwood.
Yet whilst he liv'd, next to thy Husband Ireton,
Lest none shou'd do it for thee after he were dead ;
The Malice of proud Lambert would destroy all.

Fleet. I profess, Madam, you mistake my good Lord Lambert, he's an honest Man, and fears the Lard ; he tells me I am to be the Man ; verily he does after all's done.

Crom.

Crom. Yes, after all's done, thou art the Man to be pointed at.

Fleet. Nay, ingeniously, I scorn the Words, so I do: I know the great Work of Salvation to the Nation is to be wrought by me, verily.

Crom. Do, cant on, till Heaven drop Kingdoms in thy Mouth: Dull, silly Sot, thou Ruin of our Interest; thou fond, incorrigible, easy Fool.

Enter Page.

Page. My Lord, the Committee of Safety waits your coming.

Fleet. Why, law you now, forsooth—I profess verily, you are ingeniously the hardest of Belief—tell the Honourable Lords I'm coming: Go, Lady-mother, go home with my Wife; and verily you'll see things go to your wish—I must to Coach.

L. Fleet. Madam, your humble Servant. [To La. Lam.

Fleet. Honour'd Lady, I kiss your Hands.

[Exeunt Crom. Fleet. and L. Fleet.

Enter Loveless.

Lov. Was this the thing that is to be Protector?
This little sniveling Fellow rule three Kingdoms?
But leave we Politicks, and fall to Love,
Who deals more Joys in one kind happy moment
Than Ages of dull Empire can produce.

L. Lam. Oh Gods! shall I who never yielded yet,
But to him to whom three Kingdoms fell a Sacrifice;
Surrender at first Parley?

Lov. Perhaps that Lover made ye gayer Presents,
But cou'd not render you a Heart all Love,
Or Mind embaras'd in Affairs of Blood.
—I bring no Guilt to fright you from my Embraces,
But all our Hours shall be serene and soft.

L. Lam. Ah, Gilliflower, thy Aid, or I am lost;
Shall it be said of me in after Ages,
When my Fame amongst Queens shall be recorded,
That I, ah Heavens! regardless of my Country's Cause;
Espous'd the wicked Party of its Enemies,
The Heathenish Heroicks? ah, defend me!

Lov. Nay——by all that's——

L. Lam.

L. Lam. Ah hold! Do not profane my Ears with Oaths or Excretions, I cannot bear the Sound.

Lov. Nay, nay—by Heav'n I'll not depart your Lodgings, till that soft Love that plays so in your Eyes give me a better Proof——by——

L. Lam. Oh hold, I die, if you proceed in this Abomination.

Lov. Why do you force me to't? d'ye think to put me off with such a Face—such Lips—such Smiles—such Eyes, and every Charm—You've made me mad, and I shall swear my Soul away, if disappointed now.

Gil. Ah, save the Gentleman's Soul, I beseech ye, Madam.

L. Lam. I'm much inclin'd to Acts of Piety—— And you have such a Power, that howe'er I incommode my Honour—— [Leaning on him, smiling. He goes to lead her out, Enter La. Desbro.

—Desbro here! How unseasonably she comes?

L. Des. Cry mercy, I'll withdraw a while.

L. Lam. Ah, Desbro! thou art come in the most unlucky Minute——I was just on the point of falling—— As thou say'st, these Heroicks have the strangest Power——

L. Des. I never knew a Woman cou'd resist 'em.

L. Lam. No marvel then, our Husbands use 'em so, betray 'em, banish 'em, sequester, murder 'em, and every way disarm 'em——

L. Des. But their Eyes, Madam.

L. Lam. Ay, their Eyes, Desbro; I wonder our Lords shou'd take away their Swords, and let 'em wear their Eyes.

—L. Des. I'll move it to the Committee of Safety, Madam, those Weapons should be taken from 'em too.

L. Lam. Still they'll have some to be reveng'd on us.

L. Des. Ay, so they will; My Lord says, a Cavalier is a kind of Hydra, knock him o'th' Head as often as you will, he has still one to peep up withal.

Enter Page.

Page. Madam, here's Mr. Freeman to speak with your Honour.

Lov. That's a Friend of mine, Madam, and 'twou'd be unnecessary he saw your Highness and I together: let us withdraw——

L. Lam. Withdraw! why, what will Desbro say?

Des. O Madam, I know your Virtue and your Piety too well to suspect your Honour wrongfully: 'tis impossible a Lady that goes to a Conventicle twice a Day, besides long Prayers and loud Psalm-singing, shou'd do any thing with an Heroick against her Honour. Your known Sanctity preserves you from Scandal—— But here's Freeman——

[Puts 'em in.]

Enter Freeman.

Free. So, Madam——you are very kind——

L. Des. My charming Freeman, this tedious Day of Absence has been an Age in love. How hast thou liv'd without me?

Free. Like one condemn'd, sad and disconsolate, And all the while you made your Husband happy.

L. Des. Name not the Beastly Hypocrite, thou know'st I make no other use of him, But a dull Property to advance our Love.

Free. And 'tis but Justice, Maria, he sequester'd me of my whole Estate, because, he said, I took up Arms in Ireland, on Noble Ormond's Side; nay, hir'd Rogues, perjurd Villains——Witnesses with a Pox, to swear it too; when at that time I was but Eight Years old; but I escap'd as well as all the Gentry and Nobility of England. To add to this, he takes my Mistress too.

L. Des. You mistake, my lovely Freeman; I married only thy Estate, the best Composition I cou'd make for thee, and I will pay it back with Interest too.

Free. You wou'd suspect my Love then, and swear that all the Adoration I pay you, were, as we do to Heav'n, for Interest only.

L. Des. How you mistake my Love, but do so still, so you will let me give these——Proofs of it. [Gives him Gold.]

Free. Thus, like Atlante, you drop Gold in my Pursuit to Love, I may not over-take you:

What's this to giving me one happy minute?

Take back your Gold, and give me currant Love,

The Treasure of your Heart, not of your Purse——

When shall we meet, Maria?

L. Des. You know my leisure Hours are when my Honourable Lord has business in Affairs of State, or at his Prayers; from which long-winded Exercise I have of late withdrawn myself: three Hours by the Clock he prays extempore, which is, for National and Household Blessings: For the first——'tis to confound the Interest of the King, that the Lord wou'd deliver him, his Friends, Adherers and Allies, wheresoever scatter'd about the Face of the whole Earth, into the Clutches of the Righteous: Press 'em, good Lord, even as the Vintager doth the Grape in the Wine-Press, till the Waters and gliding Channels are made red with the Blood of the Wicked. [In a Tone.]

Free. And grant the Faithful to be mighty, and to be strong in Persecution; and more especially, ah! I beseech thee confound that malignant Tory Freeman——that he may never rise up in judgment against thy Servant, who has taken from him his Estate, his Sustenance and Bread; give him Grace of thy infinite Mercy, to hang himself, if thy People can find no zealous Witnesses to swear him to the Gallows legally. Ah, we have done very much for thee Lord, thou shou'd'st consider us thy Flock, and we shou'd be as good to thee in another thing. [In a Tone.]

L. Des. Thou hit'st the zealous Twang right; sure thou hast been acquainted with some of 'em.

Free. Damn 'em, no; what honest Man wou'd keep 'em Company, where harmless Wit and Mirth's a Sin, laughing scandalous, and a merry Glass Abomination.

L. Des. Yes, if you drink Healths my wicked Brother; otherwise, to be silently drunk, to be as abusive and satirical as you please, upon the Heroicks, is allowable——for laughing, 'tis not indeed so well; but the precise Sneer and Grin is lawful; no swearing indeed, but lying and dissimulation in abundance. I'll assure you, they drink as deep, and entertain themselves as well with this silent way of leud Debauchery, as you with all your Wit and Mirth, your Healths of the Royal Family.

Free. Nay, I confess, 'tis a great Pleasure to cheat the World.

L. Des.

312 The ROUND-HEADS; or,

L. Def. 'Tis Power, as divine Hobbes calls it.

Free. But what's all this to Love? Where shall we meet anon?

L. Def. I'll tell you, what will please you as well—Your Friend is within with her Highness that shall be, if the Devil and her Husband's Politicks agree about the matter.

Free. Ha, has my cautious Railer manag'd matters so slyly?

L. Def. No, no, the matter was manag'd to his Hand; you see how Heav'n brings things about, for the Good of your Party; this Business will be worth to him at least a thousand Pound a year, or two, well manag'd——But see, my Lady's Woman.

Gil. Oh Madam, my Lord——

[Running cross the Stage into her Lady's Chamber.]

Free. Death, how shall I bring my Friend off? he'll certainly be ruin'd.

Enter Gill, Lov. and Lady Lam.

Gill. Madam, he's coming up.

Lov. Madam, for my self I care not, but am much concern'd for you. [L. Lam. takes two Papers out of her Pocket, and gives 'em to Lov. and Free.]

L. Lam. Here, take these two Petitions, each of you one——Poor Fellows——you may be gone, your Petitions will not be granted.

Enter Lambert.

Lam. How now, my Dear, what Petitions?—— Friends, what's your Bus'ness?

L. Lam. 'Tis enough we know their Business, Love, we are sufficient to dispatch such Suiters, I hope.

Lam. Pardon me, my Dear, I thought no harm; but I saw you frown, and that made me concern'd.

L. Lam. Frown! 'Twou'd make any Body frown, to hear the Impudence of Gentlemen, these Cavaliers——wou'd you think it my Dear, if this Fellow has not the Impudence to petition for the Thirds of his Estate again, so justly taken from him for bearing Arms for the Man?—

L. Def. Nay, I'm inform'd, that they, but two Nights ago, in a Tavern, drunk a Health to the Man too.

Lam.

Lam. How durst you, Sirrah, approach my Lady with any such saucy Address, you have receiv'd our Answer.

Lov. Death, I have scarce Patience. [Aside.]

Free. We knew, my Lord, the Influence your Ladies have over you, and Women are more tender and compassionate naturally than Men; and Sir, 'tis hard for Gentlemen to starve.

L. Lam. Have you not able Limbs? can ye not work?

Lov. Persons of our Education work!

Lam. Starve or beg then.

L. Lam. Education! why, I'll warrant there was that young Creature they call the Duke of Glocester, was as well educated as any Lad in the Parish; and yet you see he should have been bound Prentice to a Handy-Crafts Trade, but that our Lords could not spare Money to bind him out, and so they sent him to beg beyond Sea.

Lov. Death, I shall do Mischief: not all the Joy she gave me but now, can atone for this Blasphemy against the Royal You h. [Aside.]

Free. Patience—Well, my Lord, we find you are obdurate, and we'll withdraw.

Lam. Do so: And if you dare presume to trouble us any more, I'll have you whip'd d'ye hear.

L. Des. Madam, I'll take my leave of your Ladyship.

[Ex. Lov. Free. and L. Des.]

L. Lam. My Lord, 'twas I that ought to threaten 'em—but you're so forward still—what makes you from the Committee?

Lam. I left some Papers behind.

L. Lam. And they'll make use of your Absence to set up Fleerwood King.

Lam. I'll warrant ye my Dear.

L. Lam. You'll warrant! you are a Fool, and a Coxcomb; I see I must go my self, there will be no Bus'nets done till I thunder 'em together: They want Old Oliver amongst 'em, his Arbitrary Nod cou'd make ye all tremble; when he wanted Power or Money, he need but cock in Parliament, and lay his Hand upon his Sword, and cry, I must have Money, and had it, or kick'd ye all out of Doors : And you are all mealy mouth'd, you cannot cock for a Kingdom.

Lam. I'll warrant ye Dear, I can do as good a thing for a Kingdom.

L. Lam. You can do nothing as you shou'd do't : You want Old Oliver's Brain, Old Oliver's Courage, - and Old Oliver's Counsel : Ah, what a politick Fellow was little Sir Anthony ! What a Head-piece was there ! What a plaguy Fellow Old Thurlo, and the rest ! But get ye back, and return me Protector at least, or never hope for Peace again.

Lam. My Soul, trouble not thy self, go in——

*With mine no Power can equal be,
And I will be a King to humour thee.* [Exeunt.]

A C T III. S C E N E I.

A Council-Chamber, great Table, Chairs, and Papers.

Enter two Clerks, who lay Papers in Order, and Door-keeper.

Door. COME, haste, haste, the Lords are coming— keep back there, room for the Lords, room for the honourable Lords : Heav'n bless your Worships Honours.

Enter Lambert, Fleetwood, Whitlock, Wariston, discoursing earnestly ; to them Duckenfield, Cobbet, Hewson, Desbro, and others ; Duck. takes Wariston by the Hand, and talks to him.

War. Bread a gued Gentlemen, I's serv'd the Commonwealth long and faithfully ; I's turn'd and turn'd to aud Interest and aud Religions that turn'd up Trump, and wons a me, but I's get naught but Bagery by my Sol ; I's noo put in for a Pansion as well as rest o ya Loones.

Cob. What we can serve you in, my Lord, you may command.

Duc. And I too, my Lord, when the Government is new moulded.

War. Wons, Sirs, and I's sa moold it, 'twas ne'er sa mooulded sin the Dam boon'd the Head on't.

Duc. I know there are some ambitious Persons that are for a single Person; but we'll have hot Work e'er we yield to that.

War. The faud Diel take 'em then for Archibald? 'tis worse than Monarchy.

Duc. A thousand times: have we with such Industry been pulling down Kings of the Royal Family, to set up Tyrants of our own, of mean and obscure Birth? No, if we're for a single Person, I'm for a lawful one.

War. Wons and ya have spoken aud my Lord, so am I.

Duc. But Lambert has a busy, haughty Spirit, and thinks to carry it; but we'll have no single Person.

War. Nor I, ods Bread; the faud Diel brest the Wem of Lambert, or any single Person in England. I's for yare Interest my gued Lords. [Bowing.]

Lam. My Lord Wariston, will you please to assume the Chair?

Enter Loveless, Freeman, and others with Petitions.

War. Ah, my gued Loord, I's yare most obedient humble Servant. [Bowing to Lam. all set.]

All. Hum, hum.

Fleet. My Lords and Gentlemen, we are here met together in the Name of the Lard——

Duc. Yea, and I hope we shall hang together as one Man—A Pox upon your Preaching. [Aside.]

Fleet. —And hope this Day's great Work will be for his Praise and Glory.

Duc. 'Bating long Graces, my Lord, we are met together for the Bus'ness of the Nation, to settle it, and to establish a Government.

Fleet. Yea, verily: and I hope you will all unanimously agree, it shall be your unworthy Servant.

Lam. What else, my Lord?

Fleet. And as thou, Lard, hast put the Sword into my Hand——

316 The ROUND-HEADS; or,

Duc. So put it into your Heart——my Lord, to do Justice.

Fleet. Amen.

Duc. I'd rather see it there than in your Hand——

[Aside.

Fleet. For we are, as it were, a Body without a Head; or, to speak more learnedly, an Animal inanimate.

Hew. My Lord, let us use, as little as we can, the Language of the Beast, hard Words; none of your Eloquence, it savoureth of Monarchy.

Lam. My Lord, you must give Men of Quality leave to speak in a Language more gentile and courtly than the ordinary sort of Mankind.

Hew. I am sorry to hear there are any of Quality among this honourable Dissembly. [Stands up.

Cob. Assembly, my Lord——

Hew. Well, you know my meaning; or if there be any such, I'm sorry they should own themselves of Quality.

Duc. How! own themselves Gentlemen! Death, Sir, d'ye think we were all born Coblers?

Hew. Or if you were not, the more the pity, for little England, I say. [In a heat.

Fleet. Verily, my Lords, Brethren should not fall out, it is a Scandal to the good Cause, and maketh the wicked rejoice.

War. Wons, and theys garr the loofey Proverb on't re, when loons gang together by th' luggs, gued men get their ene.

All. He, he, he.

Duc. He calls you Knaves by Craft, my Lords.

War. Bread a gued, take't among ye Gentlemen, I's ment weel.

Fleet. I profess, my Lord Wariston, you make my Hair stand an end to hear how you swear.

War. Wons, my Loord, I's sware as little as your Lordship, only I's swear out, and ya swallow aud.

Duc. There's a Bone for you to pick, my Lord.

All. He, he, he.

Lam. We give my Lod Wariston leave to jest.

Des.

Des. But what's this to the Government all this while? A dad I shall sit so late, I shall have no time to visit my Horses, therefore proceed to the Point.

Hew. Ay, to the Point, my Lords; the Gentleman that spoke last spoke well.

Cob. Well said Brother, I see you will in time speak properly.

Duc. But to the Government, my Lords!

[Beats the Table.

Lam. Put 'em off of this Discourse, my Lord.

[Aside to War.

Des. My Lord Wariston, move it, you are Speaker.

War. The Diel a me, Sirs, and noo ya talk of a Speaker, I's tell ye a bliihe Tale.

Fleet. Ingeniously my Lord, you are to blame to swear so.

Lam. Your Story, my Lord.

War. By my Sol mon, and there war a poor Woman the other Day begg'd o'th' Carle the Speaker, but he'd give her nought unless she'd let a Feart; wons at last a Feart she lat. Ay marry, quoth the Woman, noo my Rump has a Speaker te.

All. He, he, he.

Duc. But to our Bus'ness ———

Des. Bus'ness; ay, there's the thing, I've a World on't. I shou'd go and bespeak a Pair of Mittins and Shears for my Hedger and Shearer, a pair of Cards for my Thrasher, a Scythe for my Mower, and a Skreen-Fan for my Lady-Wife, and many other things; my Head's full of Bus'ness. I cannot stay—

Whit. Fy my Lord, will you neglect the bus'ness of the Day? We meet to oblige the Nation, and gratify our Friends.

Des. Nay, I'll do any thing, so I may rise time enough to see my Horses at Night.

Lov. Damn 'em, what's stuff's here for a Council-Table?

Free. Where are our English Spirits, that can be govern'd by such Dogs as these? ———

Lam. Clerk, read the Heads of what past at our last sitting.

War. In the first place, I must mind your Lordships to consider those that have been gued Members in the Commonwealth.

Fleet. We shall not be backward to gratify any that have serv'd the Commonwealth.

Whit. There's Money enough ; we have taxt the Nation high.

Duc. Yes, if we knew where to find it : however read.

Clerk reads.] To Walter Draper, six thousand nine hundred twenty nine Pounds six Shillings and five Pence, for Blacks for his Highness's Funeral.

Lam. For the Devil's ; put it down for Oliver Cromwel's Funeral : We'll have no Record rise up in Judgment for such a Villain.

Lov. How live Asses kick the dead Lion ! [Aside.]

Duc. Hark ye, my Lords, we sit here to reward Services done to the Commonwealth ; let us consider whether this be a Service to the Commonwealth or not ?

Lam. However, we'll give him Paper for't.

Hewf. Ay, let him get his Money when he can.

Lam. Paper's not so dear, and the Clerk's Pains will be rewarded.

War. Right, my gued Lord, 'sbred, that Cromwel was th' faudest limmer Loon that ever came into our Country, the faud Diel has tane him by th' Luggs for robbing our Houses and Land.

Fleet. No swearing, my Lord.

War. Weel, weel, my Loord, I's learn to profess and lee as weel as best on ya.

Hewf. That may bring you profit, my Lord—but Clerk proceed.

Clerk reads.] To Walter Frost, Treasurer of the Contingencies, twenty thousand Pounds. To Thurloe, Secretary to his Highness—

Duc. To old Noll.

Clerk reads.]—Old Noll, ten thousand Pounds, for unknown Service done the Commonwealth—To Mr. Hutchinson, Treasurer of the Navy, two hundred thousand Pounds—

War.

War. Two hundred thousand Pound; Ows, what a Sum's there?—Marry it came from the Mouth of a Cannon sure.

Clerk reads.] A Present to the Right Honourable and truly Virtuous Lady, the Lady Lambert, for Service done to the late Protector.

Hewf. Again—say Cromwel.

Cler.—Cromwel—six thousand Pound in Jacobus's.

War. 'Sbread, sike a Sum wou'd make me honour the Face of aud Jemmy.

Clerk. To Mr. Ice six thousand Pound; to Mr. Loether, late Secretary to his High—

Whit. To Oliver Cromwel say, can you not obey Orders?

Clerk.—Secretary to Oliver Cromwel—two thousand nine hundred ninety nine Pounds for Intelligence and Information, and piously betraying the King's Liege People.

War. Haud, haud, Sirs, Mary en ya gift so fast ya'll gif aud away from poor Archibald Johnson.

Whit. Speak for your self, my Lord; or rather, my Lord, do you speak for him. [To Lam.

Lam. Do you move it for him, and I'll do as much for you anon. [Aside to Whit.

Whit. My Lord, since we are upon Gratifications,—let us consider the known Merit of the Lord Wariston, a Person of industrious Mischiefs to the malignant Party, and great Integrity to us, and the Commonwealth.

War. Gued faith an I's ha been a trusty Trojon, Sir, what say you may very gued and gracious Loords?—

Duc. I scorn to let a Dog go unrewarded; and you, Sir, fawn so prettily, 'tis pity you shou'd miss Preference.

Hewf. And so 'tis; come, come, my Lords, consider he was ever our Friend, and 'tis but reasonable we shou'd stitch up one another's broken Fortunes.

Duc. Nay, Sir, I'm not against it.

All. 'Tis Reason, 'tis Reason.

Free. Damn 'em, how they lavish out the Nation?

War. Scribe, pretha read my Paper.

320 The ROUND-HEADS; or,

Hewf. Have you a Pertition there?

Cob. A Petition, my Lord.

Hewf. Pshaw, you Scholards are so troublesome.

Jam. Read the Substance of it. [To the Clerk.]

Cler. That your Honours wou'd be pleas'd, in consideration of his Service, to grant to your Petitioner, a considerable Sum of Money for his present Supply.

Fleet. Verily, order him two thousand Pound—

War. Two thousand poond? Bread a gued, and I's gif my Voice for Fleetwood. [Aside.]

Lam. Two thousand; nay, my Lords, let it be three.

War. Wons, I lee'd, I lee'd; I's keep my Voice for Lambert—Guds Benizon light on yar Sol, my gued Lord Lambert.

Hewf. Three thousand Pound! why such a Sum wou'd buy half Scotland.

War. Wons, my Lord, ya look but blindly on't then: zime was, a Mite on't had bought aud shoos in yar Stall, Brother, tho noo ya so abound in Irish and Bishops Lands.

Duc. You have nick'd him there, my Lord.

All. He, he, he.

War. Scribe—gang a tiny bit farther.

Clerk.—And that your Honours wou'd be pleas'd to confer an Annual Pension on him—

Lam. Reason, I think; what say you my Lords, of five hundred Pound a Year?

All. Agreed, agreed.

War. The Diel swallow me, my Lord, ya won my Heart.

Duc. 'Tis very well—but out of what shall this be rais'd?

Lam. We'll look what Malignant Estates are forfeit, undispos'd of—let me see—who has young Freeman's Estate?

Des. My Lord, that fell to me.

Lam. What all the fifteen hundred Pound a Year?

Des. A Dad, and all little enough.

Free. The Devil do him good with it.

Des. Had not the Lard put it into your Hearts to have given me two thousand per Annum out of Bishops Lands,

Lands, and three thousand per Annum out of the Mar-ques's Estate; how shou'd I have liv'd and serv'd the Commonwealth as I have done?

Free. A plague confound his Honour, he makes a hard shift to live on Eight thousand Pound a Year, who was born and bred a Hedger.

Lov. Patience, Friend.

Lam. I have been thinking—but I'll find out a way.

Lov. Or betray some honest Gentleman, on purpose to gratify the Looze.

Lam. And Gentlemen, I am bound in Honour and Conscience to speak in behalf of my Lord Whitlock; I think fit, if you agree with me, he shou'd be made Constable of Windsor Castle, Warden of the Forest, with the Rents, Perquisites, and Profits thereto belonging; nor can your Lordships confer a Place of greater Trust and Honour in more safe Hands.

Duc. I find he wou'd oblige all to his side. [Aside.
Has he not part of the Duke of Buckingham's Estate already, with Chelsey House, and several other Gifts?

Lam. He has dearly deserv'd 'em; he has serv'd our Interest well and faithfully.

Duc. And he has been well paid for't.

Whit. And so were you, Sir, with several Lordships, and Bishops Lands, you were not born to, I conceive.

Duc. I have not got it, Sir, by knavish Querks in Law; a Sword that deals out Kingdoms to the brave, has cut out some small parcels of Earth for me. And what of this? [Stands up in a heat.

Whit. I think, Sir, he that talks well, and to th' purpose, may be as useful to the Commonwealth as he that fights well. Why do we keep so many else in Pension that ne'er drew Sword, but to talk, and rail at the malignant Party; to libel and defame 'em handsomly, with pious useful Lyes,

Which pass for Gospel with the common Rabble,
And edify more than Hugh Peters's Sermons;
And make Fools bring more Grist to th' publick Mill;
Then, Sir, to wrest the Law to our convenienc
Is no small, inconsiderate Work.

Free. And which you may be hang'd for very shortly—

[Aside.

Lam. 'Tis granted, my Lord, your Merit's infinite—
We made him Keeper of the Great Seal, 'tis true, 'tis Honour, but no Salary.

Duc. Ten thousand Pound a Year in Bribes will do as well.

Lam. Bribes are not so frequent now as in Old Noll's Days.

Hewf. Well, my Lord, let us be brief and tedious, as the saying is, and humour one another: I'm for Whitlock's Advance.

Lam. I move for a Salary, Gentlemen, Scobel and other petty Clerks have had a thousand a Year; my Lord sure merits more.

Hewf. Why—let him have two thousand then.

Fleet. I profess ingeniously, with all my Heart.

Whit. I humbly thank your Lordships—but, if I may be so bold to ask, from whence shall I receive it?

Lam. Out of the Customs.

Cob. Brotherly Love ought to go along with us—but, under favour, when this is gone, where shall we raise new Supplies?

Lam. We'll tax the Nation high, the City higher, They are our Friends, our most obsequious Slaves, Our Dogs to fetch and carry, our very Asses—

Lov. And our Oxes, with the help of their Wives.

[Aside.

Lam. Besides, the City's rich, and near her time, I hope, of being deliver'd.

War. Wons a gued, wad I'd the laying o' her, she shou'd be sweetly brought to Bed, by my Sol.

Def. The City cares for no Scotch Pipers, my Lord.

War. By my Sol, but she has danc'd here after the gued Pipe of Reformation, when the Covenant Jigg gang'd marylly round, Sirs.

Clerk. My Lords, here are some poor malignant Petitioners.

Lam. Oh, turn 'em out, here's nothing for 'em; these Fellows were petitioning my Lady to day—I thought she had given you a satisfactory Answer.

[Lov.

Lov. She did indeed, my Lord: but 'tis a hard Case, to take away a Gentleman's Estate, without convicting him of any Crime.

Lam. Oh, Sir, we shall prove that hereafter.

Lov. But to make sure Work, you'll hang a Man first, and examine his Offence afterwards; a Plague upon your Conscience: My Friend here had a little fairer Play; your Villains, your Witnesses in Pension swore him a Colonel for our glorious Master, of ever blessed Memory, at eight Years old; a Plague upon their Miracles.

Fleet. Ingeniously, Sirrah, you shall be pillory'd for defaming our reverend Witnesses: Guards take 'em to your Custody both.

Free. Damn it, I shall miss my Assignment with Lady Desbro; a Pox of your unnecessary prating, what shall I do? [Guards take 'em away.]

Lam. And now, my Lords, we have finished the Business of the Day. My good Lord Fleetwood, I am entirely yours, and at our next sitting shall approve myself your Creature—

Whit. My good Lord, I am your submissive Vassal.

War. Wons, my Lord, I scorn any Man shou'd be mere yare Vassal than Archibald Johnson.

[To Fleetwood. [Ex. All.]

Enter La. Desbro, and Corporal in haste.

L. Des. Seiz'd on, secur'd! Was there no time but this?

What made him at the Committee, or when there why spoke he honest Truth? What shall I do good Corporal? Advise; take Gold, and see if you can corrupt his Guards: but they are better paid for doing Mischief; yet try, their Consciences are large. [Gives him Gold.]

Cor. I'll venture my Life in so good a Cause, Madam. [Exit.]

Enter Page.

Pag. Madam, here's Mr. Ananias Gogle, the Lay-Elder of Clement's Parish.

L. Def. Damn the sham Saint ; am I now in Condition to be plagu'd with his impertinent Nonsense ?

Pag. Oh ! Pray Madam, here him preach a little ; 'tis the purest Sport——

Enter Ananias.

Ana. Peace be in this Place.

L. Def. A blessed hearing ; he preaches nothing in his Conventicles, but Blood and Slaughter. [Aside.

What wou'd you, Sir ? I'm something busy now.

Ana. Ah, the Children of the Elect have no Business but the great Work of Reformation : Yea verily, I say, all other Business is profane, and diabolical, and devilish ; Yea, I say, these Dressings, Curls, and shining Habilliments—which take so up your time, your precious time ; I say, they are an Abomination, yea, an Abomination in the sight of the Righteous, and serve but as an Ignis fatuus, to lead vain Man astray——I say again——

[Looking now and then behind on the Page.

L. Def. ——You are a very Coxcomb.

Ana. I say again, that even I, upright I, one of the new Saints, find a sort of a—a—I know not what—a kind of a Motion as is were——a stirring up—as a Man may say, to wickedness——Yea, verily it corrupteth the outward Man within me.

L. Def. Is this your Business, Sir, to rail against our Clothes ; as if you intended to preach me into my Primitive Nakedness again ?

Ana. Ah, the naked Truth is best ; but, Madam, I have a little work of Grace to communicate unto you, please you to send your Page away——

L. Def. Withdraw—sure I can make my Party good with one wicked Elder :—Now, Sir, your Bus'ness.

[Ex. Page.

——Be brief.

Ana. As brief as you please—but—who in the sight of so much Beauty—can think of any Bus'ness but the Bus'ness—Ah ! hide those tempting Breasts,—Alack, how smooth and warm they are—— [Feeling 'em, and sneering.

L. Def. How now, have you forgot your Function ?

Ana. Nay, but I am mortal Man also, and may fall seven times a day——Yea verily, I may fall seven times a day day—Your Ladiship's Husband is old, —and where there is a good excuse for falling,——ah, there the falling— is excusable.—And might I but fall with your Ladiship,— might I, I say.—

L. Def. How, this from you, the Head o'th' Church Militant, the very Pope of Presbytery ?

Ana. Verily, the Sin lieth in the Scandal ; therefore most of the discreet pious Ladies of the Age chuse us, upright Men, who make a Conscience of a Secret, the Laity being more regardless of their Fame.—In sober sadness, the Place—— inviteth, the Creature tempting, and the Spirit very violent within me.

[Takes and ruffles her.

L. Def. Who waits there ?—I'm glad you have prov'd your self what I ever thought of all your pack of Knaves.

Ana. Ah, Madam ! Do not ruin my Reputation ; there are Ladies of high Degree in the Commonwealth, to whom we find our selves most comforting ; why might not you be one—for, alas, we are accounted as able Men in Ladies Chambers, as in our Pulpits : we serve both Functions——

Enter Servants.

Hah ! her Servants—— [Stands at a distance.

L. Def. Shou'd I tell this, I shou'd not find belief.

[Aside.

Ana. Madam, I have another Errand to your Lad ship.—It is the Duty of my Occupation to catechize the Heads of every Family within my Diocese ; and you must answer some few Questions I shall ask.—— In the first place, Madam,——Who made ye ?

L. Def. So, from Whoring, to a zealous Catechism—who made me ? what Insolence is this, to ask me Questions which every Child that lisps out Words can answer.

Ana. 'Tis our Method, Madam.

L. Def. Your Impudence, Sirrah, ——let me examine your Faith, who are so sawcy to take an account of mine —— Who made you ? But lest you shou'd not know, I will inform you : First, Heav'n made you a deform'd, ill-favour'd Creature ; then the Rascal your Father made you a Taylor ; next, your Wife made you a Cuckold ; and lastly, the Devil has made you a Doctor ; and so get you gone for a Fool and a Knave all over.

Ana.

Ana. A Man of my Coat affronted thus!

L. Def. It shall be worse, Sirrah, my Husband shall know how kind you wou'd have been to him, because your Disciple and Benefactor, to have begot him a Babe of Grace for a Son and Heir.

Ana. Mistake not my pious meaning, most gracious Lady.

L. Def. I'll set you out in your Colours: Your impudent and bloody Principles, your Cheats, your Rogueries on honest Men, thro' their kind, deluded Wives, whom you cant and goggle into a Belief, 'tis a great work of Grace to steal, and beggar their whole Families, to contribute to your Gormandizing, Lust and Laziness;—Ye Locusts of the Land, preach Nonsense, Blasphemy, and Treason, till you sweat again, that the sanctify'd Sisters may rub you down, to comfort and console the Creature.

Ana. Ah! Am——

L. Def. Sirrah, be gone, and trouble me no more—be gone——yet stay——the Rogue may be of use to me——Amongst the heap of Vice, Hypocrisy, and Devils that possess all your Party, you may have some necessary Sin; I've known some honest, useful Villains amongst you, that will swear, profess, and lye devoutly for the Good Old Cause.

Ana. Yea verily, I hope there are many such, and I shou'd rejoice, yea, exceedingly rejoice in any Gadly Performance to your Ladiship.

L. Def. This is a pious Work: You are a Knave of Credit, a very Saint with the rascally Rabble, with whom your seditious Cant more prevails, your precious Hum and Ha, and gifted Nonsense, than all the Rhetorick of the Learn'd, or Honest.

Ana. Hah!

L. Def.——In fine, I have use of your Talent at present, there's one now in Confinement of the Royal Party——his Name's Freeman.

Ana. And your Ladiship wou'd have him dispatch'd; I conceive ye——but wou'd you have him dispatch'd privately, or by Form of Law? we've Tools for all uses, and 'tis a pious Work, and meritorious.

L. Def. Right, I wou'd indeed have him dispatch'd, and privately; but 'tis hither privately, hither to my Chamber, ber, privately, for I have private Bus'ness with him. D'ye start?—this must be done—for you can pimp I'm sure upon occasion, you've Tools for all uses; come, resolve, or I'll discover your bloody Offer. Is your Stomach so queasy it cannot digest Pimping, that can swallow Whoring, false Oaths, Sequestration, Robbery, Rapes, and Murders daily?

Ana. Verily, you mistake my pious Meaning; it is the Malignant I stick at; the Person, not the Office: and in sadness, Madam, it goeth against my tender Conscience to do any good to one of the Wicked.

L. Desf. It must stretch at this time; go haste to the Guard, and demand him in my Husband's Name; here's something worth your Pains—having releas'd him, bring him to me, you understand me—go bid him be diligent, and as you behave your self, find my Favour; for know, Sir, I am as great a Hypocrite as you, and know the Cheats of your Religion too; and since we know one another, 'tis like we shall be true.

Ana. But shou'd the Man be missing, and I call'd to account? —————

L. Desf. He shall be return'd in an hour: go, get you gone, and bring him, or—no more— [Exeunt,

For all degrees of Vices, you must grant,
There is no Rogue like your Geneva Saint.

ACT IV. SCENE I.

Chamber, Candles, and Lights.

Enter L. Desbro and Freeman.

L. Desf. BY what strange Miracle, my dearest Freeman, wert thou set at liberty?

Free. On the zealous Parole of Rabbie Ananias; that Rhetorick that can convert whole Congregations of well-meaning Blockheads to errant Knaves, has now mollify'd my my Keeper ; I'm to be render'd back within this Hour : let's not, my dear Maria, lose the precious minutes this Reverend Hypocrite has given us.

L. Desf. Oh ! you are very gay, have you forgot whose Prisoner you are, and that perhaps, e'er many Days are ended, they may hang you for High-Treason against the Commonwealth? they never want a good thorow-stitch'd Witness to do a Murder lawfully.

Free. No matter, then I shall die with Joy, Maria, when I consider, that you lov'd so well to give me the last Proof on't.

L. Desf. Are you in earnest, Freeman? and wou'd you take what Honour will not suffer me to grant?

Free. With all my Heart, Honour's a poor Excuse. Your Heart and Vows (your better part) are mine ; you've only lent your Body out to one whom you call Husband, and whom Heaven has mark'd for Cuckoldom. Nay, 'tis an Act of honest Loyalty, so to revenge our Cause ; whilst you were only mine, my honest Love thought it a Sin to press these Favours from you ; 'twas injuring my self as well as thee ; but now we only give and take our Right.

L. Desf. No more, my Husband's old——

Free. Right, my dear Maria, and therefore——

L. Desf. ——May possibly die——

Free. He will be hang'd first.

L. Desf. —I hope so——either of which will do our Business——unreasonable Freeman, not to have Patience till my Husband be hang'd a little.

Free. But what if Destiny put the Change upon us, and I be hang'd instead of Desbro?

L. Desf. Why then thou art not the first gallant Fellow that has died in the good and royal Cause ; and a small taste of Happiness will but turn thee off the Ladder with the sadder Heart.

Free. Hast thou the Conscience, lovely as thou art,
To deal out all thy Beauty to a Traitor ?
Is not this Treason of the highest Nature,
To rob the Royal Party of such Treasure,
And give it to our mortal Enemies ?
For Shame, be wise, and just,

And

And do not live a Rebel to our Cause ;

'Tis Sin enough to have Society with such a wicked Race.

L. Def. But I am married to him.

Free. So much the worse, to make a League and Covenant with such Villains, and keep the sinful Contract ; a little harmless Lying and Diffimulation I'll allow thee, but to be right down honest, 'tis the Devil.

L. Def. This will not do, it never shall be said I've been so much debauch'd by Conventicling to turn a sainted Sinner ; No, I'm true to my Allegiance still, true to my King and Honour. Suspect my Loyalty when I lose my Virtue : a little time, I'm sure, will give me honestly into thy Arms ; if thou hast Bravery, shew it in thy Love.

Free. You will o'ercome, and shame me every way ;— but when will this Change come ? and till it do, what Pawn will you give me, I shall be happy then ?

L. Def. My Honour, and that Happiness you long for, and take but two Months time for their Redemption.

Free. How greedily I'll seize the Forfeiture !

L. Def. But what am I like to get if this Change do come ?

Free. A Slave, and whatever you please to make of him.

L. Def. Who knows, in such an universal Change, how you may alter too ?

Free. I'll give ye Bond and Vows, unkind Maria,— Here take my Hand—Be it known unto all Men, by these Presents, that I John Freeman of London Gent. acknowledge my self in Debt to Maria Desbro, the Sum of one Heart, with an incurable Wound ; one Soul, destin'd hers from its first Being ; and one Body, whole, sound, and in perfect Health ; which I here promise to pay to the said Maria, upon Demand, if the aforesaid John Freeman be not hang'd before such Demand made. Whereto I set my Hand—and seal it with my Lips.

[In a Tone.

L. Def. And I, in consideration of such Debt, do freely give unto the abovesaid John Freeman, the Heart and Body of the abovesaid Maria Desbro, with all Appurtenances thereto belonging, whenever it shall please Heaven to bring my Husband fairly to the Gallows. [In a Tone.

Free.

Free. Amen——kiss the Book—— [Kisses her.

[Ana. hums without.

L. Des. Hah! that's Ananias; sure some Danger's near, the necessary Rascal gives us notice of it.

Free. 'Tis so, what wouldst thou have me do?

L. Des. Thou art undone if seen——here, step within this Curtain.

[He goes.

Enter Ananias, humming, and spreading his Cloak wide; Desbro behind him, puffing in a Chafe.

Des. Ads nigs, what a Change is here like to be?—— puff, puff——we have manag'd Matters sweetly——to let the Scotch General undermine us; puff, puff.

L. Des. What's the Matter?

Des. Nothing, Cockey, nothing, but that we are like to return to our first nothing.

Ana. Yes verily, when our time's come; but ah, the great Work of Reformation is not yet fully accomplish'd, which must be wrought by the Saints, and we cannot spare one of them until the Work be finish'd.

Des. Yea, yea, it is finish'd I doubt, puff, puff: fie, fie, what a Change is here?

Ana. Patience, ah, 'tis a precious Virtue!——

Des. Patience, Sir! what, when I shall lose so many fine Estates which did appertain to the Wicked; and which, I trusted, had been establish'd ours, and tell'st thou me of Patience? puff, puff.

[Walking fast.

Ana. How! lose 'em, Sir? handle the matter with Patience; I hope the Committee of Safety, or the Rump, will not do an illegal thing to one of the Brethren.

Des. No, no, I have been a trusty Knave to them, and so I have found them all to me: but Monk! Monk! O that ever we should be such blind Fools to trust an honest General!

Ana. Patience Sir! what of him?

Des. I just now receiv'd private Intelligence, he's coming out of Scotland with his Forces——puff, puff.

Ana. Why let him come in Gad's Name, we have those will give him a civil Salute, if he mean not honourably to the Commonwealth. Patience, Sir.

Des. But if he proves the stronger, and shou'd chance to be so great a Traitor to us, to bring in the Man—— the King.

L. Des.

L. Def. How, the King, Husband ! the great Heroick !

Free. Death, this Woman is a Sybil : ah, noble Monk !

Ana. Hum——the King !——

Def. Ah, and with the King, the Bishops ; and then, where's all our Church and Bishops Lands ! oh, undone—puff, puff.

Ana. How, bring in the Kings and Bishops ! my righteous Spirit is raised too——I say, I will excommunicate him for one of the Wicked, yea, for a profane Heroick, a Malignant, a Tory,—a— I say, we will surround him, and confound him with a mighty Host ; yea, and fight the Lard's Battel with him : yea, we will—

Def. Truckle to his Pow'r—puff, puff.

Ana. I say verily, nay ; for, in Sadness, I will die in my Calling.

Def. So I doubt shall I—which is Ploughing, Hedging, and Ditching.

Ana. Yea, we have the Sword of the Righteous in our Hand, and we will defend the mighty Revenues of the Church, which the Lard has given unto his People, and chosen ones—I say, we will defend——

Def. Ah, Patience, Sir, ah, 'tis a pious Virtue——

Ana. Ah, it is Zeal in one of us, the Out-goings of the Spirit.

Enter Page.

Page. Sir, will you go down to Prayers ? the Chaplain waits.

Def. No, no, Boy, I am too serious for that Exercise, I cannot now dissemble, Heav'n forgive me.

Ana. How, Sir, not dissemble—ah, then you have lost a great Virtue indeed, a very great Virtue ; ah, let us not give away the good old Cause—but, as we have maintain'd it by gadly Cozenage, and pious Frauds, let us persevere—ah, let us persevere to the end ; let us not lose our Heritage for a Mess of Pottage, that is, let us not lose the Cause for Dissimulation and Hypocrisy, those two main Engines that have carried on the great Work.

Def. Verily, you have prevail'd, and I will go take counsel of my Pillow : Boy—call my Man to undress me—I'll to Bed, for I am sick at Heart.

[Ex. Page.

Free.

Free. Death, what shall I do now?

[Def. walks, she whispers Ana.

L. Def. You must get my Man off, or we're undone.

Ana. Madam, be comforted, Heaven will bring all things about for our Advantage—— [As Def. turns.

L. Def. But he's behind the Curtains, Man——

[Def. turns from 'em.

Ana. Ah, let Providence alone—— [Spreads his Cloak wide, and goes by degrees towards the Bed.] ——Your pious Lady, Sir, is doubtful, but I will give her ample Satisfaction.

Def. Ah, do, Mr. Ananias, do for she's a good and virtuous Lady, certo she is. [Ana. goes close to the Bed-post, and speaks over his Shoulder.

Ana. Get ye behind my Cloak——

L. Def. Indeed Sir, your Counsel and Assistance is very comfortable.

Ana. We shou'd be Help-meets to one another, Madam.

Def. Alack, good Man! [L. Def. goes to coax her Husband.

L. Def. Ay, my dear, I am so much oblig'd to him, that I know not without thy Aid, how to make him amends.

Free. So, this is the first Cloak of Zeal I ever made use of.

[Ana. going, spreading his Cloak, to the Door, Free. behind goes out.

Def. Good Lady give him his twenty Pieces, adad he worthily deserves 'em. [Gives her Gold.

L. Def. Indeed, and so he does, Dear, if thou knew'tt all.——What say you know, do I not improve in Hypocrisy? And shall I not in time make a precious Member of your Church? [To Ana.

Ana. Verily, your Ladiship is most ingenious and expert.——Sir, I most humbly take my leave. [Ex. Ana.

Enter Page.

Page. My Lord, my Lord Lambert has sent in all haste for you, you must attend at his House immediately.

Def. So, he has heard the News——I must away—— let my Coach be ready.

[Ex. Def.

L. Def.

L. Des. How unlucky was this that Freeman should be gone——Sirrah, run, and see to o'ertake him, and bring him back.

[Exeunt.]

Enter Gilliflower and Loveless by dark, drest richly.

Lov. Where am I, Gilliflower?

Gill. In my Lady's Apartment, Sir, she'll be with you presently; you need not fear betraying, Sir, for I'll assure you I'm an Heroick in my Heart: my Husband was a Captain for his Majesty of ever-blessed Memory, and kill'd at Naseby, God be thanked, Sir.

Lov. What pity 'tis that thou shouldst serve this Party?

Gill. 'Bating her Principles, my Lady has good Nature enough to oblige a Servant; and truly Sir, my Vails were good in old Oliver's Days; I got well by that Amour between him and my Lady; the Man was lavish enough.

Lov. Yes, of the Nation's Treasure——but prithee tell me, is not thy Lady mad, raving on Crowns and Kingdoms?

Gill. It appears so to you, who are not us'd to the Vanity of the Party, but they are all so mad in their Degree, and in the Fit they talk of nothing else, Sir: we have to morrow a Hearing as they call it.

Lov. What's that, a Conventicle?

Gill. No, no, Sir, Ladies of the last Edition, that present their Grievances to the Council of Ladies, of which my Lady's chief, which Grievances are laid open to the Committee of Safety, and so redress'd or slighted, as they are.

Lov. That must be worth one's Curiosity, could one but see't.

Gill. We admit no Man, Sir.

Lov. 'Sdeath, for so good a fight I will turn Woman, I'll act it to a hair.

Gill. That would be excellent.

Lov. Nay, I must do't, the Novelty is rare——but I'm impatient——prithee let thy Lady know I wait.

Gill. She's in Affairs of State, but will be here immediately; diately; mean time, retire into her Cabinet, I'll send the Page with Lights, there you may repose till my Lady comes, on the Pallat. [She leads him out.]

State, and Canopy.*

And at a Table, seated Lambert, Fleetwood, Desbro, Hewson, Duckenfield, Wariston, Cobbet; all half drunk, with Bottles and Glasses on the Table; L. Lam. and L. Fleet.

Lam. My Lord Wariston, you are not merry to night.

War. Wons Mon, this Monk sticks in my Gullet, the ruckle Diel pull him out by th' Lugs; the faud Loone will en spoyle aud our Sport mon.

Lam. I thought I had enough satisfied all your Fears; the Army's mine, that is,—'tis yours, my Lords, and I'll imploy it too so well for the Good of the Commonwealth, you shall have Cause to commend both my Courage and Conduct; my Lord Wariston, will you accompany me?

War. Ah, my gued Lord, the Honour is too great. 'Tis not but I's dare fight, my Lord, but I love not the Jimmer Loone, he has a villanous honest Face an's ene; I's ken'd him ence, and lik't him not; but I's drink to yar gued Fortune; let it gang aboote, ene and ad Sirs.

[All drink.]

Lam. We'll leave all Discourse of Bus'ness, and give our selves to Mirth; I fancy good Success from this day's Omen.

Enter Gill. whispers L. Lam. she rises.

L. Lam. Waited so long!

Gill. And grew impatient, an't please your Highness; must I go tell him you cannot see him to night.

L. Lam. Not for the World; my silly Politician will be busying himself in the dull Affairs of State; —Dull in comparison of Love, I mean; I never lov'd before; old Oliver I suffer'd for my Interest, And 'tis some Greatness, to be Mistress to the best; But this mighty Pleasure comes a propo, To sweeten all the heavy Toils of Empire.

Gill.

Gill. So it does, an't please your Highness.

L. Lam. Go, let him know I'm coming—Madam, I must beg your Pardon; you hear, my Lord, to morrow goes on his great Expedition; and, for any thing we know, may fall a glorious Sacrifice to the Commonwealth; therefore 'tis meet I offer up some Prayers for his Safety, and all my leisure Hours 'twixt this and that, will be too few—Your humble Servant, Madam. [Ex. L. Lam.]

L. Fleet. My Dear, I'll leave you too, my time of Devotion is come, and Heav'n will stay for no Body; where are my People? is my Coach ready, or my Chair?

Fleet. Go in your Chair my Love, lest you catch cold.

L. Fleet. And light your Flambeau, —I love to have my Chair surrounded with Flambeaus.

Enter Page.

Page. Your Chair is ready, Madam.

[She goes out led by Fleet.]

Hewf. What think ye now my Lords, of settling the Nation a little? I find my Head swim with Politicks, and what ye call ums.

War. Wons, and wad ya settle the Nation when we reel our selves?

Hewf. Who, pox, shall we stand making Childrens Shoes all the Year? No, no, let's begin to settle the Nation, I say, and go thro'-stitch with our Work.

Duc. Right, we have no Head to obey; so that if this Scotch General do come whilst we Dogs fight for the Bone, he runs away with it.

Hewf. Shaw, we shall patch up matters with the Scotch General, I'll warrant you: However, here's to our next Head—One and all. [All drink.]

Fleet. Verily, Sirs, this Health-drinking favoureth of Monarchy, and is a Type of Malignancy.

War. Bread, my Lord, no preaching o'er yar Liquor, wee's now for a Cup o'rh' Creature.

Cob. In a gadly way you may; it is lawful.

Lam. Come, come, we're dull, give us some Musick—come my Lord, I'll give you a Song, I love Musick as I do a Drum, there's Life and Soul in't, call my Musick.

Fleet. Yea, I am for any Musick, except an Organ.

War.

336 The ROUND-HEADS ; or,

War. Sbread, Sirs, and I's a Horn-pipe, I've a faud Theefe here shall dance ye Dance tol a Horn-pipe, with any States-man a ya aud.

All. He, he, he.

Duc. I know not what your faud Theefe can do ; but I'll hold you a Wager, Colonel Hersoun, and Colonel Desbro shall dance ye the Seint's Jigg with any Sinner of your Kirk, or field Conventicler.

War. Wons, and I's catch 'em at that sport, I's dance tol 'em for a Scotch Pound ; but farst your Song, my Lord, I hope 'tis boody, or else 'tis not werth a Feart.

All. He, he, he.

S O N G, sung by my Lord Lambert.

*A Pox of the States-man that's witty,
That watches and plots all the sleepless Night,
For seditious Harangues to the Whigs of the City,
And piously turns a Traitor in spite.
Let him wrack, and torment his lean Carrion,
To bring his sham-Plots about,
Till Religion, King, Bishop, and Baron,
For the publick Good, be quite routed out.*

*Whilst we that are no Politicians,
But Rogues that are resolute, bare-fac'd and great,
Boldly head the rude Rabble in open Sedition,
Bearing all down before us in Church and in State.
Your Impudence is the best State-trick,
And he that by Law means to rule,
Let his History with ours be related,
Tho we prove the Knaves, 'tis he is the Fool.*

War. The Diel a me, wele sung my Lord, and gen aud Trades fail, yas make a quaint Ministrel.

All. He, he, he.

War. Noo, Sirs, yar Dance ? [They fling Cushions at one another, and grin. Musick plays.] —Marry, Sirs, an this be yar dancing, tol dance and ne'er stir Stap, the Diel lead the Dance for Archibald.

[When

[When they have flung Cushions thus a while to the Musick time, they beat each other from the Table, one by one, and fall into a godly Dance; after a while, Wariston rises, and dances ridiculously a while amongst them; then to the Time of the Tune, they take out the rest, as at the Cushion-Dance, or in that nature. Wariston being the last taken in, leads the rest.

—Haud Minstrels haud; Bread a gued. I's fatch ad Ladies in—lead away Minstrels tol my Lady's Apartment.

[Musick playing before all.

[Exeunt dancing.

Page. Cock, Here must I wait, to give my Lady notice when my Lord approaches;—The fine Gentleman that is alone with her, gave me these two fine Pieces of Gold, and bad me buy a Sword to fight for the King withal; and m resolv'd to lay it all out in a Sword, not a penny in Nickers, and fight for the Heroicks as long as I have a Limb, if they be all such fine Men as this within. But hark, sure I hear some coming.——

[Exit.

[Flat Scene draws off, discovers L. Lam. on a Couch, with Loveless, tying a rich Diamond-Bracelet about his Arm: a Table behind with Lights, on which a Velvet Cushion, with a Crown and Scepter cover'd.

Lov. This Present's too magnificent: such Bracelets young Monarchs shou'd put on.

L. Lam. Persons like me, when they make Presents, Sir, must do it for their Glory, not considering the Merit of the Wearer: yet this, my charming Loveless, comes short of what I ought to pay thy Worth; comes short too of my Love.

Lov. You blefs me, Madam——

L. Lam. This the great Monarch of the World once ty'd about my Arm, and bad me wear it, till some greater Man shou'd chance to win my Heart; Thou art that Man whom Love has rais'd above him; Whom every Grace and every Charm thou hast

Conspire to make thee mightier to my Soul ;
 And Oliver, illustrious Oliver,
 Was yet far short of thee.

Lov. He was the Monarch then whose Spoils I triumph in.

L. Lam. They were design'd too for Trophies to the young and gay.

Ah, Loveless! that I cou'd reward thy Youth
 With something that might make thee more than Man,
 As well as give the best of Women to thee——

[Rises, takes him by the Hand, leads him to the Table. He starts.]

——Behold this gay, this wondrous glorious thing.

Lov. Hah—a Crown—and Scepter !

Have I been all this while

So near the sacred Relicks of my King ;
 And found no awful Motion in my Blood,
 Nothing that mov'd sacred Devotion in me ?

—— Hail sacred Emblem of great Majesty,
 Thou that hast circled more Divinity
 Than the great Zodiack that surrounds the World.
 I ne'er was blest with sight of thee till now,
 But in much reverenc'd Pictures—— [Rises and bows.]

L. Lam. Is't not a lovely thing ?

Lov. There's such Divinity i'th' very Form on't,
 Had I been conscious I'd been near the Temple,
 Where this bright Relick of the glorious Martyr
 Had been enshrin'd, 't had spoil'd my soft Devotion.

——'Tis Sacrilege to dally where it is ;
 A rude, a saucy Treason to approach it
 With an unbended Knee : for Heav'n's sake, Madam,
 Let us not be profane in our Delights,
 Either withdraw, or hide that glorious Object.

L. Lam. Thou art a Fool, the very sight of this—Raises my Pleasure higher :

Methinks I give a Queen into thy Arms,
 And where I love I cannot give enough ; [Softly.]

——Wou'd I cou'd set it on thy Head for ever,
 'Twou'd not become my simple Lord
 The thousandth part so well.

[Goes to put it on his Head, he puts it off.]

Lov. Forbear, and do not play with holy things ;
 Let us retire, and love as Mortals shou'd,

Not imitate the Gods, and spoil our Joys.

L. Lam. Lovely, and unambitious!

What hopes have I of all your promis'd Constancy,
Whilst this which possibly e'er long may adorn my Brow,
And ought to raise me higher in your Love,
Ought to transform you even to Adoration,
Shall poorly make you vanish from its Lustre?

Methinks the very Fancy of a Queen
Is worth a thousand Mistresses of less illustrious Rank.

Lov. What every pageant Queen? you might from thence infer

I'd fall in love with every little Actress, because
She acts the Queen for half an hour,
But then the gaudy Robe is laid aside.

L. Lam. I'll pardon the Comparison in you.

Lov. I do not doubt your Power of being a Queen,
But trust, it will not last.

How truly brave would your great Husband be,
If, whilst he may, he paid this mighty Debt
To the right Owner!

If, whilst he has the Army in his Power,
He made a true and lawful use of it,
To settle our great Master in his Throne;
And by an Act so glorious raise his Name
Even above the Title of a King.

L. Lam. You love me now, that would persuade me from my Glory.

Enter Gilliflower.

Gill. Oh Madam, the Lords are all got merry, as they call it, and are all dancing hither.

L. Lam. What, at their Oliverian Frolicks?—Dear
Loveless, withdraw, I wou'd not give the fond believing Fool a Jealousy of me.

Gill. Withdraw, Madam? 'tis impossible, he must run just into their Mouths.

L. Lam. I'm ill at these Intrigues, being us'd to Lovers that still came with such Authority, that modestly my Husband cou'd withdraw—but Loveless is in danger, therefore take care he be not seen.

Gill. Heav'ns! they are coming, there's no Retreat—

L. Lam. Lie down on the Couch—and cover him you with the Foot-Carpet—So, give me my Prayer-Book.

[He lies down on the Couch, they cover him with the Carpet: L. Lam. takes her Book, sits down on his Feet, and leans on the Back of the Couch reading; Gill. stands at t'other end, they enter dancing as before.

—What Insolence is this? do you not hear me, you—Sots—whom Gaiety and Dancing do so ill become.

War. [Singing.] Welcome, Foan Sanderfon, welcome, welcome. [Goes to take her out, she strikes him.

Wons, Madam, that's no part o'th' Dance.

L. Lam. No, but 'tis part of a reward for your Insolence,

Which possibly your Head shall answer for——

Lam. Pardon him, my Dear, he meant no Disrespect to thee.

L. Lam. How dare you interrupt my Devotion, Sirrah? Be gone with all your filthy ill-bred Crew.

[Lam. sits down on Lov.

Lam. My only Dear, be patient; hah!——
Something moves under me; Treason, Treason!

[He rises.

[Lov. rolls off, and turns Lam. over, the rest of the Men run out crying Treason, Treason, overthrowing the Lights, putting 'em out.

L. Lam. Treason, Treason! my Lord, my Lord!

Lam. Lights there, a Plot, a Popish Plot, Lights!

L. Lam. The Crown, the Crown, guard the Crown!

[She groping about, finds Lov. by his Clothes, knows him.

——Here, take this Key, the next room is my Bed-chamber,

Secure your self a moment.—— [Ex. Loveless.

Lights there, the Crown—who art thou?

[Takes hold of Lam.

Lam. 'Tis I.

L. Lam. Ah, my Lord, what's the matter?——

Lam. Nay, my Lady, I ask you what's the matter?

Enter Page with Lights.

By Heaven, all is not well; hark ye, my fine the Politician, who was it you had hid beneath this Carpet?

L. Lam. Heav'ns! dost hear him, Gilliflower? Sure the Fellow's mad.

Gill. Alack, my Lord, are you out of your honourable Wits?

Wits? Heav'n knows, my Lady was at her Devotion.

Lam. Baud, come, confess thy self to be one. At her Devotion! yes, with a He Saint.

Gill. Ah! Gad forbid the Saints shou'd be so wicked.

L. Lam. Hark ye, thou little sniveling Hypocrite, who hast no Virtue but a little Conduct in Martial Discipline; who hast by Perjuries, Cheats, and pious Villanies, wound thy self up into the Rabble's Favour, where thou mayst stand till some more great in Roguery remove thee from that height, or to the Gallows, if the King return: hast thou the Impudence to charge my Virtue?

Lam. I know not, Madam, whether that Virtue you boast were lost, or only stak't, and ready for the Gamester; but I am sure a Man was hid under this Carpet.

L. Lam. Oh Heav'ns, a Man!

Gill. Lord, a Man! Are you sure 'twas a Man, my Lord?

— Some villanous Malignant, I'll warrant.

Lam. It may be so.

Gill. Alack, the Wickedness of these Heroicks to hide under Carpets; why they'l have the impudence to hide under our Petticoats shortly, if your Highness take 'em not down.

[To Lady Lam.

Lam. I do believe so; Death—a Cuckold? shall that black Cloud shade all my rising Fame?

L. Lam. Cuckold! Why is that Name so great a Stranger to ye,

Or has your rising Fame made ye forget

How long that Cloud has hung upon your Brow?

—'Twas once the height of your Ambition, Sir;

When you were a poor—sneaking Slave to Cromwell,

Then you cou'd cringe, and sneer, and hold the Door,

And give him every Opportunity,

Had not my Piety defeated your Endeavours.

Lam. That was for Glory,

Who wou'd not be a Cuckold to be great?

—If Cromwell leap'd into my Saddle once,

I'll step into his Throne for't: but, to be pointed at

By Rascals that I—rule—'tis insupportable.

L. Lam. How got this Fellow drunk? call up my Officers,

Who durst deliver him this quantity of Wine;

Send strait in my Name, to summon all the drunken Committee of Safety into my Presence.

By Heav'n I'll show you, Sir——yes they shall See what a fine King they're like to have

In Honest, Gadly, Sober, Wise Jack Lambert.

—Nay, I'll do't; d'ye think to take away my Honour thus?

I, who by my sole Politicks and Management
Have set you up, Villain of Villains, Sirrah.

——Away——summon 'em all. [To Gilliflower.

Lam. Stay——be not so rash; who was beneath the Carpet?

L. Lam. I will not answer thee.

Lam. Nor any living thing?

L. Lam. No Creature in the Room, thou silly Ideot, but Gilliflower and I——at our Devotion, praying to Heav'n for your Success to morrow—and am I thus rewarded?

[Weeps, Gill. weeps too.

Lam. My Soul, I cannot bear the Sight of Tears
From these dear charming Eyes.

L. Lam. No matter Sir, the Committee shall right me.

Lam. Upon my Knees I ask thy Pardon, Dear; by all that's good, I wou'd have sworn I'd felt something stir beneath me as I sat, which threw me over.

L. Lam. Only your Brains turn'd round with too much drinking and dancing, Exercises you are not us'd to —— go sleep, and settle 'em, for I'll not deign to Bed with you to night——retire, as e'er you hope to have my Aid in your Advancement to the Crown.

Lam. I'm gone—and once more pardon my Mistake.

[Bows, and goes out. Ex. Gill.

L. Lam.——So, this fighting Fool, so worshipp'd by the Rabble, how meanly can a Woman make him sneak?

——The happy Night's our own—— [To Loveless.

Enter Gill. Loveless.

Lov. Excellent Creature, how I do adore thee!

L. Lam. But you, perhaps, are satisfied already——

Lov. Never; shou'dst thou be kind to all Eternity. Thou hast one Virtue more, I pay thee Homage for; I heard from the Alcove how great a Mistress thou art in the dear Mystery of Jilting.

L. Lam. That's the first Lesson Women learn in Conventicles, Religion teaches those Maxims to our Sex : by this

*Kings are depos'd, and Commonwealths are rul'd ;
By filting all the Universe is fool'd.*

ACT V. SCENE I.

Street.

Enter Corporal, half dress'd ; with Soldiers, Joyner, and Felt-maker.

Cor. HA Rogues, the City-Boys are up in Arms ; brave Boys, all for the King now !

Felt. Have a care what you say Sir ; but as to the City's being in Mutiny, that makes well for us : we shall fall to our old Trade of plundering ; something will fall to the Righteous, and there is Plunder enough.

Cor. You plunder Sirrah ! knock him down, and carry him into the Guard-room, and secure him.

[Two Soldiers seize him.]

1 Sold. They say the Committee of Safety sate all Night at General Lambert's, about some great Affair—— some rare Change, Rogues.

2 Sold. Yes, and to put off Sorrow, they say, were all right reverently drunk too.

Cor. I suppose there is some heavenly matter in hand ; there was Treason cried out at the General's last night, and the Committee of no Safety all ran away.

1 Sold. Or rather reel'd away.

Cor. The Ladies squeak'd, the Lords fled, and all the House was up in Arms.

Felt. Yea, and with Reason they say ; for the Pope in disguise was found under the Lady's Bed, and two huge Jesuits as big as the tall Irish-man, with Blunderbuffes ; having, as 'tis said, a Design to steal the Crown, now in Custody of the General——

2 Sold. Good lack is't possible ?

Joyner. Nay Sir, 'tis true, and is't not time we look'd about us ?

344 The ROUND-HEADS; or,

Corp. A Pox upon ye all for lying Knaves — secure 'em both on the Guard till farther Order — and let us in to th' City, Boys : hay for Lombard-Street.

2 Sold. Ay, hay for Lombard Street; there's a Shop I have mark'd out for my own already.

1 Sold. There's a handsom Citizen's Wife, that I have an Eye upon, her Husband's a rich Banker, I'll take t'one with t'other.

Joyn. You are mistaken, Sir, that Plunder is reserv'd for us, if they begin to mutiny; that wicked City that is so weary of a Commonwealth.

2 Sold. Yes, they're afraid of the Monster they themselves have made.

Enter Lov. and Free. in disguise.

Corp. Hah, my noble Colonel! what, in disguise!

Free. We have made our Escapes — and hope to see better times shortly, the noble Scotch General is come Boys.

Enter Captain of the Prentices, and a great Gang with him, arm'd with Swords, Staffs, &c.

Cap. Come, my Lads, since you have made me Captain, I'll lead you bravely on; I'll die in the Cause, or bring you off with Victory.

1 Pren. Here's a Club shall do some Execution: I'll beat out Hewson's t'other Eye; I scorn to take him on the blind side.

Cap. In the first Place, we must all sign a Petition to my Lord Mayor. —

2 Pren. Petitions! we'll have no Petition, Captain; we are for Club-Law, Captain.

Capt. Obey, or I leave you.

All. Obey, Obey.

Capt. Look ye, we'll petition for an honest Free Parliament I say,

1 Pren. No Parliament, no Parliament, we have had too much of that Mischief already, Captain.

All. No Parliament, no Parliament.

Capt. Farewel, Gentlemen, I thought I might have been heard.

Free. Death, Sirs, you shall hear the Captain out.

All. We obey, we obey.

Capt. I say an honest Free Parliament, not one pick'd and chosen by Faction; but such an one as shall do our our Bus'ness Lads, and bring in the Great Heroick.

All. Ay, ay, the Great Heroick, the Great Heroick.

Lov. A fine Youth, and shou'd be encourag'd

Capt. Good—in the next Place, the noble Scotch General is come, and we'll side with him.

Free. Ay, ay, all side with him.

1 Pren. Your Reason Captain, for we have acted too much without Reason already.

2 Pren. Are we sure of him, Captain?

Capt. Oh, he'll doubtless declare for the King, Boys.

All. Hay, Vive le Roy, vive le Monk.

Capt. Next, I hear there's a Proclamation coming out to dissolve the Committee of no Safety.

All. Good, good.

Capt. And I hope you are all brave enough to stand to your Loyal Principles with your Lives and Fortunes.

All. We'll die for the Royal Interest.

Capt. In the next Place, there's another Proclamation come out.

2 Pren. This Captain is a Man of rare Intelligence; but for what, Captain?

Capt. Why—to—hang us a'l, if we do not immediately depart to our respective Vocations; How like you that, my Lads?

2 Pren. Hum——hang'd! I'll e'en home again.

1 Pren. And I too, I do not like this hanging.

2 Pren. A Man looks but scurvily with his Neck awry.

3 Pren. Ay, ay, we'll home.

Capt. Why now you shew what precious Men you are——the King wou'd be finely hop'd up with such Rascals, that for fear of a little hanging would desert his Cause; a Pox upon you all, I here discharge ye—— ——Take back your Coward Hands, and give me Hearts.

[Flings 'em a Scroul.]

I scorn to fight with such mean-spirited Rogues;
I did but try your boasted Courages.

Lov. Brave Boy.

Lov. and Free. We'll die with thee, Captain——

All. Oh, noble Captain, we recant——

1 Pren. We recant, dear Captain, we'll die, one and all.

All. One and all, one and all.

Capt. Why, there's some trusting to you now.

3 Pren. But is there such a Proclamation, Captain?

Capt. There is; but anon, when the Crop-ear'd Sheriff begins to read it, let every Man enlarge his Voice, and cry, no Proclamation, no Proclamation.

All. Agreed, agreed.

Lov. Brave noble Lads, hold still your Resolution, And when your leisure Hours will give ye leave, Drink the King's Health, here's Gold for you to do so.

Free. Take my Mite too, brave Lads. [Gives 'em Gold.]

All. Hay! Vive the brave Heroicks.

Enter Ananias Gogle.

Ana. Hum, what have we here, a Street-Conventicle—or a Mutiny? Yea, verily, it is a Mutiny——What meaneth this Appearance in hostile manner, in open Street, by Day-light?

Capt. Hah! one of the sanctify'd Lay Elders, one of the Fiends of the Nation, that go about like roaring Lions seeking whom they may devour.

Lov. Who, Mr. Ananias the Padder?

Ana. Bear witness Gentlemen all, he calls me Highway-man; thou shalt be hang'd for Scandal on the Brethren.

Lov. I'll prove what I say, Sirrah; do you not rob on the High-way i'th' Pulpit? rob the Sisters, and preach it lawful for them to rob their Husbands; rob Men even of their Consciences and Honesty; nay rather than stand out, rob poor Wenches of their Bodkins and Thimbles?

Ana. I commit ye; here Soldiers, I charge ye in the Name of——of——marry I know not who, in my Name, and the good People of England, take 'em to safe Custody.

Capt. How, lay hold of honest Gentlemen! Noble Cavaliers, knock him down.

All. Knock him down, knock him down.

Free. Hold worthy Youths; the Rascal has done me Service.

[Ana. pulling off his Hat to 'em all.] Ye look like Citizens, that evil Spirit is entered in unto you, oh Men of London! that ye have changed your Note, like Birds of evil Omen; that ye go astray after new Lights, or rather no Lights, and commit Whoredom with your Fathers Idols, even in the midst of the Holy City, which
the

the Saints have prepared for the Elect, the Chosen ones.

Capt. Hark ye, Sirrah, leave preaching, and fall to declaring for us, or thou art mortal.

Ana. Nay, I say nay, I will die in my Calling—yea, I will fall a Sacrifice to the Good Old Cause; abomination ye with a mighty Hand, and will destroy, demolish and confound your Idols, those heathenish Malignants whom you follow, even with Thunder and Lightning, even as a Field of Corn blasted by a strong Blast.

Lov. Knock him down.

All. Down with Dagon, down with him.

Enter Hewson with Guards.

Hewson. Ah, Rogues, have I caught ye napping?

[They all surround him and his Red-Coats.]

All. Whoop Cobler, Whoop Cobler.

[The Boys, Lov. and Free. Corp. and Sold. beat off Hewson and his Party. An. gets a Sword, and fights 'em.]

SCENE Changes to a Chamber.

Enter L. Lam. and Gill.

Gill. I've had no time to ask your Highness how you slept to Night; but that's a needless Question.

L. Lam. How mean you? do you suspect my Virtue? do you believe Loveless dares attempt any thing against my Honour? No Gilliflower, he acted all things so like a Gentleman, that every moment takes my Heart more absolutely.

Gill. My Lord departed highly satisfied.

L. Lam. She is not worthy of Intrigues of Love, that cannot manage a silly Husband as she pleases—but Gilliflower, you forget that this is Council day.

Gill. No, but I do not, Madam, some important Suitors wait already.

Enter L. Des. and L. Fleetwood.

L. Lam. Your Servant, Madam Desbro, thou'rt welcome—

Gilliflower, are all things ready in the Council-Chamber? We that are great must sometimes stoop to Acts, That have at least some shew of Charity; We must redress the Grievance of our People.

L. Fleet.

L. Fleet. She speaks as she were Queen, but I shall put a spoke in her rising Wheel of Fortune, or my Lord's Politicks fail him.

[Scene draws off, Table with Papers: Chairs round it.

L. Lam. Where are the Ladies of the Council?—how remiss they are in their Attendance on us?

L. Fleet. Us! Heav'ns, I can scarce endure this Insolence!

—We will take care to mind 'em of their Duty—

L. Lam. We, poor Creature! how simply Majesty becomes her?

—Madam, as I take it, at our last sitting, our Pleasure was, that you shou'd sit no more.

Crom. Your Pleasure! Is that the General Voice? This is my Place in spite of thee, and all thy fawning Faction, and shall keep it, when thou perhaps, shalt be an humble Suppliant here at my Foot-stool.

L. Lam. I smile at thee.

Crom. Do, and cringe; 'tis thy business to make thee popular.

But 'tis not that—nor thy false Beauty that will serve thy Ends.

L. Lam. Rail on; declining Majesty may be excus'd, Call in the Women that attend for redress of Grievances.

[Ex. Page.

Enter Page with Women, and Loveless dress'd as a Woman.

Gentlewomen, what's your Business with us?

Lov. Gentlewomen! some of us are Ladies.

L. Lam. Ladies, in good time; by what Authority, and from whom do you derive your Title of Ladies?

L. Fleet. Have a care how you usurp what is not your own?

Lov. How the Devil rebukes Sin! [Aside.

L. Des. From whom had your your Honours, Women?

Lov. From our Husbands.

Gill. Husbands, who are they, and of what standing?

Lady. Of no long standing, I confess.

Gill. That's a common Grievance indeed.

L. Des. And ought to be redress'd.

L. Lam.

L. Lam. And that shall be taken into consideration ; write it down, Gilliflower, who made your Husband a Knight, Woman ?

Lov. Oliver the first, an't please ye.

L. Lam. Of horrid Memory ; write that down— who yours ?

2 Lady. Richard the fourth, an't like your Honour.

Gill. Of sottish Memory ; shall I write that down too ?

L. Des. Most remarkably.

Crom. Heav'ns ! Can I hear this Profanation of our Royal Family ? [Aside.

L. Lam. I wonder with what impudence Noll and Dick cou'd Knightify your Husbands ; for 'tis a Rule in Heraldry, that none can make a Knight but him that is one ; 'tis Sancha Pancha's Case in Don Quixot.

Crom. How dare you question my Husband's Authority ? [Rises in Anger.

Who nobly won his Honour in the Field,
Not like thy sneaking Lord who gain'd his Title
From his Wife's gay Love-tricks—bartering her Honour for his Coronet.

L. Lam. Thou ly'st, my Husband earn'd it with his Sword, braver and juster than thy bold Usurper, who waded to his Glory through a Sea of Royal Blood——

L. Des. Sure Loveless has done good on her, and converted her.

L. Fleet. Madam, I humbly beg you will be patient, you'll ruin all my Lord's Designs else—Women, proceed to your Grievances, both publick and private.

Lov. I petition for a Pension ; my Husband, deceas'd, was a constant active Man, in all the late Rebellion, against the Man ; he plunder'd my Lord Capel, he betray'd his dearest Friend Brown Bushel, who trusted his Life in his Hands, and several others ; plundering their Wives and Children even to their Smocks.

L. Lam. Most considerable Service, and ought to be consider'd.

2 Lady. And most remarkably, at the Trial of the late Man, I spit in's Face, and betray'd the Earl of Holland to the Parliament.

Crom. In the King's Face, you mean——it shew'd your Zeal for the Good Cause.

2 Lady. And 'twas my Husband that headed the Rabble, to pull down Gog and Magog, the Bishops, broke the Idols in the Windows, and turn'd the Churches into Stables and Dens of Thieves; rob'd the Altar of the Cathedral of the twelve pieces of Plate call'd the twelve Apostles, turn'd eleven of 'em into Money, and kept Judas for his own use at home.

L. Fleet. On my Word, most wisely perform'd, note it down——

3 Lady. And my Husband made Libels on the Man from the first Troubles to this day, defam'd and profan'd the Woman and her Children, printed all the Man's Letters to the Woman with Burlesque Marginal Notes, pull'd down the sumptuous Shrines in Churches, and with the golden and Popish Spoils adorn'd his own Houses and Chimney-Pieces.

L. Lam. We shall consider these great Services.

Lov. To what a height is Impudence arriv'd?

L. Lam. Proceed to private Grievances.

Lov. An't please your Honours, my Husband prays too much; which both hinders his private bus'ness at home, and his publick Services to the Commonwealth——

L. Lam. A double Grievance——set it down Gilliflower.

Lov. And then he rails against the Whore of Babylon, and all my Neighbours think he calls me Whore.

Crom. A most unpardonable fault.

L. Lam. We'll have that rectify'd, it will concern us.

Lov. Then he never kisses me, but he says a long Grace, which is more mortifying than inviting

L. Def. That is the fault of all the new Saints, which is the reason their Wives take a pious care, as much as in them lies, to send 'em to Heaven, by making 'em Cuckolds.

L. Fleet. A very charitable Work, and ought to be encourag'd. [Loveless gives in a Petition to Gilliflower.]

Gill. The humble Petition of the Lady Make-shift.

[Reads.]

——Heav'ns Madam, here are many thousand Hands to't of the distressed Sex.

All. Read it.

Gill. Reads.] Whereas there pass'd an Act, June 24th, against Fornication and Adultery, to the great detriment of of most of the young Ladies, Gentlewomen, and Commonalty of England, and to the utter decay of many whole Families, especially when married to old Men; your Petitioners most humbly beg your Honours will take this great Grievance into mature Consideration, and the said Act may be repealed.

—A Blessing on 'em, they shall have my Hand too.

L. Lam. We acknowledge, there are many Grievances in that Act; but there are many Conveniencies too, for it ties up the villanous Tongues of Men from boasting our Favours.

Crom. But as it lays a Scandal on Society—'tis troublesome, Society being the very Life of a Republick—Peters the first, and Martin the second.

Lov. But in a Free-State, why shou'd we not be free?

L. Des. Why not? we stand for the Liberty and Property of our Sex, and will present it to the Committee of Safety.

Lov. Secondly, we desire the Heroicks, vulgarly call'd the Malignant, may not be look'd on as Monsters, for assuredly they are Men; and that it may not be charg'd to us as a Crime to keep 'em company, for they are honest Men.

2 Lady. And some of 'em Men that will stand to their Principles.

L. Lam. Is there no other honest Men that will do as well?

3 Lady. Good Men are scarce.

L. Lam. They're all for Heroicks, sure 'tis the mode to love 'em — I cannot blame 'em. [Aside.

Lov. And that when we go to Morning and Evening Lectures, to Tantlings, or elsewhere, and either before or after visit a private Friend, it may be actionable for the wicked to scandalize us, by terming of it, abusing the Creature, when 'tis harmless recreating the Creature.

All. Reason, Reason.

Lov. Nor that any Husband shou'd interrupt his Wife, when at her private Devotion.

Enter Page.

L. Lam. I have been too late sensible of that Grievance.

Gill. And, Madam, I wou'd humbly pray a Patent for Scolding, to ease my Spleen. Page.

Page. An please your Highness, here's a Messenger arriv'd Post with Letters from my Lord the General.

[Ex. Page.

L. Lam. Greater Affairs—oblige us to break up the Council.

[Rises, the Women retire.

Enter Page with Messengers, or Letters.

—What means this haste? [Opens, and reads 'em.

Crom. Hah, bless my Eye-sight, she looks pale,—now red again; some turn to his Contusion, Heav'n, I beseech thee.

L. Lam. My Lord's undone! his Army has deserted him;

Left him defenceless to the Enemies Pow'r.

Ah Coward Traytors! Where's the brutal Courage,
That made you so successful in your Villanies?

Has Hell, that taught you Valour, now abandon'd ye?

—How in an instant are my Glories fall'n!

Crom. Ha, ha, ha—What has your Highness any Cause of Grief?

Gill. Call up your Courage, Madam, do not let these things scoff you—you may be yet a Queen: Remember what Lilly told you, Madam.

L. Lam. Damn Lilly, who with lying Prophecies has rais'd me to the hopes of Majesty: a Legion of his Devils take him for't.

Crom. Oh, have a care of Cursing, Madam.

L. Lam. Screech-Owl, away, thy Voice is ominous.
Oh I cou'd rave! but that it is not great;

—And silent Sorrow—has most Majesty.

Enter Wariston, huffing.

War. Wons, Madam, undone, undone; our honourable Committee is gone to th' Diel, and the damn'd loofey Rump is aud in aud; the muckle Diel set it i'solt, and his Dam drink most for't.

Crom. The Committee dissolv'd! whose wise work's that? it looks like Fleetwood's silly Politicks.

War. Marry, and yar Ladiship's i'th' right, 'twas en the Work o'th' faud Loone, the Diel brest his Wem for't.

Enter Hewson, Desbro, Whitlock, Duc. and Cob.

Hew. So Brethren in Iniquity, we have spun a fine Thred, the Rump's all in ail now, rules the Roast, and has sent for the General with Scissors and Razor.

Whit.

Whit. With a Sifferaro, you mean.

Hewf. None of your Terms in Law, good Brother.

War. Right; but gen ya have any Querks in Law, Mr. Lyar, that will save our Craggs, 'twill be warth a Fee.

Duc. We have plaid our Cards fair.

War. I's deny that; Wons, Sirs, ya plaid 'em faul; a Fule had the shoofling of 'em, and the Muckle Diel himself turn up Trump.

Whit. We are lost Gentlemen, utterly lost; who the Devil wou'd have thought of a Dissolution?

Hewf. Is there no Remedy?

Duc. Death, I'll to the Scotch General; turn but in time as many greater Rogues than I have done, and 'twill save my Stake yet—Farewel Gentlemen.

Des. No Remedy?

War. Nene, Sirs, again the King's Evil; Bread Sirs, ye's ene gan tol yar Stall agen: I's en follow Duckenfield—Farewel Mr. Lyar.

L. Lam. See the Vicissitudes of human Glory. These Rascals, that but yesterday petition'd me With humble Adoration, now scarce pay Common Civilities due to my Sex alone.

Enter Fleetwood.

Crom. How now Fool, what is't that makes you look so pertly? Some mighty Business you have done, I'll warrant.

Fleet. Verily, Lady Mother, you are the strangest Body; a Man cannot please you—Have I not finely circumvented Lambert? made the Rump Head, who have committed him to the Tower; ne'er stir now that I have, and I'm the greatest Man in England, as I live I am, as a Man may say.

Crom. Yes still a greater come. Ah Fool of Fools, not to fore-see the danger of that nasty Rump.

L. Fleet. Good Madam, treat my Lord with more Respect.

Crom. Away fond Fool, born with so little Sense, To doat on such a wretched Idiot; It was thy Fate in Ireton's days to love him, Or you were foully scandaliz'd.

Fleet. You are not so well spoken of neither, ne'er stir now, and you go to that. I can be King to morrow if I will.

Crom.

Crom. Thou lyest, thou wo't be hang'd first; mark that I tell thee so. I'll prove Cassandra to thee, and prophesy thy Doom; Heav'n pays the Traitor back with equal Measure. Remember how you serv'd my poor Son Richard.
[Ex. Crom. and Page.]

Fleet. She's mad—Come, my Dear, let's leave the House of this Villain, that meant to have cozen'd me illegally of three Kingdoms—but that I outwitted him at last.

[Ex. Fleet. L. Fleet.]

Enter Page.

L. Lam. Imprison'd too, i'th' Tower! what Fate is mine?
[Leans on Des.]

Page. Madam, the fine Heroick's come to wait on you.

L. Lam. Hah! Loveless! let him not see the Ruin of my Greatness, which he foretold, and kindly begg'd I wou'd usurp no more.

Enter Loveless. (man,

Lov. This News has brought me back, I love this Woe—
Vain as she is, in spite of all her Fopperies of State—

[Bows to her, and looks sad.]

L. Lam. Alas, I do not merit thy Respect,
I'm fall'n to Scorn, to Pity and Contempt. [Weeping.

Ah Loveless, fly the wretched—

Thy Virtue is too noble to be shin'd on

By any thing but rising Suns alone:

I'm a declining Shade—

Lov. By Heaven you were never great till now;

I never thought thee so much worth my Love,

My Knee, and Adoration, till this Minute.

[Kneels.]

—I come to offer you my Life, and all

The little Fortune the rude Hard has left me.

L. Lam. Is there such God-like Virtue in your Sex?

Or, rather, in your Party.

Curse on the Lyes and Cheats of Conventicles,

That taught me first to think Heroicks Devils,

Blood-thirsty, leud, tyrannick, salvage Monsters.

—But I believe 'em Angels all, if all like Loveless.

What heavenly thing then must the Master be,

Whose Servants are divine?

[Enter Page running.]

Page. Oh Madam! all the heroick Boys are up in Arms, and swear they'll have your Highness, dead or alive,—they have besieg'd the House.

L. Lam.

L. Lam. Heav'ns, the Rabble! — those faithless things that us'd to croud my Coach's Wheels, and stop my Passage, with their officious Noise and Adoration.

Enter Freeman.

Free. Loveless, thy Aid; the City-Sparks are up; Their zealous Loyalty admits no Bounds. (fac'd.)

A glorious Change is coming, and I'll appear now bare-

Lov. Madam, fear not the Rabble; retire. Freeman and I can still 'em. [Leads her in, and bows low.]

Free. My dear Maria, I shall claim ye shortly—

L. Des. Do your worst, I'm ready for the Challenge. [Ex.]

Enter Captain and the rest.

Capt. I say we'll have the She-Politician out, she did more mischief than her Husband, pitiful, dittiful Lambert; who is, thanks be prais'd, in the Tower, to which place Lord of his Mercy bring all the King's Enemies.

All. Amen, Amen.

Enter Lov. and Freeman.

Lov. Why how now Captain, what besiege the Women! No, let us lead our Force to nobler Enemies.

Capt. Nay, noble Chief, your Word's our Law.

Lov. No, I resign that Title to the brave Scotch General, who has just now enter'd the City.

Capt. We know it, Sir; do you not observe how the Crop-ear'd Fanaticks trot out of Town? — The Rogues began their old belov'd Mutiny, but 'twould not do.

Lov. A Pox upon 'em, they went out like the Snuff of a Candle, stinkingly and blinkingly.

Pr. Ay, ay, let 'em hang themselves, and then they are cold Meat for the Devil.

Capt. But noble Champion, I hope we may have leave to roast the Rump to night.

Lov. With all our Hearts, here's Mony to make Fires—

Free. And here's for Drink to't, Boys.

All. Hey—Vive le Roy, vive les Heroicks!

[Go out hollowing.]

Enter Ananias peeping, Feltmaker, and Joiner.

Ana. So, the Rabble's gone: ah Brethren! what will this wicked World come to?

Felt. Alack, alack, to no Goodness, you may be sure; pray pray what's the News? [Fleet. peeping out of a Garret-Window.]

Fleet. Anania, Anania!

Ana. Who calleth Ananias? lo, here am I.

Fleet. Behold, it is I, look up. How goeth tidings?

Ana. Full ill, I fear 'tis a bad Omen to see your Lordship so nigh Heaven; when the Saints are Garretified.

Fleet. I am fortifying my self against the Evil-Day.

Ana. Which is come upon us like a Thief in the night; like a Torrent from the Mountain of Waters, or a Whirlwind from the Wilderness.

Fleet. Why, what has the Scotch General done?

Ana. Ah! he playeth the Devil with the Saints in the City, because they put the Covenant-Oath unto him; he pulls up their Gates, their Posts and Chains, and enters.

Felt. And wou'd the wicked City let him have his beastly Will of her?

Ana. Nay, but she was ravish'd — deflower'd.

Joy. How, ravish'd! oh monstrous! was ever such a Rape committed upon an innocent City? lay her Legs open to the wide World, for every Knave to view her Nakedness?

Felt. Ah, ah! what Days, what Times, and what Seasons are here?

Enter Capt. Corp. and Prent. with Faggots hollowing.

Corp. What say you now, Lads, is not my Prophecy truer than Lilly's? I told you the Rump would fall to our handling and drinking for: the King's proclaim'd, Rogues.

Capt. Ay, ay, Lilly, a Plague on him, he prophesied Lambert should be uppermost.

Corp. Yes, he meant perhaps on Westminster Pinnacle: where's Lilly now, with all his Prophecies against the Royal Family?

Capt. In one of his Twe've Houses.

Prent. We'll fire him out to Night, Boy; come, all hands to work for the Fire. [Ex. all hollowing.]

Fleet. Ah, dismal, heavy day, a day of Grief and Woe; which hast bereft me of my hopes for ay. Lard, ah what shall I do? [Exit.]

Enter Lov. leading L. Lam. in disguise, Page and Gilliflower disguis'd, Lov. dressing her.

Lov. My Charmer, why these Tears,
If for the fall of all thy painted Glories,
Thou art, in the esteem of all good Men,
Above what thou wert then?
The glorious Sun is rising in our Hemisphere,
And I, amongst the crowd of Loyal Sufferers,
Shall share its kindly Rays.

L. Lam. Best of thy Sex——
What have I left to gratify thy Goodness?

Lov. You have already by your noble Bounty,
Made me a Fortune, had I nothing else;
All which I render back, with all that Wealth
Heaven and my Parents left me:
Which, tho unjustly now detain'd from me,
Will once again be mine, and then be yours.

Enter Free.

Free. Come, haste, the Rabble gather round the House,
And swear they'll have this Sorceress.

Lov. Let me loose among 'em, their rude officious
Honesty must be punish'd.

L. Lam. Oh, let me out, do not expose thy Person to their mad Rage, rather resign the Victim. [Holds him.

Lov. Resign thee! by Heaven, I think I shou'd turn Rebel first.

Enter La. Des. disguis'd, and Page, with Jewels in a Box.

L. Des. With much ado, according to thy direction, dear Freeman, I have pass'd the Pikes, my House being surrounded; and my Husband demanded, fell down dead with fear.

Free. How, thy Husband dead!

L. Des. Dead as old Oliver, and much ado I got off with these Jewels, the Rabble swore I was one of the Party; and had not the honest Corporal convinc'd 'em, I had been pull'd to pieces.—Come haste away, Madam, we shall be roasted with the Rump else.

L. Lam.

L. Lam. Adieu, dear Mansion! whose rich gilded Roofs so oft put me in mind of Majesty—And thou my Bed of State, where my soft Slumbers have presented me with Diadems and Scepters—when waking I have stretch'd my greedy Arms to grasp the vanish'd Phantom! ah, adieu! and all my hopes of Royalty adieu.——

Free. And dare you put your self into my Protection? Why if you do, I doubt you'll never be your own Woman again.

L. Des. No matter, I'm better lost than found on such occasions. [Exeunt.]

SCENE, a Street; a great Bonfire, with Spits, and Rumps roasting, and the Mobile about the Fire, with Pots, Bottles, Fiddles.

1 Pren. Here, Jack, a Health to the King.

2 Pren. Let it pass, Lad, and next to the noble General.

1 Pren. Ralph, baste the Rump well, or ne'er hope to see a King agen.

3 Pren. The Rump will baste it self, it has been well cram'd.

Enter Freeman, L. Des. Loveless, and L. Lam. Gill.
Pages, &c.

Cap. Hah, Noble Champion, faith Sir, you must honour us so far as to drink the King's Health, and the noble General's, before you go.

Enter Wariston, dress'd like a Pedlar, with a Box about his Neck full of Ballads and Things.

War. Will ya buy a guedly Ballat or a Scotch Spur, Sirs? a guedly Ballat, or a Scotch Spur.—'Sbread, I's scapt hitherte weele enough, I's sav'd my Crag fro stretching twa Inches longer than 'twas borne: will ya buy a Jack-line to roast the Rump, a new Jack Lambert Line?—or a blithe Ditty of the Noble Scotch General?—come buy my Ditties.

Cap. How, a Ditty o'th' General? let's see't, Sirrah.

War. 'Sbread, Sirs, and here's the guedly Ballat of the General's coming out of Scotland.

Cap. Here, who sings it? we'll all bear the bob.

[Wariston sings the Ballad, all bearing the Bob.

Enter

Enter Ananias, crying Almanacks.

Ana. New Almanacks, new Almanacks.

Cap. Hah, who have we here? Ananias, Holder-forth of Clement's Parish?

All. Hā, a Traytor, a Traytor.

Lov. If I be not mistaken, this blithe Ballad-singer too was Chair-man to the Committee of Safety.

Cap. Is your Lordship turned Pedlar at last?

War. What mon I do noo? Lerd ne mere Lerd than yar sel Sir; wons I's show 'em a fair pair of Heels.

[Goes to run away, they get him on a Colt-staff, with Ananias on another, Fidlers playing Fortune my Foe, round the Fire.]

Cap. Play Fortune my Foe, Sirrah.

Enter Hewson, drest like a Country Fellow.

Cor. Who are you, Sirrah? you have the mark o'th' Beast.

Hewf. Who aye, Sir? Aye am a Doncer, that come merry-making among ya——

Cap. Come, Sirrah, your Feats of Activity quickly then.

[He dances; which ended, they get him on a Colt-staff, and cry a Cobler, a Cobler.]

All. A Cobler, a Cobler.

Cap. To Prison with the Traytors, and then we have made a good Night's work on't.

Then let's all home, and to the Powers Divine

Pray for the King, and all the Sacred Line. [Exeunt.]

EPILOGUE,

Spoken by Lady Destro.

THE Vizer's off, and now I dare appear
 High for the Royal Cause in Cavalier;
 Tho once as true a Whig as most of you,
 Cou'd cant, and lye, preach, and dissemble too:
 So far you drew me in, but faith I'll be
 Reveng'd on you for thus debauching me:
 Some of your pious Cheats I'll open lay,
 That lead your Ignoramus Flock astray:

For since I cannot fight, I will not fail
 To exercise my Talent, that's to rail.
 Ye Race of Hypocrites, whose Cloak of Zeal
 Covers the Knave that cants for Commonweal,
 All Laws, the Church and State to Ruin brings,
 And impudently sets a Rule on Kings;
 Ruin, destroy, all's good that you decree
 By your Infallible Presbytery,
 Prosperous at first, in Ills you grew so vain,
 You thought to play the Old Game o'er again:
 And thus the Cheat was put upon the Nation,
 First with Long Parliaments, next Reformation,
 And now you hop'd to make a new Invasion:
 And when you can't prevail by open Force,
 To cunning tickling Tricks you have recourse,
 And raise Sedition forth without Remorse.
 Confound these cursed Tories, then they cry, [In a preach-
 Those Fools, those Pimps to Monarchy, in tone.
 Those that exclude the Saints; yet open th' Door,
 To introduce the Babylonian Whore.
 By Sacred Oliver the Nation's mad;
 Beloved, 'twas not so when he was Head:
 But then, as I have said it oft before ye,
 A Cavalier was but a Type of Tory.
 The Curs durst then not bark, but all the Breed
 Is much increas'd since that good Man was dead:
 Yet then they rail'd against the Good Old Cause,
 Rail'd foolishly for Loyalty, and Laws;
 But when the Saints had put them to a stand,
 We left them Loyalty, and took their Land:
 Yea, and the pious Work of Reformation
 Rewarded was with Plunder, Sequestration.
 Thus cant the Faithful; nay, they're so uncivil,
 To pray us harmless Players to the Devil.
 When this is all th' Exception they can make;
 They damn us for our Glorious Master's sake.
 But why 'gainst us do you unjustly arm?
 Our small Religion sure can do no harm;
 Or if it do, since that's the only thing,
 We will reform when you are true to th' King.
